City Hall Plans in Limbo Despite Ray's Rare Plea

By HUGH REYNOLDS

Plans for a new city hall remained in limbo today despite a personal plea by Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan at last night's Common Council meeting.

Garraghan, in a rare move by a mayor, addressed the Council and asked for the passage of two resolutions, one for the purchase of land in Broadway East for a new city hall, the other for the hiring of an architect. Neither came up for a vote.

The two resolutions remained in committee but this did not prevent the aldermen from engaging in a lengthy, heated and laughter-punctuated debate on the issue itself.

John Naccarato (R-Third Ward) got the debate going when he took the floor and asked why no action had been taken on the two resolutions. He said he had not seen either resolution in caucus, adding, "The mayor came up here to give us a financial report and we completely ignored the man."

Naccarato then spoke of the problems of a city hall in Broadway East, citing the traffic problems and the present condition of the sidewalks. He said that urban renewal was at a "standstill" and no construction or demolition had taken place since last September.

Asks for 9-Man Panel.

He then made a motion for a nine-man panel of "outstanding citizens" to be chosen by the mayor to select a city hall site and report to the Council within 45 days. The motion also asked for a public referendum once the report was in.

The amendment to the motion (the referendum) was voted on first and was defeated 10-3. Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward) termed Naccarato's motion "the most absurd thing I've ever seen come before this council."

Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) said, "We didn't bring the resolutions out because the aldermen wanted more time after two years on this issue. It would have been defeated. I'll try another time."

Voting for the amendment were Naccarato, Peter Fisher (R-10th Ward) John Machione (R-12th Ward). Machione called for movement toward getting a new city hall "someplace."

Opposes Own Motion.

The laughter came from the large audience when Naccarato voted against his own motion when it came up. This was the call for the nine-man panel. Fisher also switched his vote as he said that was the way the votes seemed to be going. Machione said he (Machione) was a man of his convictions and kept his vote at yes. The motion was defeated 12-1 and the Council adjourned.

Garraghan, in presenting his financial report, told the aldermen, "I'm not trying to call myself a hero by giving you these figures." He cited the cooperation of the Common Council which made the figures possible.

Basically, the mayor said that the city's debts had been reduced by $475,364 since he took office Jan. 1, 1966 and would be further reduced by $341,704 next year. This adds up to a debt reduction, according to Garraghan, of almost $820,000. His estimates for a new city hall are about $950,000. Garraghan said he "could almost promise a city tax cut of $15 per thousand." He added that he didn't know what the county and the Kingston Consolidated School District would levy in taxes.

The mayor then went on to (Continued on Page 6, Col. 7)

Nixon Will Go-for-Broke In First Ballot Win Try

By RAYMOND M. LAHR

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon drove toward a first ballot victory for the Republican presidential nomination today despite zero hour efforts by Nelson A. Rockefeller and Ronald Reagan.

With the balloting starting tonight, the former vice president seemed all but certain of a second shot at the White House. But his two rivals, conceding nothing, still were trying to stop him.

Key states in the final day of maneuvering were New Jersey, Florida and Ohio. There were rumblings of revolt in New Jersey where favorite son Clifford Case, a Rockefeller man, sought to prevent a bolt to Nixon.

Florida, hitherto strong for Nixon, threatened to drift into the Reagan camp. That could spark a Southern defection from Nixon and wreck his hope for a first-ballot nomination.

But Ohio's favorite son, Gov. James A. Rhodes, was in the best position of all to play kingmaker. If he should release his 56 votes, it probably would put Nixon over the top.

Hours before the balloting got under way, the UPI tabulation of delegate preferences gave Nixon 635 votes, Rockefeller 301 and Reagan 203. Favorite sons held 180 votes, and 14 were still uncommitted. It takes 667 to win the nomination.

Nixon's campaign managers have consistently claimed more than 700 votes to win on an early ballot, without counting votes from five states with favorite son candidates. They have applied heavy pressure to win on the first ballot, knowing that doubtful delegates may desert a front-runner who doesn't quite make it the first time.

Gov. Rockefeller of New York and Gov. Reagan of California have based their whole strategy on stopping Nixon on the first ballot. They figured he would slip on a second ballot and fall out of contention by a third.

Historically, in multi-ballot conventions, candidates have faded out of sight once they began to slip. Therefore, a leader who expects the convention to go beyond one ballot usually will hold back "reserve strength" in order to show an upward surge on the second ballot.

At this convention, Nixon has thrown all of his troops into a go-for-broke charge for victory on the first ballot.

During the past week, delegates have shifted their allegiance from one candidate to another but not to a sufficient extent to cut into Nixon's commanding lead.

Yet Reagan and Rockefeller supporters have consistently refused to concede Nixon as many as 600 votes of the 667 needed to win on the first ballot.

"There will be no first ballot nomination and that is a flat prediction," Rockefeller said. "Nixon will begin to lose votes on the second ballot and by the end of the third, the dam will break."

Nixon's lieutenants were warning delegates that they may miss the train completely if they fail to vote for him on the first ballot. This argument threw a scare into the New Jersey delegation, where most of the state's 40 delegates have supported Sen. Case as a favorite son. That's why Case was having trouble holding onto his delegates.

Nixon managers also were telling Rockefeller backers that denying the nomination to Nixon R. Laird of Wisconsin, predicted could lead to victory by Reagan, hero of the conservative wing. And they told Reagan supporters that the outcome of a stop-Nixon coalition could be the nomination of Rockefeller, the candidate of the liberals.

Florida delegates, who had favored Nixon by a substantial majority, began drifting toward Reagan Tuesday and gave him hope of picking up the state's entire 34 votes.

The key to the nomination may lie with those committed to favorite sons.

Other developments at the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Fla., may be found Pages 3 and 5 of this edition.

These included Rhodes, with 56 of Ohio's 58 votes; Gov. George Romney, with 44 of Michigan's 48; Case, with 35 of New Jersey's 40; Sen. Frank Carlson, with all 20 from Kansas, and Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, younger brother of the New York candidate, with all 18 from Arkansas.

Rockefeller and Reagan were urging all of the favorite sons to hold their votes back from Nixon on the first two ballots.

Halfway through the roll call, New Jersey could start a stampede by giving a bundle of votes to Nixon. Ohio would vote moments later.

One of the Republican congressional leaders, Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, predicted that Nixon would fall short of Reagan, hero of the conservative wing. And they told Reagan supporters that the outcome of switching Ohio votes at the end of the roll call.

Fighting right down to the wire, Reagan and Rockefeller continued their rounds of the beach hotels Tuesday and today to talk to state delegations. Nixon displayed cool confidence by inviting delegates to come to his headquarters hotel for regional sessions.

At a private meeting with Southern delegates, Nixon gave some impression that he would pick a vice presidential nominee acceptable to the South. The word from the Nixon organization was that he would pick a candidate "acceptable in all sections" and not associated with any extreme wing of the party. Gov. Rhodes and Sen. Mark Hatfield of Oregon seemed to be among the prospects best fitting the qualifications.

At Tuesday night's convention session, the delegates approved the "harmony" platform as it came from the drafting committee Sunday.

The convention also approved party rules for the coming four years, including a new anti-discrimination provision similar to one adopted by the Democrats four years ago. The provision included this language:

"Participation in a Republican primary, caucus or any meeting or convention held for the purpose of selecting delegates to a county, district, state or national convention shall in no way be abridged for reasons for race, religion, color or national origin."

WASHINGTON (AP)—Retail food prices are expected to average 3 1/2 per cent higher this year over last, the Department of Agriculture said today.

The gain in 1967 from a year earlier averaged less than one per cent, the department said in a report on the national food situation.

Food prices appear to be leveling off a bit, with increases for the last three months of 1968 estimated to be smaller than those earlier in the year, the department said.

Newburgh Reservists File Suit

NEW YORK (AP)—Seven Air Force reservists have filed suit in U.S. District Court here challenging the order calling them to active duty after the seizure of the U.S. Navy radar ship Pueblo by North Korea.

The suit is in the form of a petition for a writ of habeas corpus charging that the reservists are being illegally and unconstitutionally continued in active service and a petition for an order that the Air Force show cause why it should not be restrained from breaking up the unit by sending individuals to various bases in this country and abroad.

The reservists were all members of the 904th Military Air Lift Group, stationed at Stewart Air Force Base, Newburgh, N. Y.

Judge Milton Pollack signed the show cause order and set a later hearing.

Eisenhower's Outlook Termed 'Guarded'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors say it could take days to assess the damage from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's third heart attack in slightly more than three months.

Physicians described the 77-year-old five-star general as "stable" within hours after his latest heart attack Tuesday, but they described his outlook as "guarded," hospital-talk for uncertain.

Private physicians told The Associated Press diagnosis of Eisenhower's attack is complicated by the fact that he has had so many—six since 1955.

But doctors at Walter Reed Hospital, where the general suffered the latest attack at 6:15 a.m., said: "Any individual who has sustained a recent infarction is considered to be seriously ill."

The doctors described the attack as probably a myocardial infarction, or blocking of blood flow in the heart by a blood clot or fatty deposits in the bloodstream.

Doctors said electronic equipment was keeping tabs continually on Eisenhower's metabolism. He was on a low salt, liquid diet.

Visitors were restricted to the immediate family. Doctors said his wife, Mamie, visited him often. His son, John, and granddaughter flew here from The Republican National Convention at Miami Beach.

"The doctors thought the situation was serious enough that I should be here," said John. "When the boss is in trouble I come."

At the convention, former presidential candidate Thomas E. Dewey asked from the podium that delegates pray for Eisenhower's swift recovery.

The attack came Tuesday less than 12 hours after Eisenhower addressed the convention from the hospital via a nationwide television hookup.

For Eisenhower to survive

five heart attacks "and then address the Republicans in a voice that was resonant although halting a few times and considering his age is remarkable testimony to what medicine has been able to accomplish," said doctors at Walter Reed.

The convention was the first Eisenhower has missed in 16 years. He told the delegates he was counting on going, "but the doctors have said no and again no."

Rondout Valley Rejects Eight of Nine

By JEAN F. DOLAN

Superintendent of Schools, Dr. Ted T. Grenda, expressed mixed emotions this morning after Rondout Valley School District voters sent all but one of the nine austerity budget options down to defeat yesterday.

Pleased by Transit Vote

Dr. Grenda said he was "very pleased" the transportation option had been approved as it was a critical concern of the board. Option Seven which was given the nod by a 845 to 583 vote provides transportation for children living more than one mile from the school along established bus routes at a cost of $36,700.

Of the nine options Dr. Grenda said this was the most important because of the dangerous roads in the district such as Routes 209 and 213. He expressed disappointment at the defeat of the other options, saying that the board evidently "did not get the financial facts across to the voters." Board members felt all options to the austerity budget were necessary and would be a saving for "parents and taxpayers both."

The board does not intend any further action on the options. Dr. Grenda said. The austerity budget will go into effect with the fall term.

50 Pct. Turnout

Approximately 50 per cent of the registered voters in the district went to polls at the high school yesterday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Some minor machine difficulties delayed early voting very briefly.

The defeated options and the votes are as follows: Option One — purchase of instructional equipment ($13,678) 557 in favor, 844 opposed. Option Two — purchase of library books ($9,050) 516 in favor, 835 opposed.

Option Three — purchase of textbooks ($2,566) 686 in favor, 719 opposed.

Option Four — extra curricular activities including athletics and music ($20,000) 639 yes to 778 no votes.

Option Five — adult education ($2,200) 438 yes to 957 no.

Option Six — improvement of grounds ($20,050) 514 in favor to 876 opposed.

Option Eight — cafeteria services ($15,00, estimated) 633 yes to 769 no.

Option Nine — purchase of one, 67 passenger bus and two, 16 passenger carryalls ($26,000) 515 in favor to 875 opposed.

Two Options Stressed
Prior to the Tuesday vote, Dr. Grenda had particularly stressed the importance of the transportation and extra curricular activities options—the first as a safety factor and the second because of the great effect on school spirit.

The austerity budget approved by the board of education July 2 called for $3,744,681, dropping the tax rate from $26.70 per thousand assessed valuation to $22.11 per thousand.

A public hearing on the options was held Monday night to acquaint voters with the provisions. Approximately 40 persons attended the session at the high school on Alligerville Road.

Many stormy sessions led to the adoption of the austerity budget by the Rondout Valley Board. The board budget proposals were twice defeated by district voters.

The first defeat came in May when an overwhelming voter turnout voted thumbs down on the $3.8 million proposed budget. A proposition calling for the purchase of two school buses and two carryalls also went down to defeat. Two thousand of the 26,000 registered voters in the district went to the polls for the May vote.

The budget was re-submitted in June and with the bus purchase proposition was defeated for a second time. The second proposed budget offered a decrease in tax rate from the original but still did not meet with voter approval.

Adopted in July.

June turnout was 340 less than the May vote. Budget defeat was 989 no to 763 yes. Carryalls were rejected 1,094 to 658 and the bus 1,097 to 644.

The tax cut in the second budget would have been from the original $24.07 per thousand dollars of assessed valuation to $23.46 per thousand, but it still did not win approval.

The austerity budget was adopted by the board at its July 2 re-organizational meeting.

Local Truck in 100G Thruway Mishap; Two Dutchess Men Killed in Accidents

By WALTER S. CLARK

A spectacular collision involving a tractor-trailer owned by a Kingston firm, and two other tractor-trailers occurred on the Thruway in the Town of Coeymans early today, resulting in injuries to two truck drivers. Traffic on the super-highway was blocked for more than an hour, according to investigating troopers.

A fatal traffic accident Tuesday afternoon resulted in the death of a Hyde Park motorist, and an automobile mishap on a Virginia highway took the life of a Poughkeepsie man and injured his brother.

The loss resulting from the Thruway crash was estimated by a State Police official at $100,000. It included the cargo on one trailer which was destroyed by fire that erupted after the collision and two tractor-trailers that were lost in the flames.

Thruway troopers reported John Williams, of Sumter, S. C., was driving a tractor-trailer north at about 30 miles an hour when the vehicle was hit in the rear by a truck operated by Herbert Wilson of Schenectady. The latter tractor-trailer careened across both southbound lanes where it was in collision with a tractor-trailer owned by Van's Auto Express of Albany Avenue Extension and operated by Harvey Bell, 39, of East Greenbush.

Van's tractor-trailer, overturned and burst into flames, that set fire to the one driven by Wilson. According to troopers the flames shot high in the air and illuminated the entire area.

MATCHING CANISTER SET BREAD BOX

Hatfield, Rhodes as Nixon V-P?

By JOHN G. WARNER
MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Richard M. Nixon's strategists today set forth new qualifications for his running mate which appeared to best fit Oregon Sen. Mark Hatfield or Ohio Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Sources close to Nixon said that if he gets the Republican presidential nomination, he wants a man who is a national figure, who is not associated with any extreme wing of the party, who would be able to campaign strongly in all sections of the country and who would be "acceptable in all sections."

Dixie Pressure

Southern delegates put heavy pressure on Nixon not to choose such liberals as Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois or New York Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Hatfield would seem to be an almost perfect for the model cast by Nixon's advisers today. His only drawback would be his once highly dovish stand on Vietnam. But he has modified this, and strongly endorsed the GOP platform. He also came out early for Nixon—and both Percy and Lindsay are Rockefeller backers.

Rhodes is considered more conservative than Hatfield, but also less dynamic. His chances are enhanced by being the key favorite son candidate. By releasing Ohio's 58 delegates to Nixon on the first ballot, he could put Nixon over the top. Nixon visited Dixie delegates at their caucus Tuesday and left them with the impression he had promised to name someone they could support. Many of the delegates felt this ruled out Lindsay and Percy. There was heavy sentiment against Percy in the South, and he might have trouble getting his own Illinois delegation behind him because of his endorsement of Rockefeller.

Nixon "let us know he wasn't going to stuff a vice presidential running mate down the throat of the South or any place else," said Tom Staggs of Shreveport, La.

Loud, Strung, Clear
"The message was loud, strong and clear that the South wants Reagan on the Nixon ticket," said a North Carolina delegate after the meeting.

But California Gov. Ronald Reagan, now a formal candidate for the presidential nomination, has insisted that he wants no part of second place on any ticket.

Rhodes' own supporters passed out thousands of expensive color brochures extolling the governor's virtues. Ohioans admitted the move was intended to push Rhodes for the vice presidential nomination.

Texas continued to push their senator, John G. Tower, as a man who could help Nixon carry Texas and thwart third-party candidate George Wallace. The same argument was put forth by some Southerners for Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee.

Penfield Cpl. Viet Victim, On 2nd Tour

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—David C. Crane, a Marine Lance corporal from suburban Penfield who was on his second tour of duty in South Vietnam, was killed in action Aug. 2, his parents said today.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Crane said their son, who would have been 21 Aug. 18, graduated from Olympia High School in nearby Greece in 1966. He entered the Marine Corps in September of that year and served 13 months in Vietnam.

He spent a 30 day leave at home last May before returning to the war zone, they said. The Cranes live at 63 Sebastian Dr.

Javits (R-N.Y.), for handling. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Dirksen Turns On The GOP Delegates

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—John Wayne, the elder statesman, gave way to Everett McKinley Dirksen, the wild prairie actor, and the Republican National Convention came alive last night.

Rising up from the tundra of tedium and the rhetoric of rigor mortis, it was Dirksen, United States senator, Senate GOP leader, Convention Platform Committee chairman, marigold musketeer, recording star, Dirksen's peerless apostle of the new politics of the age of Elizabeth I, who gave the delegates their first incisive lesson in the arts of election, execution and electrification (rural).

They began by giving him a roaring round he began by saying, "I accept the nomination." It was the first joke to emanate from this year's podium. Theater critics, allegedly Democrats, predicted it would not be the last.

The delegates laughed and continued to make noise. Dirksen turned alternately imperious, menacing, cajoling, bargaining.

"Quiet!" he thundered, jowls quivering, silver rivulets of hair flailing, like that of an aroused Zeus.

And still there was no quiet. He held up nine pounds of speech texts.

"If you'll be quiet for 45 minutes," said Everett McKinley Dirksen, the beguiling negotiator, "I'll throw these speeches anywhere you want me to throw them."

And then he did, nine pounds of speeches, right over the speaker's platform, into the hearts of the peasants. While it was not precisely clear whose speeches had been jettisoned, it was obvious Dirksen still had his.

Now the delegates were quiet and the Pekin Pericles, rising slowly from the Armageddon tones of his basso profundo, began. "In Philadelphia 181 years ago, far-seeing men fashioned us a revolutionary new government."

He dared Russia to knock the chip off his shoulder.

"A Soviet leader declaims that ours is a rotten, decadent society. God forbid our having to make the point but, should he try us, he'll quickly find out what Americans really are!"

Delegates Roar

The delegates roared. Membrane by membrane, Dirksen peeled off the skin of "The Great Society," stretching out each syllable of the phrase in a mockery of rubber.

"Oh, how cynical, how mocking that political slogan!... Never has an undeclared war embroiled America so long. . . . Never our prestige so low, our alliances so weakened, our image so impaired. . . . Never has the nation been so mired in debt. . . . Now we've been rocketed to fiscal outer space. . . ."

"Great Society indeed! . . . It is not a New Deal or a Fair Deal. It's just a straight-out Misdeal. Humor it longer, and it will destroy what the Founding Fathers wrought."

Two Major GOP Questions At the Balloting Session

By GEORGE J. MARDER

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Two questions will be uppermost tonight when GOP convention delegates begin balloting on the presidential nomination.

Will the south stick with Richard M. Nixon or swing to Ronald Reagan?

Will the favorite sons—James A. Rhodes of Ohio, George Romney of Michigan, Frank Carlson of Kansas, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas—hold out through the first ballot?

Key States

Here are some key states to watch when the roll is called:

Alabama—Latest information indicates a split of 14 favoring Nixon; 12 for Reagan. Anything less than the 14 for Nixon would spell trouble for the former vice president elsewhere in the south.

Colorado—Gov. John A. Love

is for Rockefeller but has been able to get only 3 delegates to follow his lead; Sens. Gordon Allott and Peter H. Dominick believe they can get 14 for Nixon. If Rockefeller is to gain, Colorado is a target.

Florida—The 34-vote delegation is trying to pressure Nixon into accepting a conservative running mate. Delegation has a gentleman's agreement to vote solid on first ballot either for Nixon or Reagan, except for Gov. Claude Kirk who is for Rockefeller. Other southern states will watch Florida.

Georgia—Almost a duplicate of Florida but stronger Nixon control. Anything less than 20 votes on the first ballot for Nixon will be disappointing to the former vice president.

Kansas—Rockefeller badly needs Carlson to remain as a favorite son at least to the end of the first ballot.

Maryland—Gov. Spiro T. Agnew split the 26-vote delegation in half when he quit his favorite son and endorsed Nixon. It's 13 for Nixon and 13 for Rockefeller on the basis of the latest information, with Rockefeller picking up 3 votes during the night.

Michigan—If Romney should fold as a favorite son, it would be a surprise break with Nixon the main beneficiary.

Minnesota—Split delegation, 17 for Rockefeller, 9 for Nixon. At this point, politicians will be counting the votes carefully to see whether switches can put a man over.

N. J. May Be First

Mississippi—Same as Florida and Georgia. Nixon has lost some strength but still clings to 10 votes. Anything less would further erode his southern base.

New Jersey—Maybe the first favorite son state to crack. Sen. Case has wavered several times. He would lead most of the delegation into the Rockefeller camp. But the votes Nixon would get could put him close to top.

the top. Rockefeller wants Case to hold.

North Carolina—Evenly split, 11 and 11, between Nixon and Reagan with a few still undecided. Could shift either way.

Ohio—Favorite son Rhodes could be a king maker. He holds 56 delegate votes on the fence. Ohio is in a strong position to bargain.

Pennsylvania—The heart of Rockefeller strength. Anything less than 45 Pennsylvania votes would be a blow to Rockefeller.

Texas—If Nixon is to win on the first ballot, it should become clear at this point. The delegation is split 40 for Nixon, 16 for Reagan. If Texas could put Nixon over, it may unite. Any Nixon loss in Texas would indicate it's going into a second ballot.

Utah—Small state with big hopes. It is holding its 7 votes for Romney temporarily in the hope that Nixon will need just those votes to put him over the top.

There was heavy sentiment against Percy in the South, and he might have trouble getting his own Illinois delegation behind him because of his endorsement of Rockefeller.

Nixon "let us know he wasn't going to stuff a vice presidential running mate down the throat of the South or any place else," said Tom Stagg of Shreveport, La.

Loud, Strung, Clear

"The message was loud, strong and clear that the South wants Reagan on the Nixon ticket," said a North Carolina delegate after the meeting.

But California Gov. Ronald Reagan, now a formal candidate for the presidential nomination, has insisted that he wants no part of second place on any ticket.

Rhodes' own supporters passed out thousands of expensive color brochures extolling the governor's virtues. Ohioans admitted the move was intended to push Rhodes for the vice presidential nomination.

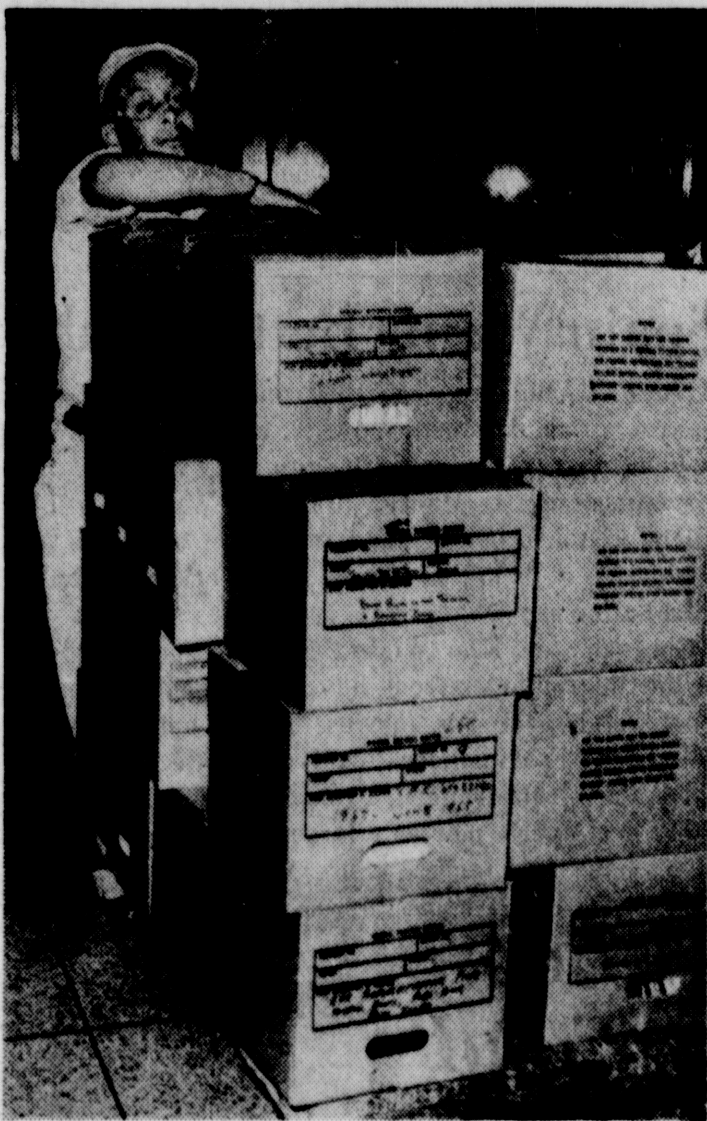

Texas continued to push their senator, John G. Tower, as a man who could help Nixon carry Texas and thwart third-party candidate George Wallace. The same argument was put forth by some Southerners for Sen. Howard H. Baker of Tennessee.

Penfield Cpl. Viet Victim, On 2nd Tour

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—David C. Crane, a Marine Lance corporal from suburban Penfield who was on his second tour of duty in South Vietnam, was killed in action Aug. 2, his parents said today.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack L. Crane said their son, who would have been 21 Aug. 18, graduated from Olympia High School in nearby Greece in 1966. He entered the Marine Corps in September of that year and served 13 months in Vietnam.

He spent a 30 day leave at home last May before returning to the war zone, they said. The Cranes live at 63 Sebastian Dr.

Dirksen Turns On The GOP Delegates

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—John Wayne, the elder statesman, gave way to Everett McKinley Dirksen, the wild prairie actor, and the Republican National Convention came alive last night.

Rising up from the tundra of tedium and the rhetoric of rigor mortis, it was Dirksen, United States senator, Senate GOP leader, Convention Platform Committee chairman, marigold musketeer, recording star, Dirksen's peerless apostle of the new politics of the age of Elizabeth I, who gave the delegates their first incisive lesson in the arts of elocution, execution and electrification (rural).

They began by giving him a roaring hand and he began by saying, "I accept the nomination." It was the first joke to emanate from this year's podium. Theater critics, allegedly Democrats, predicted it would not be the last.

The delegates laughed and continued to make noise. Dirksen turned alternately imperious, menacing, cajoling, bargaining. "Quiet!" he thundered, jowls quivering, silver rivulets of hair falling, like that of an aroused Zeus.

And still there was no quiet. He held up nine pounds of speech texts.

"If you'll be quiet for 45 minutes," said Everett McKinley Dirksen, the beguiling negotiator, "I'll throw these speeches anywhere you want me to throw them."

And then he did, nine pounds of speeches, right over the speaker's platform, into the hearts of the peasants. While it was not precisely clear whose speeches had been jettisoned, it was obvious Dirksen still had his.

Now the delegates were quiet and the Pekin Pericles, rising slowly from the Armageddon tones of his basso profundo, began. "In Philadelphia 181 years ago, far-seeing men fashioned us a revolutionary new government."

He dared Russia to knock the chip off his shoulder.

"A Soviet leader declaims that ours is a rotten, decadent society. God forbid our having to make the point but, should he try us, he'll quickly find out what Americans really are!"

Delegates Roar

The delegates roared. Membrane by membrane, Dirksen peeled off the skin of "The Great Society," stretching out each syllable of the phrase in a mockery of rubber.

"Oh, how cynical, how mocking that political slogan!... Never has an undeclared war embroiled America so long... Never our prestige so low, our alliances so weakened, our image so impaired... Never has the nation been so mired in debt... Now we've been rocketed to fiscal outer space..."

"Great Society indeed!... It is not a New Deal or a Fair Deal. It's just a straight-out Mideast. Humor it longer, and it will destroy what the Founding Fathers wrought."

Two Major GOP Questions At the Balloting Session

By GEORGE J. MARDER

MIAMI BEACH (UPI)—Two questions will be uppermost tonight when GOP convention delegates begin balloting on the presidential nomination.

Will the south stick with Richard M. Nixon or swing to Ronald Reagan?

Will the favorite sons—James A. Rhodes of Ohio, George Romney of Michigan, Frank Carlson of Kansas, Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Winthrop Rockefeller of Arkansas—hold out through the first ballot?

Key States

Here are some key states to watch when the roll is called:

Alabama—Latest information indicates a split of 14 favoring Nixon; 12 for Reagan. Anything less than the 14 for Nixon would spell trouble for the former vice president elsewhere in the south.

Colorado—Gov. John A. Love

is for Rockefeller but has been able to get only 3 delegates to follow his lead; Sens. Gordon Allott and Peter H. Dominick believe they can get 14 for Nixon. If Rockefeller is to gain, Colorado is a target.

Florida—The 34-vote delegation is trying to pressure Nixon into accepting a conservative running mate. Delegation has a gentleman's agreement to vote solid on first ballot either for Nixon or Reagan, except for Gov. Claude Kirk who is for Rockefeller. Other southern states will watch Florida.

Georgia—Almost a duplicate of Florida but stronger Nixon control. Anything less than 20 votes on the first ballot for Nixon will be disappointing to the former vice president.

Kansas—Rockefeller badly needs Carlson to remain as a favorite son at least to the end of the first ballot.

Maryland—Gov. Spiro T. Agnew split the 26-vote delegation in half when he quit his favorite son role and endorsed Nixon, the top, Rockefeller wants Case to hold.

Mississippi—Same as Florida and Georgia. Nixon has lost some strength but still clings to 10 votes. Anything less would further erode his southern base.

New Jersey—Maybe the first favorite son state to crack. Sen. Case has wavered several times. He would lead most of the delegation into the Rockefeller camp. But the votes Nixon those votes to put him over the

N. J. May Be First
Minnesota—Split delegation, 17 for Rockefeller, 9 for Nixon. At this point, politicians will be counting the votes carefully to see whether switches can put a man over.

North Carolina—Evenly split, 11 and 11, between Nixon and Reagan with a few still undecided. Could shift either way.

Ohio—Favorite son Rhodes could be a king maker. He holds 56 delegate votes on the fence. Ohio is in a strong position to bargain.

Pennsylvania—The heart of Rockefeller strength. Anything less than 45 Pennsylvania votes would be a blow to Rockefeller.

Texas—If Nixon is to win on the first ballot, it should become clear at this point. The delegation is split 40 for Nixon, 16 for Reagan. If Texas could put Nixon over, it may unite. Any Nixon loss in Texas would indicate it's going into a second ballot.

Utah—Small state with big hopes. It is holding its 7 votes for Romney temporarily in the delegation into the Rockefeller camp. But the votes Nixon those votes to put him over the

The Freeman—Editorially Speaking

Not Doctrine of Infallibility

Pope Paul's encyclical upholding the church's ancient rule that only one way to birth control is moral—sexual abstinence, either completely or during the woman's fertile period (the rhythm method)—was bound to touch off immediate and vocal reaction the world over. He ruled all other methods as immoral and sinful.

The criticism, both by Catholic and non-Catholics alike, was the more vociferous because inkings had been heard that there would be some modification of the rule. The disappointment at its strict confirmation was the much the greater.

For the half billion Catholics, there was hope in the fact that the Pope did not invoke the doctrine of infallibility for this ruling. While a spokesman said the encyclical is "authentic teaching and binding upon the faithful" he held out the possibility that "if some principle should become overwhelmingly accepted in the church, contraception may even be launched." He may be prophetic.

Spain Wants Better Shake

Spain is unhappy about her soon-to-expire 15-year defense agreements with the U.S., and intends to force new concessions before agreeing to any extension. Our new ambassador to Madrid, Robert F. Wagner, will be caught in the crossfire, and may soon conclude that the burden of being mayor of New York City wasn't so bad after all.

Generalissimo Franco now figures that developments on the international front have redounded to Spain's benefit and make her role as an ally more valuable than ever. For instance, the Russian fleet has penetrated the Mediterranean, France has quit NATO, and pro-Soviet Algeria now as a large naval base, formerly France's "You have bases on our soil and this puts us in danger of attack," Madrid tells Washington, with the plain implication that Spain's territorial security should be our responsibility. Also, Spain covets Gibraltar, and another condition of continuing the defense pacts will be U.S. support in the United Nations for Madrid's claim to the British crown colony and military base.

The deal was that if we could build air and naval bases on Spanish soil, we'd reciprocate by re-equipping Spain's armed forces and expending economic aid, which now totals $1.1 billion, some in gifts, some as loans. The economic aid is ended now. The military grants and loans totaled $1.7 billion and is continuing at a $10 million annual rate.

Our world policeman role is a costly one. But more than that, it doesn't prevent the protected nations from putting the squeeze on for a better bargain. Witness Spain.

Drew Pearson Says: An Old Bug-A-Boo-- Nixon Expense Fund

MIAMI — The question of ethical conduct has been played down at the GOP convention, but it has been talked about a lot in the smoke-filled rooms. Republicans are wondering just how much they the Democrats can make with Nixon's original $18,000 expense fund and the whopping $205,000 loan which his brother got, almost without security, and then defaulted on.

The press was generally kind to Nixon at the time, but some Democratic leaders have been looking forward to Nixon as the nominee so they can bring out the entire story and show how it set the pattern for Sen. Tom Dodd and others.

The laws are clear that no Senator can accept money in return for doing a favor for a constituent. This was what was never developed during the Nixon furor. It was what Dodd, the Democrat, did, but which the Senate failed to investigate. It was what Nixon, the Republican, did, but both the Senate and the press failed to investigate.

If there had been a investigation it would have been most revealing. It would have shown that Dana Smith, who collected the $18,000 fund, had a personal tax case before the Justice Department involving a $500,000 tax refund that he was demanding from the government. Nixon sent a member of his office staff to the Justice Department's tax division to apply pressure on Smith's behalf.

In the summer of 1952 the same Dana Smith lost $4,000 on a gambling spree in a Havana nightclub, gave his check for that amount to the nightclub owner, and then stopped payment on the check. The owner sued to collect, whereupon Nixon wrote the American ambassador in Cuba and asked that he intervene on behalf of Smith. The ambassador replied that protecting gamblers was not among his official duties.

Nixon's Conflict Record
Among the 76 millionaires who kicked in to the Nixon fund were 15 oilmen, 11 real estate executives and a cross section of bankers, milk-products men and munitions and armaments contractors. All had heavy stakes in legislation on which Nixon voted. On issues of concern to the oilmen who contributed to his fund, Nixon voted their way down the line. Against cutting the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, for the oil companies' basing-point bill (facilitating price-fixing in monopoly-dominated industries and promoting concentration of industry), and for the tidelands bill under his Senate frank on behalf of the oil companies.

Similarly, Nixon voted on housing bills in a way that obviously pleased his fund contributors from the building and real estate industry—in favor of reducing the number of public housing units provided (from 50,000 to 5,000 units in one bill), in favor of speeding up the expiration of wartime rent controls by four months, in favor of giving local communities the option to impose or lift rent controls around military installations and defense plants, and in favor of an amendment he himself introduced to a defense bill in 1951 aimed at sidetracking public housing. Some of his votes, it is safe to say, contributed to the decay of big cities only now being recognized as a national crisis.

None of this was investigated.

Anderson Testifies

The only man who raised the question of ethics publicly at Miami was Jack Anderson, who did most of the work in probing the conduct of Sen. Dodd and who has just written a book, "The Case Against Congress."

Jack testified before a subcommittee of the platform committee under the chairmanship of Gov. Louie Nunn of Kentucky. Twenty prominent Republicans sat behind a table listening to the testimony. They were courteous but noncommittal.

"If the Republican party is ever to get its platform enacted into law," Anderson testified, "it must be through a Congress that plugs along on one cylinder in the multi-cylinder age."

"The American people can hardly be expected to make sacrifices, overcome prejudices, and act nobly when their elected leaders set an example of pettiness, selfishness and irresponsibility."

Anderson called the roll of senior Congressmen, most of them committee chairmen who sat at the helm from Sen. Dodd, still chairman of the Juvenile Delinquency Committee and supposed to be a model for American youth; to Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., whose "record of alcoholism would make him ineligible to empty waste paper baskets at the Pentagon."

"Aren't those all Democrats?" asked Gov. Nunn happily.

"Yes," replied Anderson, "but the chairman of your platform committee, Sen. Everett Dirksen, led the Senate fight against Congressional reform."

"He owns shares in Chicago's First Federal Savings and Loan, but neglected to disclose this when he voted against the truth-in-lending bill which the savings and loan industry opposed."

Anderson went into more detail about the "delightful and disarming Dirksen" and his "dismaying habit of championing the Washington interests of clients that retain his Peoria law firm."

The platform panel listened carefully. Later they went into a closed-door session to polish up the rough draft previously written by their chairman, Everett Dirksen. The ritual of hearings had been held. Tradition had been satisfied. The platform, largely written in advance, could be revealed. Nothing about ethical conduct would be done.

Muscles We Haven't Even Used Yet

David Lawrence Says

GOP Platform Contains Something for Everyone

Unity instead of divisiveness is the Republican Party objective. It has been expressed in such broad and yet politically meaningful terms in the party platform just formulated that Nixon or Rockefeller or Reagan could accept every plank without embarrassment. The document doesn't even use the words "Democratic Party" in its criticisms, but speaks negatively only about "The Administration."

The Republican nominee will not be prevented in anyway, of course, from amplifying or interpreting what is contained in the platform. Its framers have astutely phrased the planks to last at least through the campaign.

The Vietnam War plank was the most difficult of all, because contingencies—such as a cease-fire—could develop during the campaign which would outdate some points in the plank. The Republicans merely say that they want the South Vietnamese people to take more of the responsibility for participation in the war, and that the United States desires "neither peace at any price nor a camouflaged surrender of legitimate United States or allied interests."

So far as fighting the war itself is concerned, the Republicans naturally claim that grave errors of strategy were made and that a "prolonged war of attrition" has resulted. There is one statement, moreover, which has in it considerable significance. The foreign-policy plank of the platform says: "No longer will foreign aid activities range free of our foreign policy. Nations hostile to this country will receive no assistance from the United States. We will not provide aid of any kind to countries which aid and abet the war efforts of North Vietnam."

"Only when communist nations prove by actual deeds that they genuinely seek world peace and will live in harmony with the rest of the world, will we support expansion of east-west-trade."

This is a warning to the Soviet Union and to Red China. In fact, the platform says flatly that, "under existing conditions, we cannot favor recognition of Communist China or its admission to the United Nations."

On the question of future defense, the Republican platform unhesitatingly declares that the administration has had the singular notion that "standing still" in armament building would bring peace. It adds:

"Not retention of American superiority but parity with the Soviet Union has been made the controlling doctrine in many critical areas. We have frittered away superior military capabilities, enabling the Soviets to narrow their defense gap, in some areas to outstrip us, and to move to cancel our lead entirely by the early seventies."

These are not issues that will in themselves be discussed extensively in the campaign. But the overall impression which the platform seeks to give is that the Republicans, if successful in the November election, are not going to appease the communists or stop spending whatever is necessary to maintain the safety and security of the United States in the armament race.

On domestic affairs, the platform provides that the new administration will be firm in its attitude toward law enforcement and will work in co-operation with the states and cities. But there is no indication that the federal government under a Republican administration will move in to put down local disorders.

The platform says: "We simultaneously support decisive action to quell civil disorders relying primarily on state and local governments to deal with these conditions."

The emphasis rather is on federal aid in rebuilding the cities, improving transportation, health and education, and creating jobs.

The Republicans in their platform have gone on record as against wage and price controls. Although the platform has some general comments on the importance of more congressional restrictions on federal expenditures and contains a promise to "restore fiscal integrity and sound monetary policies," it does not reveal any formula by which such objectives can be attained. What the platform makers have done is to write a declaration that they can use in the campaign to promise better living conditions and economic stability in America. But economists will wonder whether a healthy economy can be achieved as long as political considerations are so closely related to government spending.

A Hippy—Yippy Cruise

There was a little light left. The skyscrapers of New York resembled a forest fire when the trunks are bright with embers. Confetti and streamers of colored paper floated down the steel sides of the 20,000-ton liner Independence. An elderly woman, confused in the din of departure whistles, asked which way the ship would go. A teen-age boy pointed to the sky. "That way, lady," he said. "Away out."

This is a hippy-yippy cruise. Captain Charles E. Reilly, white-haired master of the Independence, stands on the wing bridge and orders starboard engines slow astern.

Down the sides of his ship he sees a 60-foot orange sunrise with 10-foot eyelashes. Radiating along the hull and up over the lifeboats are yellow and raspberry sunrises.

Ship travel began to die in 1960, when the big jets arrived. Everybody flies except the Duke of Windsor and Jackie Gleason. Ship travel was always a formalized bore to me, like strolling the promenade deck ten times, engaging in a vicious duel of shuffleboard, and sipping beef tea in a deck chair.

The Sacramento River and the Hudson are full of rusting American ships. The Queen

Mary is gone. The Queen Elizabeth follows soon. American Export-Isbrandtsen Lines lost $5,000,000 last year on three ships—Atlantic, Constitution and Independence. Others are headed for the shipbreakers. The public weighed six days on a ship against six hours on a plane and the wings won. Getting there was not half the fun.

William Fugazy, President of The Diners Club, thought that a wild Go-Go ship could recapture the romance of the sea. He selected the Independence for the experiment. Jakob Isbrandtsen, president of the shipping line, listened to Fugazy and spent

$3,500,000 redecorating the liner.

Redecorate is hardly the word. The 400-foot sunrises on both sides of the hull have panicked other ships at sea. When the Independence is in port, it's still away out. Men's and Ladies' rooms are marked Bonnie and Clyde. On the bottom of one of the two swimming pools, the word "Splash!" is in eight-foot letters. There are orchestras and rock 'n' roll which thump, twang and blare until 4 a.m.

Outward bound, the Independence passed the Statue of Liberty flipping her scuppers. Other ships spotted the orange sunrise and whistled like street-corner hoodlums. Aboard there was a Get Acquainted Party for those who travel alone. It's called Single-Oh. The younger set did its fertilization dance on the aft deck under colored lights.

The mothers and fathers were in The Thirties Club sipping scotch and laughing at comics of the prohibition era. The little ones were in a movie house on C deck whooping it up at a horse opera called Banderero!

There is another thing which makes this ship newsworthy. It is the first to become a hotel. Normally, the price of a ticket entitles one to passage, plus all that one can eat. The price of a ticket on the Independence averages $140 for a seven-day cruise to San Juan, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, the Virgin Islands, and back to New York. Meals are priced separately and the voyager has his choice of restaurants from an intimate place called the Gourmet Room to a hot dog and coffee place called The Seven Seas.

It's a one class ship, so that those who share four bunks in one stateroom on a low fare basis are permitted to use the same swimming pools and night clubs as those who spend $360 for a stateroom on the sun deck. The goal, obviously, is to tempt families to sign on for a one-week Caribbean cruise who have never gone to sea before. The Go-Go aura is designed to attract the young, while still cultivating the parents on another level of entertainment.

If this works out—there are 135 more passengers on this trip than the Independence averaged under the old system—other ships are going to be converted into floating hotels. The staid Constitution, on which I sailed to Mediterranean ports 12 years ago, is going to have a huge head of a woman painted on her bows with the hair streaming all the way aft on the hull.

Fugazy is already studying the contours of the elegant liner United States, as the shipping world studies him and his wild notions. If it fails, the luxury liner becomes a museum piece. If it succeeds, the seas will be dotted with hippy shooies designed to terrify the monsters of the deep.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Not the Minority Party

MIAMI BEACH. — Richard M. Nixon finds it utterly preposterous for the Democrats, publicists or anyone to persist in calling the Republican a minority party. He sees this constant propaganda as part of the "can't win" pitch pursued partly in ignorance but also as a powerful brain-washing technique.

The nonsense, he insists, is based merely on registrations. He gives these the heave-ho, remarks that this is like multiplying apples and oranges in a befogged computer and produces some practical, earthy facts.

In short, if the 47 per cent Democratic versus 27 per cent Republican registrations really mean anything, why hold elections at all?

Mr. Nixon points out that Democrat registrations outnumber the Republicans by about 3 to 2 in his native California. President Johnson won the state in 1964 by 1.3 million votes. Yet George L. Murphy won his Senate seat by 200,000 votes on the Republican ticket. And within two years Ronald Reagan took the California governorship for the Republican by more than a million. This was a turnover of more than 2.3 million votes in our most populous state since the LBJ landslide, although the California pro-Democrat registration advantage remained practically unchanged.

Then, revving up his protest against calling the Republicans a minority party, he points to the 1966 nationwide elections. The aggregate vote of Republican Senatorial candidates, the pro-Democrat registrations notwithstanding, exceeded the Democratic vote in 33 of the 50 states. Exclusive of Arkansas (Sen. John L. McClellan unopposed), the final national figures were 13,654,734 Republican votes against 12,917,157 Democratic.

In the 35 gubernatorial elections the Republican votes totaled 21,165,916; Democratic, 18,696,213; minor parties and write-ins, 1,584,394.

Mr. Nixon is deeply disturbed by the fundamental and frightening fact of American politics that a full third of our eligible voters do not vote. Asked about reducing the age limit from 21 to 18, he contributes the startling observation that only about 50 per cent of today's 21-29 age bracket have even taken the trouble to register.

Then comes the phenomenon which Dr. George Gallup has publicly confirmed: Among those of all ages who are registered but who fail to vote, the Democrats—year after year—far outnumber the Republicans. This finding is a previously undiscovered factor in the registration nonsense.

Mr. Nixon further estimates that in terms of the G.O.P. structure, the Republicans have at least a 25 per cent better chance to win the White House in 1968 than he did in 1960.

He's not even counting the Texas bow-out of Democratic Gov. John B. Connally on the Democratic ticket there, which he regards as very important. The 1966 G.O.P. winning of the governorship here in Florida for the first time in 96 years, or the 1967 winning of Kentucky's governorship for the first time in 24 years. These are all pluses on top of the Nixon comparison.

John F. Kennedy took the Presidency from Mr. Nixon by less than one-half of one per cent of the popular vote; by half-a-vote per precinct. As the Republican candidate Mr. Nixon got 49.55 per cent of the popular vote and lost by only 118,550 votes out of 68,336,094 cast, substantially less than the population of a few Chicago wards or of Trenton, N.J.

When Mr. Nixon ran in 1960 the Republicans had only 17 governorships and both of the legislative houses in only six states. Today the G.O.P. has more than half of all the governorships—26. These represent states with 58 per cent of the nation's population and 302 Electoral College votes. Only 270 are needed to elect the 1968 Presidential ticket.

In addition, the G.O.P. now controls 20 state legislatures instead of six, but houses in New Jersey having most lately come into the fold.

In the 1966 election the Republicans gained three Senate seats, 47 House seats and 10 governorships, but it also gained 677 state legislature seats. These are close to the grass roots, and winning them more than recouped the loss of 529 in the 1964 Johnson landslide.

Mr. Nixon not only exactly forecast these governorships and Congressional wins but also came within a few of predicting the legislative seats as well. It was an astoundingly accurate analysis, now largely forgotten, made over nationwide TV on election eve that confirmed Mr. Nixon's title as demonstratively the best political forecaster in the business.

The Freeman—Editorially Speaking

Not Doctrine of Infallibility

Pope Paul's encyclical upholding the church's ancient rule that only one way to birth control is moral—sexual abstinence, either completely or during the woman's fertile period (the rhythm method)—was bound to touch off immediate and vocal reaction the world over. He ruled all other methods as immoral and sinful.

The criticism, both by Catholic and non-Catholics alike, was the more vociferous because inklings had been heard that there would be some modification of the rule. The disappointment at its strict confirmation was the much the greater.

For the half billion Catholics, there was hope in the fact that the Pope did not invoke the doctrine of infallibility for this ruling. While a spokesman said the encyclical is "authentic teaching and binding upon the faithful" he held out the possibility that "if some principle should become overwhelmingly accepted in the church, contraception may even be launched." He may be prophetic.

Spain Wants Better Shake

Spain is unhappy about her soon-to-expire 15-year defense agreements with the U.S., and intends to force new concessions before agreeing to any extension. Our new ambassador to Madrid, Robert F. Wagner, will be caught in the crossfire, and may soon conclude that the burden of being mayor of New York City wasn't so bad after all.

Generalissimo Franco now figures that developments on the international front have redounded to Spain's benefit and make her role as an ally more valuable than ever. For instance, the Russian fleet has penetrated the Mediterranean, France has quit NATO, and pro-Soviet Algeria now as a large naval base, formerly

France's "You have bases on our soil and this puts us in danger of attack," Madrid tells Washington, with the plain implication that Spain's territorial security should be our responsibility. Also, Spain covets Gibraltar, and another condition of continuing the defense pacts will be U.S. support in the United Nations for Madrid's claim to the British crown colony and military base.

The deal was that if we could build air and naval bases on Spanish soil, we'd reciprocate by re-equipping Spain's armed forces and expending economic aid, which now totals $1.1 billion, some in gifts, some as loans. The economic aid is ended now. The military grants and loans totaled $1.7 billion and is continuing at a $10 million annual rate.

Our world policeman role is a costly one. But more than that, it doesn't prevent the protected nations from putting the squeeze on for a better bargain. Witness Spain.

Drew Pearson Says: An Old Bug-A-Boo—Nixon Expense Fund

MIAMI — The question of ethical conduct has been played down at the GOP convention, but it has been talked about a lot in the smoke-filled rooms. Republicans are wondering just how much they the Democrats can make with Nixon's original $18,000 expense fund and the whopping $205,000 loan which his brother got, almost without security, and then defaulted on.

The press was generally kind to Nixon at the time, but some Democratic leaders have been looking forward to Nixon as the nominee so they can bring out the entire story and show how it set the pattern for Sen. Tom Dodd and others.

The laws are clear that no Senator can accept money in return for doing a favor for a constituent. This was what was never developed during the Nixon furor. It was what Dodd, the Democrat, did, but which the Senate failed to investigate. It was what Nixon, the Republican, did, but both the Senate and the press failed to investigate.

If there had been a investigation it would have been most revealing. It would have shown that Dana Smith, who collected the $18,000 fund, had a personal tax case before the Justice Department involving a $500,000 tax refund that he was demanding from the government. Nixon sent a member of his office staff to the Justice Department's tax division to apply pressure on Smith's behalf.

In the summer of 1952 the same Dana Smith lost $4,000 on a gambling spree in a Havana nightclub, gave his check for that amount to the nightclub owner, and then stopped payment on the check. The owner sued to collect, whereupon Nixon wrote the American ambassador in Cuba and asked that he intervene on behalf of Smith. The ambassador replied that protecting gamblers was not among his official duties.

Nixon's Conflict Record
Among the 76 millionaires who kicked in to the Nixon fund were 15 oilmen, 11 real estate executives and a cross section of bankers, milk-products men and munitions and armaments contractors. All had heavy stakes in legislation on which Nixon voted. On issues of concern to the oilmen who contributed to his fund, Nixon voted their way down the line: Against cutting the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance, for the oil companies' basing-point bill (facilitating price-fixing in monopoly-dominated industries and promoting concentration of industry), and for the tidelands bill under his Senate frank on behalf of the oil companies.

Similarly, Nixon voted on housing bills in a way that obviously pleased his fund contributors from the building and real estate industry—in favor of reducing the number of public housing units provided (from 50,000 to 5,000 units in one bill), in favor of speeding up the expiration of wartime rent controls by four months, in favor of giving local communities the option to impose or lift rent controls around military installations and defense plants, and in favor of an amendment he himself introduced to a defense bill in 1951 aimed at sidetracking public housing. Some of his votes, it is safe to say, contributed to the decay of big cities only now being recognized as a national crisis.

None of this was investigated.

Anderson Testifies

The only man who raised the question of ethics publicly at Miami was Jack Anderson, who did most of the work in probing the conduct of Sen. Dodd and who has just written a book, "The Case Against Congress."

Jack testified before a subcommittee of the platform committee under the chairmanship of Gov. Louie Nunn of Kentucky. Twenty prominent Republicans sat behind a table listening to the testimony. They were courteous but noncommittal. "If the Republican party is ever to get its platform enacted into law," Anderson testified, "it must be through a Congress that plugs along on one cylinder in the multi-cylinder age."

"The American people can hardly be expected to make sacrifices, overcome prejudices, and act nobly when their elected leaders set an example of pettiness, selfishness and irresponsibility."

Anderson called the roll of senior Congressmen, most of them committee chairmen who sat at the helm—from Sen. Dodd, still chairman of the Juvenile Delinquency Committee and supposed to be a model for American youth; to Rep. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., whose "record of alcoholism would make him ineligible to empty waste paper baskets at the Pentagon."

"Aren't those all Democrats?" asked Gov. Nunn happily.

"Yes," replied Anderson, "but the chairman of your platform committee, Sen. Everett Dirksen, led the Senate fight against Congressional reform."

"He owns shares in Chicago's First Federal Savings and Loan, but neglected to disclose this when he voted against the truth-in-lending bill which the savings and loan industry opposed."

Anderson went into more detail about the "delightful and disarming Dirksen" and his "disarming habit of championing the Washington interests of clients that retain his Peoria law firm."

The platform panel listened carefully. Later they went into a closed-door session to polish up the rough draft previously written by their chairman, Everett Dirksen. The ritual of hearings had been held. Tradition had been satisfied. The platform, largely written in advance, could be revealed. Nothing about ethical conduct would be done.

Ten and Twenty Years Ago

Aug. 7, 1948—A crackdown on a large lottery operation, netted state police 52 arrests including one in Ulster.

John J. Byrne, water department superintendent, lifted a ban on sprinkling with the provision that it be limited to two hours.

Nancy Carroll, stage and screen star, was appearing in Watch Out for Moonlight at Woodstock Playhouse.

Aug. 7, 1958—The residence of Attorney and Mrs. Michael Nardone of Milton Avenue, Highland, was raided by burglars who besides the several thousand dollars worth of cash and jewelry, took the Nardone watchdog to boot. Reports from stores participating in the August Sales Days in the uptown business section indicated that customer traffic in the morning was unusually heavy.

A Bomarc missile was launched in Cape Canaveral, Fla., triggered by a button pushed 1,500 miles away by IBM personnel manning an electronic computer in Kingston.

Carl Van Bramer, 56, of 543 Delaware Avenue, was in critical condition at the Kingston Hospital as the result of being knocked down by a wagonload of corn.

Muscles We Haven't Even Used Yet

David Lawrence Says
GOP Platform Contains Something for Everyone

Unity instead of divisiveness is the Republican Party objective. It has been expressed in such broad and yet politically meaningful terms in the party platform just formulated that Nixon or Rockefeller or Reagan could accept every plank without embarrassment. The document doesn't even use the words "Democratic Party" in its criticisms, but speaks negatively only about "The Administration."

The Republican nominee will not be prevented in anyway, of course, from amplifying or interpreting what is contained in the platform. Its framers have astutely phrased the planks to last at least through the campaign.

The Vietnam War plank was the most difficult of all, because contingencies—such as a cease-fire—could develop during the campaign which would outdate some points in the plank. The Republicans merely say that they want the South Vietnamese people to take more of the responsibility for participation in the war, and that the United States desires "neither peace at any price nor a camouflaged surrender of legitimate United States or allied interests."

So far as fighting the war itself is concerned, the Republicans naturally claim that grave errors of strategy were made and that a "prolonged war of attrition" has resulted.

There is one statement, moreover, which has in it considerable significance. The foreign-policy plank of the platform says: "No longer will foreign aid activities range free of our foreign policy. Nations hostile to this country will receive no assistance from the United States. We will not provide aid of any kind to countries which aid and abet the war efforts of North Vietnam."

"Only when communist nations prove by actual deeds that they genuinely seek world peace and will live in harmony with the rest of the world, will we support expansion of east-west trade."

This is a warning to the Soviet Union and to Red China. In fact, the platform says flatly that, "under existing conditions, we cannot favor recognition of Communist China or its admission to the United Nations."

On the question of future defense, the Republican platform unhesitatingly declares that the administration has had the singular notion that "standing still" in armament building would bring peace. It adds:

"Not retention of American superiority but parity with the Soviet Union has been made the controlling doctrine in many critical areas. We have frittered away superior military capabilities, enabling the Soviets to narrow their defense gap, in some areas to outstrip us, and to move to cancel our lead entirely by the early seventies."

These are not issues that will in themselves be discussed extensively in the campaign. But the over-all impression which the platform seeks to give is that the Republicans, if successful in the November election, are not going to appease the communists or stop spending whatever is necessary to maintain the safety and security of the United States in the armament race.

On domestic affairs, the platform provides that the new administration will be firm in its attitude toward law enforcement and will work in co-operation with the states and cities. But there is no indication that the federal government under a Republican administration will move in to put down local disorders.

The platform says: "We simultaneously support decisive action to quell civil disorders relying primarily on state and local governments to deal with these conditions."

The emphasis rather is on federal aid in rebuilding the cities, improving transportation, health and education, and creating jobs.

The Republicans in their platform have gone on record as against wage and price controls. Although the platform has some general comments on the importance of more congressional restrictions on federal expenditures and contains a promise to "restore fiscal integrity and sound monetary policies," it does not reveal any formula by which such objectives can be attained. What the platform makers have done is to write a declaration that they can use in the campaign to promise better living conditions and economic stability in America. But economists will wonder whether a healthy economy can be achieved as long as political considerations are so closely related to government spending.

A Hippy—Yippy Cruise

There was a little light left. The skyscrapers of New York resembled a forest fire when the trunks are bright with embers. Confetti and streamers of colored paper floated down the steel sides of the 20,000-ton liner Independence. An elderly woman, confused in the din of departure whistles, asked which way the ship would go. A teen-age boy pointed to the sky. "That way, lady," he said. "Away out."

This is a hippy-yippy cruise. Captain Charles E. Reilly, white-haired master of the Independence, stands on the wing bridge and orders starboard engines slow astern.

Down the sides of his ship he sees a 60-foot orange sunrise with 10-foot eyelashes. Radiating along the hull and up over the lifeboats are yellow and raspberry sunrises. Ship travel began to die in 1960, when the big jets arrived. Everybody flies except the Duke of Windsor and Jackie Gleason. Ship travel was always a formalized bore to me, like strolling the promenade deck ten times, engaging in a vicious duel of shuffleboard, and sipping beef tea in a deck chair.

The Sacramento River and the Hudson are full of rusting American ships. The Queen

Mary is gone. The Queen Elizabeth follows soon. American Export-Isbrandtsen Lines lost $5,000,000 last year on three ships—Atlantic, Constitution and Independence. Others are headed for the shipbreakers. The public weighed six days on a ship against six hours on a plane and the wings won. Getting there was not half the fun.

William Fugazy, President of The Diners Club, thought that a wild Go-Go ship could recapture the romance of the sea. He selected the Independence for the experiment. Jakob Isbrandtsen, president of the shipping line, listened to Fugazy and spent

$3,500,000 redecorating the liner.

Redecorate is hardly the word. The 400-foot sunrises on both sides of the hull have panicked other ships at sea. When the Independence is in port, it's still away out. Men's and Ladies' rooms are marked Bonnie and Clyde. On the bottom of one of the two swimming pools, the word "Splash!" is in eight-foot letters. There are orchestras and rock n' roll which thump, twang and blare until 4 a.m.

Outward bound, the Independence passed the Statue of Liberty flipping her scuppers. Other ships spotted the orange sunrise and whistled like street-corner hoodlums. Aboard there was a Get Acquainted Party for those who travel alone. It's called Single-Oh. The younger set did its fertilization dance on the aft deck under colored lights.

The mothers and fathers were in The Thirties Club sipping scotch and laughing at comics of the prohibition era. The little ones were in a movie house on C deck whooping it up at a horse opera called Bandidero!

There is another thing which makes this ship newsworthy. It is the first to become a hotel. Normally, the price of a ticket entitles one to passage, plus all that one can eat. The price of a ticket on the Independence averages $140 for a seven-day cruise to San Juan, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands and back to New York. Meals are priced separately and the voyager has his choice of restaurants from an intimate place called the Gourmet Room to a hot dog and coffee place called The Seven Seas.

It's a one class ship, so that those who share four bunks in one stateroom on a low fare basis are permitted to use the same swimming pools and night clubs as those who spend $360 for a stateroom on the sun deck. The goal, obviously, is to tempt families to sign on for a one-week Caribbean cruise who have never gone to sea before. The Go-Go aura is designed to attract the young, while still cultivating the parents on another level of entertainment.

If this works out—there are 135 more passengers on this trip than the Independence averaged under the old system—other ships are going to be converted into floating hotels. The staid Constitution, on which I sailed to Mediterranean ports 13 years ago, is going to have a huge head of a woman painted on her bows with the hair streaming all the way aft on the hull.

Fugazy is already studying the contours of the elegant liner United States, as the shipping world studies him and his wild notions. If it fails, the luxury liner becomes a museum piece. If it succeeds, the seas will be dotted with hippy shippers designed to terrify the monsters of the deep.

pluses on top of the Nixon comparison.

John F. Kennedy took the Presidency from Mr. Nixon by less than one-half of one per cent of the popular vote; by half-a-vote per precinct. As the Republican candidate Mr. Nixon got 49.55 per cent of the popular vote and lost by only 118,550 votes out of 68,336,094 cast, substantially less than the population of a few Chicago wards or of Trenton, N.J.

When Mr. Nixon ran in 1960 the Republicans had only 17 governorships and both of the legislative houses in only six states. Today the G.O.P. has more than half of all the governorships—26. These represent states with 58 per cent of the nation's population and 302 Electoral College votes. Only 270 are needed to elect the 1968 Presidential ticket.

In addition, the G.O.P. now controls 20 state legislatures instead of six, but houses in New Jersey having most lately come into the fold.

In the 1966 election the Republicans gained three Senate seats, 47 House seats and 10 governorships, but it also gained 677 state legislative seats. These are close to the grass roots, and winning them more than recouped the loss of 529 in the 1964 Johnson landslide.

Mr. Nixon not only exactly forecast these governorships and Congressional wins but also came within a few of predicting the legislative seats as well. It was an astoundingly accurate analysis, now largely forgotten, made over nationwide TV on election eve that confirmed Mr. Nixon's title as demonstratively the best political forecaster in the business.

Henry J. Taylor Says

Not the Minority Party

MIAMI BEACH. — Richard M. Nixon finds it utterly preposterous for the Democrats, publicists or anyone to persist in calling the Republican a minority party. He sees this constant propaganda as part of the "can't win" pitch pursued partly in ignorance but also as a powerful brainwashing technique.

The nonsense, he insists, is based merely on registrations. He gives these the heave-ho, remarks that this is like multiplying apples and oranges in a befogged computer and produces some practical, earthy facts.

In short, if the 47 per cent Democratic versus 27 per cent Republican registrations really mean anything, why hold elections at all?

Mr. Nixon points out that Democrat registrations outnumber the Republicans by about 3 to 2 in his native California. President Johnson won the state in 1964 by 1.3 million votes. Yet George L. Murphy won his Senate seat by 200,000 votes on the Republican ticket. And within two years Ronald Reagan took the California governorship for the Republican by more than a million. This was a turnover of more than 2.3 million votes in our most populous state since the LBJ landslide, although the California pro-Democrat registration advantage remained practically unchanged.

Then, revving up his protest against calling the Republicans a minority party, he points to the 1966 nationwide elections. The aggregate vote of Republican Senatorial candidates, the pro-Democrat registrations notwithstanding, exceeded the Democratic vote in 33 of the 50 states. Exclusive of Arkansas (Sen. John L. McClellan opposed), the final national figures were 13,634,734 Republican votes against 12,917,157 Democratic.

In the 35 gubernatorial elections the Republican votes totaled 21,165,916; Democratic, 18,696,213; minor parties and write-ins, 1,584,394.

Mr. Nixon is deeply disturbed by the fundamental and frightening fact of American politics that a full third of our eligible voters do not vote. Asked about reducing the age limit from 21 to 18, he contributes the startling observation that only about 50 per cent of today's 21-29 age bracket have even taken the trouble to register.

Then comes the phenomenon which Dr. George Gallup has publicly confirmed: Among those of all ages who are registered but who fail to vote, the Democrats—year after year—far outnumber the Republicans. This finding is a previously undiscovered factor in the registration nonsense.

Mr. Nixon further estimates that in terms of the G.O.P. structure, the Republicans have at least a 25 per cent better chance to win the White House in 1968 than he did in 1960.

He's not even counting the Texas bow-out of Democratic Gov. John B. Connally on the Democratic ticket there, which he regards as very important. The 1966 G.O.P. winning of the governorship here in Florida for the first time in 96 years, or the 1967 winning of Kentucky's governorship for the first time in 24 years. These are all

24 All Men or None

There is no Negro problem in America; there has never been a Negro problem in America—the problem of race in America is a white problem.

—Lerone Bennett Jr.

For a minority, the Negro has played a disproportionately large role in American history. As an "invisible man," he has been the cause of a Civil War, at least three constitutional amendments and uncounted laws.

What of the future?

The solution to what Swedish sociologist Gunnar Myrdal in 1943 called "An American Dilemma" and what the Commission on Civil Disorders in 1968 identified as the basic issue in the racial crisis will not come easily.

Not until the word "Negro" has dropped from the vocabulary, or has become just another adjective like "redhead" or "brunette" or "fat" or "thin," and every man is judged as an individual and is permitted to develop his potential as an individual to the fullest, will the American dilemma have been solved.

Few whites can appreciate the extent of racial prejudice in America. John Griffin, author of "Black Like Me," is one. Using chemicals to darken his skin, he posed as a Negro and found himself "walking neck-deep in the stenchiest swamp imaginable; and it was too difficult. I gave up."

"What does the Negro want?"

Not for white America to "grant" him certain rights, but for America to recognize at long last that those rights are his simply by virtue of his being a human being.

There may be more violence, for history has persuaded some black men that only violence or the threat of violence has ever made the white man look at them and begin to take their grievances seriously.

But the Negro must remember, before succumbing to the preachments of black racists or black separatists, that the fundamental decency of Americans is, as it has been in the past, his greatest ally. America's commitment to democracy is his real power. The conscience-prodding ideals of the Declaration of Independence are his real weapon.

Growing numbers of white Americans are coming to realize that those ideals must become reality to "The Last American," the Negro, or they can be reality to no American.

Said Martin Luther King: "Our destiny is tied up with America's destiny. Before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were here... If the inexpressible cruelties of slavery could not stop us, the opposition we now face will surely fail. We will win our freedom."

It is as simple, and as enormous, as that.

The Convention City Contrasts

Editor's note: H. Clark Bell, Woodstock attorney, is attending the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Florida.

His exclusive, on-the-spot coverage of convention events, follows.

By H. CLARK BELL

It takes an hour and 45 minutes to drive from Woodstock to Newark Airport. It takes two hours to fly from Newark to Miami. Once there it takes another two hours to drive from the airport to the Americana Hotel where the New York State Delegation checked in, a distance of 14 miles.

As you move down Arthur Godfrey Drive you see professional billboard. "You're on the right road, Nixon is the one."

The Rockefeller and Reagan signs are makeshift structures on posts and poles. In Miami Beach when you move through the Nixon and Rockefeller campaign headquarters it becomes immediately apparent that the Nixon operation has the touch of professionalism and leads you to believe that a great deal of advance planning and organization to get this detail has gone into the Nixon presidential drive.

The Rockefeller and Reagan campaigns are more explosive in nature with great numbers of young people participating. The contrast is striking in this convention city especially when you realize that only certified delegates will vote tonight.

The Miami Beach convention hall is huge and as you move about looking at the name tags it becomes apparent that there are many voting delegates who are not at the convention hall. They're partying it up at the hotels and nightclubs. They seem to feel there are lots of pet terms running through the cocktail parties and receptions at the convention hall such as "erosion of delegate strength," "slippage" and "driftage."

Rockefeller and Reagan supporters are using these terms constantly and they say Nixon is the victim of so-called slippage.

The Nixon people stand firm and say if there is any such erosion, they are unaware of it. The truth must lie somewhere in between.

National Chairman Ray Bliss, also of Ohio, also apparently leans toward Richard M. Nixon but he apparently does not wish to see the Ohio delegation released. He fears the national image of the party will be painted as a moderate to conservative controlled convention. He apparently wishes to throw the Ohio delegation in on a second or third ballot. This, of course, results in extreme pressure being placed on all the favorite son delegations.

Bliss also, reportedly, has been feeling out the prospects of a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket which would have national appeal to all segments of the political spectrum. Rocky for the cities on the eastern seaboard, Nixon for the South, Midwest and West.

Anything can happen. There can be erosion of delegate strength, slippage, driftage or

USE FOR RATS

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The Haffkine Institute has evolved a plan for the eradication of rats, which eat away 10 per cent of India's foodgrains.

It has advertised that rat products can now be sold commercially. Rat meat is best for pets like cats and dogs. Rat skin is very useful for wrist watch straps, kid gloves and ladies' purses.

what have you. It's not a question of the possibility of Ray Bliss' dream ticket of Nixon and what's probable. And don't lose Rockefeller.

Today all delegations, especially the key ones of Ohio, often and long and the pressure Kansas, Michigan, Pennsylvania and negotiating will be intense.

Long Trailing

By RAE F. AMOS

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton wrested the senatorial nomination from U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long in the Missouri Democratic primary.

Eagleton, 39, issued a victory statement early today, secure in his belief that his 18,000 vote lead could not be overturned in the few remaining precincts still to report from the Tuesday primary.

"It appears that Mr. Eagleton is the winner," Long said from his Larksville, Mo., home. But he refused to concede the election. He said he wanted to study the returns today before making any additional statements.

With 293 precincts left to report, Eagleton carried a 18,005 margin over Long. The vote was 202,302 to 183,549. Former Undersecretary of the Treasury W. True Davis of St. Joseph was running third with 158,175.

Long was thought to be a strong candidate this year, until Life magazine accused him of improperly splitting legal fees with St. Louis attorney Morris Shenker, chief counsel for jailed Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa.

Life also accused Long of using his Senate subcommittee investigation into wiretapping as a tool to help Hoffa. Long denied the charges, calling the magazine story a "smear" led by the Internal Revenue Service, which Long had vigorously attacked.

Another Life story, accusing Long of stalling a St. Louis slum housing project by having it redesigned for gas instead of electrical heating to help the Electrical Union, hit the stands less than two weeks before the election.

What of the future?

The solution to what Swedish sociologist Gunnar Myrdal in 1943 called "An American Dilemma" and what the Commission on Civil Disorders in 1968 identified as the basic issue in the racial crisis will not come easily.

Not until the word "Negro" has dropped from the vocabulary, or has become just another adjective like "redhead" or "brunette" or "fat" or "thin," and every man is judged as an individual and is permitted to develop his potential as an individual to the fullest, will the American dilemma have been solved.

Few whites can appreciate the extent of racial prejudice in America. John Griffin, author of "Black Like Me," is one. Using chemicals to darken his skin, he posed as a Negro and found himself "walking neck-deep in the stenchiest swamp imaginable; and it was too difficult. I gave up."

"What does the Negro want?"

Not for white America to "grant" him certain rights, but for America to recognize at long last that those rights are his simply by virtue of his being a human being.

There may be more violence, for history has persuaded some black men that only violence or the threat of violence has ever made the white man look at them and begin to take their grievances seriously.

But the Negro must remember, before succumbing to the preachments of black racists or black separatists, that the fundamental decency of Americans is, as it has been in the past, his greatest ally. America's commitment to democracy is his real power. The conscience-prodding ideals of the Declaration of Independence are his real weapon.

Growing numbers of white Americans are coming to realize that those ideals must become reality to "The Last American," the Negro, or they can be reality to no American.

Said Martin Luther King:

"Our destiny is tied up with America's destiny. Before the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth, we were here... If the inexpressible cruelties of slavery could not stop us, the opposition we now face will surely fail. We will win our freedom."

It is as simple, and as enormous, as that.

The Convention City Contrasts

Editor's note: H. Clark Bell, Woodstock attorney, is attending the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach, Florida.

His exclusive, on-the-spot coverage of convention events, follows.

By H. CLARK BELL

It takes an hour and 45 minutes to drive from Woodstock to Newark Airport. It takes two hours to fly from Newark to Miami. Once there it takes another two hours to drive from the airport to the Americana Hotel where the New York State Delegation checked in, a distance of 14 miles.

As you move down Arthur Godfrey Drive you see professional billboard. "You're on the right road, Nixon is the one."

The Rockefeller and Reagan signs are makeshift structures on posts and poles. In Miami Beach when you move through the Nixon and Rockefeller campaign headquarters it becomes immediately apparent that the Nixon operation has the touch of professionalism and leads you to believe that a great deal of advance planning and organization to get this detail has gone into the Nixon presidential drive.

The Rockefeller and Reagan campaigns are more explosive in nature with great numbers of young people participating. The contrast is striking in this convention city especially when you realize that only certified delegates will vote tonight.

The Miami Beach convention hall is huge and as you move about looking at the name tags it becomes apparent that there are many voting delegates who are not at the convention hall. They're partying it up at the hotels and nightclubs. They seem to feel Nixon has it wrapped up. There are lots of pet terms running through the cocktail parties and receptions at the convention hall such as "erosion of delegate strength," "slippage" and "driftage."

Rockefeller and Reagan supporters are using these terms constantly and they say Nixon is the victim of so-called slippage.

The Nixon people stand firm and say if there is any such erosion, they are unaware of it. The truth must lie somewhere in between.

National Chairman Ray Bliss, also of Ohio, also apparently leans toward Richard M. Nixon but he apparently does not wish to see the Ohio delegation released. He fears the national image of the party will be painted as a moderate to conservative controlled convention. He apparently wishes to throw the Ohio delegation in on a second or third ballot. This, of course, results in extreme pressure being placed on all the favorite son delegations.

Bliss also, reportedly, has been feeling out the prospects of a Nixon-Rockefeller ticket which would have national appeal to all segments of the political spectrum. Rocky for the cities on the eastern seaboard, Nixon for the South, Midwest and West.

Anything can happen. There can be erosion of delegate strength, slippage, driftage or what have you. It's not a question of the possibility of Ray Bliss' dream ticket of Nixon and what's probable. And don't lose Rockefeller.

Today all delegations, especially the key ones of Ohio, often and long and the pressure Kansas, Michigan, Pennsylvania and negotiating will be intense.

Long Trailing

By RAE F. AMOS

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—Lt. Gov. Thomas F. Eagleton wrested the senatorial nomination from U.S. Sen. Edward V. Long in the Missouri Democratic primary.

Eagleton, 39, issued a victory statement early today, secure in his belief that his 18,000 vote lead could not be overturned in the few remaining precincts still to report from the Tuesday primary.

"It appears that Mr. Eagleton is the winner," Long said from his Larksville, Mo., home. But he refused to concede the election. He said he wanted to study the returns today before making any additional statements.

With 293 precincts left to report, Eagleton carried a 18,005 margin over Long. The vote was 202,302 to 183,549. Former Undersecretary of the Treasury W. True Davis of St. Joseph was running third with 158,175.

Long was thought to be a strong candidate this year, until Life magazine accused him of improperly splitting legal fees with St. Louis attorney Morris Shenker, chief counsel for jailed Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa.

Life also accused Long of using his Senate subcommittee investigation into wiretapping as a tool to help Hoffa. Long denied the charges, calling the magazine story a "smear" led by the Internal Revenue Service, which Long had vigorously attacked.

Another Life story, accusing Long of stalling a St. Louis slum housing project by having it redesigned for gas instead of electrical heating to help the Electrical Heating Union, hit the stands less than two weeks before the election.

USE FOR RATS

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The Haffkine Institute has evolved a plan for the eradication of rats, which eat away 10 per cent of India's foodgrains.

It has advertised that rat products can now be sold commercially. Rat meat is best for pets like cats and dogs. Rat skin is very useful for wrist watch straps, kid gloves and ladies' purses.

Two Patrolmen Injured During High-Speed Chase

Two Kingston patrolmen were injured Tuesday night during a high-speed chase that ended in the Town of Hurley with the arrest of a 17-year-old youth for four Vehicle and Traffic Law violations.

Patrolmen Donald Playford and William Mulford were treated at Kingston Hospital for minor injuries and later released.

Summoned to appear before City Judge Hubert A. Richter was David McNamara of Route 209, Hurley. He was booked for speeding, being an unlicensed operator, driving an unregistered motor vehicle and failure to comply with an order of a police officer.

McNamara appeared in city court today accompanied by his father Dr. Herbert McNamara who told Judge Richter he wouldn't ask for leniency.

The youth was fined $25 for speeding and $10 for failure to comply. The latter sentence was suspended. After McNamara produced his license and registration for the car those charges were dismissed. Judge Richter suspended the youth's license indefinitely and directed that he attend the driving classes conducted by Kingston High School and obtain an operator's license.

The case was adjourned until Nov. 22 at which time McNamara must return to court and show proof that he had complied with the driving school directive.

According to reports, the chase began on Lucas Avenue after radar equipment indicated that the car driven by McNamara was exceeding the city speed limit. The officers pursued the vehicle along Lucas Avenue, through other streets to Zandhook Road near Hook Road in Hurley, where the police car was involved in a mishap.

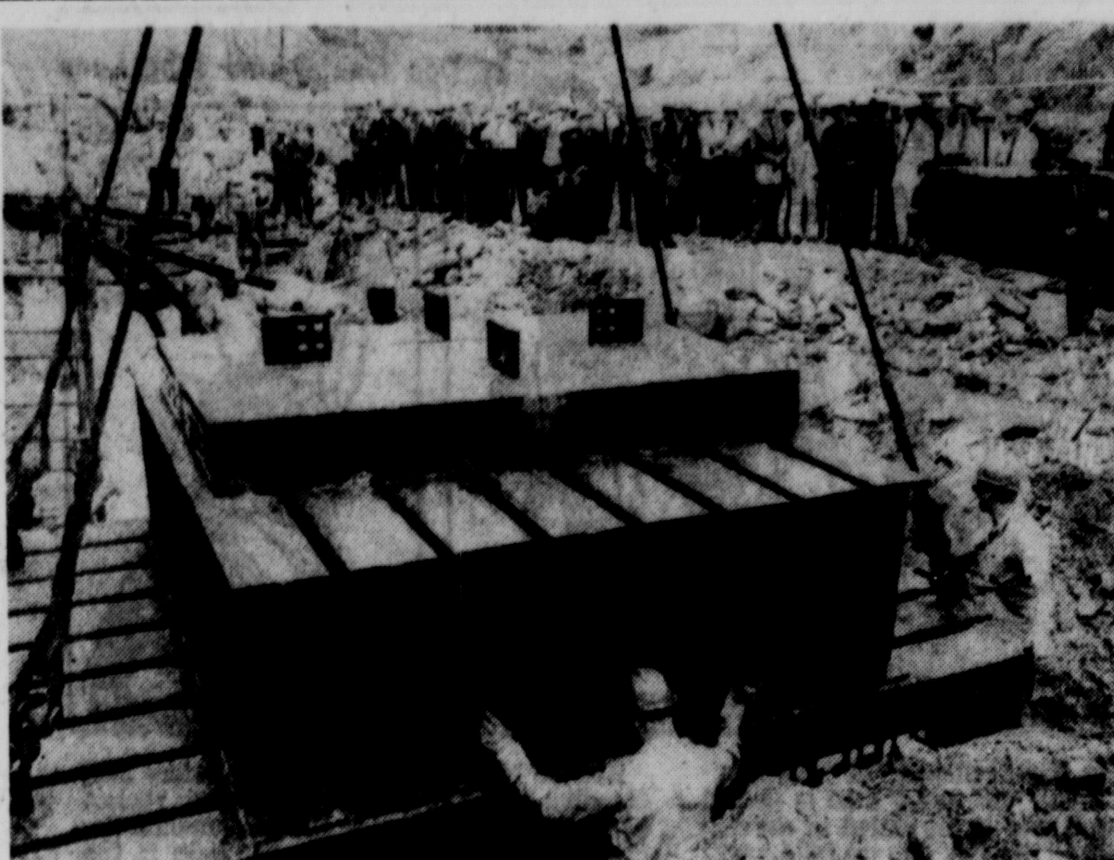

Playford complained of possible back injuries. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Fatum's Ambulance. Mulford continued on to Hurley in another car and picked up McNamara, who was taken to police headquarters and booked for the four violations, and later released in custody of his father pending court appearance.

During the chase, Playford and Mulford notified headquarters by radio they were pursuing the car along Lucas Avenue. Later they reported their car was involved in an accident in Hurley, where the vehicle reportedly developed mechanical trouble and hit guard rails.

Truck Damaged

A 1964 panel truck owned by Eastern Cleaning Service, Inc., Manchester Road, Town of Poughkeepsie, was damaged by fire early Tuesday afternoon on Tremper Avenue. Firemen responded to an alarm at 12:43 p. m. and used CO-2 chemicals to quell the flames that damaged insulation on wiring and the motor cover. Captain Robert Schatzel was in charge of fire-fighters.

The term robot comes from the Czech word robota, which means work, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Long Island RR Cancels Trains; Blames Workers

NEW YORK (AP) — The Long Island Rail Road, charging that a slowdown by workers who inspect and repair equipment has caused a shortage of cars, canceled 15 trains during this morning's commuter rush hour.

The cancellations on the nation's busiest commuter railroad included 12 trains scheduled inbound to Manhattan or Brooklyn and three outbound. About 12,000 of the line's daily 90,000 passengers were directly affected.

But a line spokesman said "untold thousands more" of the harried commuters would be inconvenienced as they were when nine trains were canceled during Tuesday evening's rush hour.

Ernest Varricchio, spokesman for the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, denied the carmen were engaging in a slowdown, and added:

"The men may be taking a little more time, but this is because some of the equipment is so old that it is faulty and takes longer to repair."

The railroad and the union have been in a dispute since the railroad planned to lay off 18 union members in June. The dispute is in arbitration.

About 7,200 persons normally travel on the trains canceled during the rush hour late Tuesday, the railroad said. They had to take later trains to get home, and many outgoing trains were jammed with the aisles full of standing passengers.

A spokesman for the railroad said the train cancellations were caused by a slowdown of railroad carmen who inspect and repair equipment at the Dunton Car Shop in the Jamaica-Richmond Hill section of Queens. The Long Island said nearly 300 of its 1,200 cars were not available for use, pending completion of inspections and necessary repairs.

A spokesman for the railroad said its lawyers went into U.S. District Court in Brooklyn last Friday seeking an injunction against any slowdown but the case was recessed for a week to give both sides a chance to settle their differences.

criticize the county and the school district, saying, "they don't care what they spend."

"The county has what it wants. They have nice facilities," Garraghan said. "Why shouldn't we have comparable facilities? All we want is a decent city hall for our community."

Garraghan then spoke of the city hall downtown stating, "If the city doesn't have confidence in the future of downtown, who else will?"

The mayor spoke of the city's urban renewal debt downtown, saying, "If we don't build a city hall down there, one of these councils in the next two or three years will have to float a bond issue to the urban renewal agency for $452,000."

In conclusion, the mayor said, "I want to assure you aldermen and you citizens that I know what I'm doing with money."

Other Action

In other action, the Council approved the selling of a parcel of city-owned land at 53-55 Murphy Street to the urban renewal agency for $3,800, approved a revised code enforcement program and sent a resolution from the NAACP concerning discrimination in urban renewal projects to committee.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Gregor Mendel (1822-1884), an Austrian Augustinian monk, discovered the first laws of heredity which were subsequently developed into a new science called genetics, says The World Almanac. Mendel made public his discoveries in 1865-66, but they had no effect on biological thinking until 1900, when three European botanists independently discovered what Mendel had published, unnoticed, 34 years earlier.

criticize the county and the school district, saying, "they don't care what they spend."

Wind, Thunderstorms

New York Hit Hard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buildings were damaged and flooded, trees were uprooted, electric power failed and two persons were injured by lightning during violent wind and thunderstorms that raked Western New York Tuesday.

Hardest hit was the area around South Dayton in Cattaraugus County where swirling winds injured three persons, left six families homeless, demolished or damaged eight buildings and felled more than 100 trees.

Three members of a Tonawanda family were injured when a trailer home in which they were visiting relatives was picked up by the wind and hurled about 55 feet into some trees in South Dayton.

Police said Kim A. Merrill, 21; his wife Bonnie, 20, and their daughter Lisa, 19 months, were treated at Tri-County Hospital in Gowanda and released after the trailer was demolished in the accident.

The Buffalo Red Cross sent a disaster unit trailer to the area to provide food and clothing for families which lost their homes.

In Buffalo, the thunderstorm and rains flooded streets and buildings throughout the city and its suburbs.

Mark Burshtynsky, 11, was reported in good condition in Buffalo's Mercy Hospital after he was struck by lightning while trying to unchain his dog, Cornell Watson, 32, was treated and released at Buffalo General Hospital after lightning struck the dispatcher's radio he was operating in the office of a taxi company, they said.

of water in their basements.

Students from Buffalo's Canisius College turned out to help police direct traffic after traffic signals failed during a power outage.

Other power failures were reported throughout the day from various Western New York communities, and repair trucks were seen on many streets as utility crews strove to return electrical service to normal.

Some Buffalo children found the storm right up their alley. They dived and swam in three feet of water under a flooded viaduct on Genesee St.

A section of the Kensington Expressway which was under construction collapsed and left a gaping hole in the street, seven feet long, three wide and four deep.

The weather forecast called for more rain today and Thursday.

Pine Bush Couple Complete Their Dream, 46-Foot, Nine Ton, Unsinkable Sailboat

Three years and 5,000 man-hours ago a Pine Bush couple began construction on their dream house of the future—a 46-foot, nine-ton sailboat they claim is unsinkable.

Yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Crossby Decker finally launched their boat into the Hudson River near Newburgh—but not without a king-sized sign of relief. There were times when they thought that their retirement home would have to stay in the barn.

The Deckers' main concern was not in completing the boat—they finished construction on it more than a year ago. Their biggest problem, and one they have struggled with for the past year, was moving the enormous 24-foot wide structure from their home to its launching site 25 miles away. "It isn't really the weight that matters," Decker explained. "You see, anything that's 24 feet wide is going to take up the entire roadway."

Agreement from Albany

Apparently the State Department of Transportation in Albany agreed. It turned down Decker's application for a permit to move the boat twice in the past year. It wasn't until several days ago that Dominic DeJoy, a member of a trucking and rigging firm in Newburgh, finally obtained a permit to move Decker's boat from his Orange County home.

"When I first saw this guy," DeJoy said, "He was almost in tears." He said that he believes it is the widest load ever moved on the state's highways.

Decker said that when he first decided to build the boat, he had planned to move it by helicopter to its launching site. At that time, the Sikorsky Aircraft Co. was planning to construct a helicopter, called the "Skycrane", that would have sufficient power to carry the oversized boat. But construction on the helicopter was delayed, and Decker was left with his nine-ton problem sitting in his back yard.

Began in 1965

Decker, a driver education teacher, began work on the boat back in 1965—working mostly during his off hours. Constructed out of three separate boat hulls, Decker's craft has—called "The Tiki"—cost him almost $27,000 to build. The 24-inch foot width, claim the Deckers, would have taken a full-scale hurricane to stop them.

They're still hoping for a strong enough wind to start the craft out on its maiden voyage.

"The Tiki", a two-masted, ketch-rigged trimaran sports a 45-foot mainsail, five state-rooms, four baths, dining and living quarters, and an electric kitchen. The Deckers said that when they retire from teaching they'll probably sail for the Caribbean.

Because of yesterday's rain, there was some doubt that the Deckers would try to launch their boat. But after the men- rate boat hulls, Decker's craft has—called "The Tiki"—cost him almost $27,000 to build. The 24-inch foot width, claim the Deckers, would have taken a full-scale hurricane to stop them.

Greenfield Church Opens in Wawarsing

Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin has announced the opening of the Greenfield Church, located across from the historic Greenfield School. The Wawarsing chief executive also named six residents to the town's youth commission.

The church, originally called the Quaker Meeting House, was erected in 1818 and is the oldest public building in the township.

According to Katharine Terwilliger, town historian, the first settler came to Greenfield in 1790. Within a year, several families had moved here from the vicinity of Westchester County and were followed by others within a few years.

They belonged to the Society of Friends and were known as Friends or Quakers.

Construction of the building cost $1,000 in 1818, Miss Terwilliger pointed out.

"The narrow, hard benches were typical of that day. The facing benches were occupied by older Friends at first, later by the minister or speaker."

"The beautiful eight-sided columns had a place where the lanterns or lamps were set," declared Miss Terwilliger.

The town historian also said that the Quakers "did not have a formal order of worship; much of the time there was silence while the members contemplated their own lives, though anyone could speak as he felt moved."

As the years went by, however, it became more common to have a minister or at least a speaker.

"At first, men and women held completely separate services," historian Terwilliger said. "Later, they attended the same service, but were separated by the partition. Still later they sat together."

Miss Terwilliger went on to say that as the early Quakers died and their descendants moved away from Greenfield, "there were none left to worship in this meeting house."

"Before 1900," she said, "weekly services were replaced by one annual service, then abandoned entirely many years ago."

Ownership of the historic meeting place was transferred over to Wawarsing in 1966.

Named to the youth commission were Phillip Korn, Kerhonson; James Furman, Napano; and Vernon Kelder. Mrs. Natalie Rosenstock, Mrs. Martha Brown and Rivan Kriger, Ellenville.

Harkin said the commission would "try to solve" teen age problems confronting the town.

The Wawarsing supervisor recently met with the Marist Brothers managers of the Thirsty Bar coffee shop. He said that the shop building is slated for urban renewal demolition and, with the Marist organization scheduled to vacate the coffee house by Aug. 23, he hoped something could be worked out whereby the coffee shop could remain in business.

Find Girls Alive After Quake Collapses Six-Story Building

MANILA (UPD)—For five days the world of Suzie Wong and her cousin Nancy Wong was a 25-foot high pile of rubble.

An earthquake Friday collapsed a six-story apartment house, killing 260 persons, and two days ago rescue authorities said hope of finding survivors was dead.

But today diggers found alive 10-year-old Suzie Wong Chan and her cousin Nancy Wong

Chan, 13. Dr. Francisco Cassanova wept as he examined the girls and said they would live. "It's a miracle," he said.

"My eyes... my eyes..." said Suzie when her rescuers lifted her out of the rubble into the sunlight.

"I don't want to die. I don't want to die. My mother died, my father died and my grandmother died," she said.

Taken to a hospital she told Dr. Jaime Laya, "Don't kill me, please save me." The shaken, bruised girl repeated the plea in Filipino, English and four Chinese dialects.

Doctors said Suzie will recover 80 per cent of her strength in two days. They said her cousin Nancy was in more serious condition.

No one had been found alive in the wreckage of the Ruby Tower apartment house since Sunday. The stench of death rose so heavily from the rubble that workmen wrapped handkerchiefs around their heads to block their nostrils.

They found the body of a woman lying beside Suzie and Nancy. The woman had died three days ago. Nancy was unconscious but Suzie Wong talked.

She asked the doctor about Nancy. Cassanova reassured her.

Police said they are preparing homicide charges against the five men who were the owner, architect, engineer, contractor and inspector of the year-old building. The quake killed 270 persons in Manila, with all but 10 in the Ruby tower.

Wind, Thunderstorms

New York Hit Hard

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buildings were damaged and flooded, trees were uprooted, electric power failed and two persons were injured by lightning during violent wind and thunderstorms that raked Western New York Tuesday.

Hardest hit was the area around South Dayton in Cattaraugus County where swirling winds injured three persons, left six families homeless, demolished or damaged eight buildings and felled more than 100 trees.

Three members of a Tonawanda family were injured when a trailer home in where they were visiting relatives was picked up by the wind and hurled about 55 feet into some trees in South Dayton.

Police said Kim A. Merrill, 21, his wife Bonnie, 20, and their daughter Lisa, 19 months, were treated at Tri County Hospital in Gowanda and released after the trailer was demolished in the accident.

The Buffalo Red Cross sent a disaster unit trailer to the area to provide food and clothing for families which lost their homes.

In Buffalo, the thunderstorm and rains flooded streets and buildings throughout the city and its suburbs.

Mark Burshitsky, 11, was reported in good condition in Buffalo's Mercy Hospital after the storm right up their alley. He was struck by lightning while trying to unchain his dog, Cornell Watson, 32, was treated and released at Buffalo General Hospital after lightning struck the dispatcher's radio he was operating in the office of a taxi company, they said.

Clogged sewers that backed up and flooded basements left Children's and Buffalo General Hospitals with two to three inches of water in their basements. Students from Buffalo's Canisius College turned out to help police direct traffic after traffic signals failed during a power outage. Other power failures were reported throughout the day from various Western New York communities, and repair trucks were seen on many streets as utility crews strove to return electrical service to normal.

Some Buffalo children found the storm right up their alley. They dived and swam in three feet of water under a flooded viaduct on Genesee St.

A section of the Kensington Expressway which was under construction collapsed and left a gaping hole in the street, seven feet long, three wide and four deep.

The weather forecast called for more rain today and Thursday.

Find Girls Alive After Quake Collapses Six-Story Building

MANILA (UPI)—For five days the world of Suzie Wong and her cousin Nancy Wong was a 25-foot high pile of rubble.

An earthquake Friday collapsed a six-story apartment house, killing 260 persons, and two days ago rescue authorities said hope of finding survivors was dead.

But today diggers found alive 16-year-old Suzie Wong Chan, and her cousin Nancy Wong

Chan, 13. Dr. Francisco Cassanova wept as he examined the girls and said they would live.

"It's a miracle," he said. "My eyes... my eyes... I said Suzie when her rescuers lifted her out of the rubble into the sunlight."

"I don't want to die. I don't want to die. My mother died, my father died and my grandmother died," she said.

Taken to a hospital she told Dr. Jaime Laya, "Don't kill me, please save me." The shaken, bruised girl repeated the plea in Filipino, English and four Chinese dialects.

Doctors said Suzie will recover 80 per cent of her strength in two days. They said her cousin Nancy was in more serious condition.

No one had been found alive in the wreckage of the Ruby Tower apartment house since Sunday. The stench of death rose so heavily from the rubble that workmen wrapped handkerchiefs around their heads to block their nostrils.

They found the body of a woman lying beside Suzie and Nancy. The woman had died three days ago. Nancy was unconscious but Suzie Wong talked.

She asked the doctor about Nancy. Cassanova reassured her.

Police said they are preparing homicide charges against the five men who were the owner, architect, engineer, contractor and inspector of the year-old building. The quake killed 270 persons in Manila, with all but 10 in the Ruby tower.

Pine Bush Couple Complete Their Dream, 46-Foot, Nine Ton, Unsinkable Sailboat

Three years and 5,000 man-hours ago a Pine Bush couple began construction on their dream house of the future—a 46-foot, nine-ton sailboat they claim is unsinkable. Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Crockett Decker finally launched their boat into the Hudson River near Newburgh—but not without a king-sized sign of relief. There were times when they thought that their retirement home would have to stay in the barn. The Decker's main concern was not in completing the boat more than a year ago. Their biggest problem, and one they have struggled with for the past year, was moving the enormous 24-foot wide structure from their home to its launching site 25 miles away.

Agreement from Albany

Apparently the State Department of Transportation in Albany agreed. It turned down Decker's application for a permit to move the boat twice in the past year. It wasn't until several days ago that Dominic DeJoy, a member of a trucking and rigging firm in Newburgh, finally obtained a permit to move Decker's boat from his Orange County home.

"When I first saw this guy," DeJoy said, "he was almost in tears." He said that he believes it is the widest load ever moved on the state's highways.

Decker said that when he first decided to build the boat, he had planned to move it by helicopter to its launching site. At that time, the Sikorsky Aircraft Co. was planning to construct a helicopter, called the "Skycrane", that would have sufficient power to carry the oversized boat. But construction on the helicopter was delayed, and Decker was left with his nine-ton problem sitting in his back yard.

Began in 1965
Decker, a driver education teacher, began work on the boat back in 1965—working mostly during his off hours. Constructed out of three separate boat hulls, Decker's craft—called "The Tiki"—cost him almost $27,000 to build. The 24 foot wide, claim the Deckers, would have taken a full-scale hurricane to stop them.

they'll probably sail for the Caribbean.

Because of yesterday's rain, there was some doubt that the Deckers would try to launch their boat. But after the men-aceful rain, the Deckers said that they'll probably sail for the Caribbean.

Greenfield Church Opens in Wawarsing

Wawarsing Supervisor Frank W. Harkin has announced the opening of the Greenfield Church, located across from the historic Greenfield School. The Wawarsing chief executive also named six residents to the town's youth commission.

The church, originally called the Quaker Meeting House, was erected in 1818 and is the oldest public building in the township.

According to Katharine Terwilliger, town historian, the first settler came to Greenfield in 1790. Within a year, several families had moved here from the vicinity of Westchester County and were followed by others within a few years. They belonged to the Society of Friends and were known as Friends or Quakers.

Construction of the building cost $1,000 in 1818, Miss Terwilliger pointed out.

"The narrow, hard benches were typical of that day. The facing benches were occupied by older Friends at first, later by the minister or speaker."

"The beautiful eight-sided columns had a place where the lanterns or lamps were set," declared Miss Terwilliger.

The town historian also said that the Quakers "did not have a formal order of worship; much of the time there was silence while the members contemplated their own lives, though anyone could speak as he felt moved."

As the years went by, however, it became more common to have a minister or at least a speaker.

"At first, men and women held completely separate services," historian Terwilliger said. "Later, they attended the same service, but were separated by the partition. Still later they sat together."

Miss Terwilliger went on to say that as the early Quakers died and their descendants moved away from Greenfield, "there were none left to worship in this meeting house."

"Before 1900," she said, "weekly services were replaced by one annual service, then abandoned entirely many years ago."

Ownership of the historic meeting place was transferred over to Wawarsing in 1966.

Named to the youth commission were Phillip Korn, Kerhonkson; James Furman, Nanonoch; and Vernon Kelder, Mrs. Natalie Rosenstock, Mrs. Martha Brown and Rivan Kriger, Ellenville.

Harkin said the commission would "try to solve" teen age problems confronting the town.

The Wawarsing supervisor recently met with the Marist Brothers managers of the Thirty Bar coffee shop. He said that the shop building is slated for urban renewal demolition and, with the Marist organization scheduled to vacate the coffee house by Aug. 23, he hoped something could be worked out whereby the coffee shop could remain in business.

Probe Reports Of Outside Agitators in Pa.

By WILLIAM M. COOMBE
YORK, Pa. (UPI)—Officials of the state Justice Department were in York today to investigate reports that outside agitators caused three nights of rioting and looting in the city.

The city returned to near normal Tuesday night after the previous night's disturbances mostly inside a three-block area that resulted in at least 17 injuries and 11 arrests.

Public Safety Director Jacob W. Hise and the Rev. John Blackwell, a local member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), agreed that outside agitators inspired Negro youths who shot at police, and looted and firebombed several stores between Saturday night and Tuesday morning.

Rock Was Thrown
Blackwell, a liaison between the white and black communities, said a "small group of hoodlums" was responsible for the violence that began when youths threw a rock through the window of a meat market.

The owner, Chester Beach, 58, engaged the youths in a gun duel from his second floor apartment. Eleven were injured, including one hospitalized in fair condition with a stomach wound.

Bomb Caused Damage
Most of the violence was inside the integrated area, however, a firebomb tossed into the York Bedding Co. on the east side caused extensive damage before firemen were able to bring the blaze under control.

Police exchanged rifle fire with snipers inside an apartment early Tuesday. The shooting ended when police lobbed three canisters of tear gas into the building.

Hise said city officials of this south-central Pennsylvania town of 55,000 had known for some time there was going to be trouble but did not know when.

Rev. Blackwell, who walked through the area in efforts to calm down residents, said many Negroes in the area are homeowners who were angered by the violence. He said that some of them used shotguns to guard their homes from gangs.

Faculty, Alumni Want Columbia Dean Retained

NEW YORK (AP)—A move to retain Dean Edward W. Barrett of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism is being led by faculty members and alumni.

Associate Dean Richard T. Baker and several faculty members have sent a letter to Dr. Grayson Kirk, Columbia president, saying they hoped he and the university trustees "will find the means whereby" Barrett can remain as dean.

Judith Crist, chairman of the school's alumni association which has more than 3,000 members, says the association's executive board will meet shortly to draft a similar petition.

On Aug. 2, Barrett submitted his resignation, effective Aug. 15.

He said: "I simply find myself in disagreement with the basic outlook of a majority of those who make university policy. I should add that while I have real sympathy for many who seek constructive change, I have no sympathy whatever for the young S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society) group who seek destruction."

Barrett has said that the university administration must accept sweeping reforms if it is to avoid a recurrence of the student demonstrations that crippled the university for more than two months last spring.

Problems Just Start for Quads' Parents

WHEATFIELD, Ind. (AP)—The Irvine quadruplet babies, A, B, C and D—have ended their six weeks of intensive hospital care. But the problems are just starting for their parents.

The main job Mr. and Mrs. Allan J. Irvine face is feeding the boys who arrived Sunday from Home Hospital in Lafayette where they were born June 3.

Each baby is on a three-hour feeding schedule—32 total feedings each day that probably will keep the parents feeding the boys on an around-the-clock basis.

The boys were named Allan, Byron, Corey and Dale. When they were born, the hospital labeled them A, B, C and D.

Mrs. Irvine, 28, admits she still can't tell the boys apart. "I know Byron because he's the largest (6 pounds, 7 ounces) and Allan because he's the smallest (5 1/2 lbs.)," she said. "But I can't tell Corey from their identification anklets."

Corey weighs 6.1 and Dale 5.12.

At birth, Allan weighed 2.13, Corey 3.44 and Byron and Dale 3.4 each.

Diapers pose another problem. An average baby uses 24 diapers a day, meaning almost 100 changes daily for the Irvines.

But with this problem, as with others, the Irvines are getting help.

Two large firms that service baby products each donated two cases of disposable diapers—2,394 overall. At Home Hospital, which paid the fees for the mother and the babies, the staff and visitors donated enough money to buy 1,200 diapers.

Citizens of Jasper County have started a bank account where persons may donate funds to build an addition of three bedrooms and a bath for the Irvines.

Irvine, 28, a steel plant adviser in East Chicago, already has added one room to his five-room house by building a wall inside the attached garage.

The new room is for April Yonnie, 18 months, whom the Irvines are adopting. The parents moved into April's old room and their larger bedroom is being used by the quads.

A baby food company has donated a year's supply of food and a laboratory firm has given the Irvines 12 cases of formula.

Health for All

Well, not completely forgotten—but relegated to the dim past by many people, along with mustache quips, samplers, and free lunch with a nickel glass of beer.

It would be nice if this comely attitude toward tuberculosis were founded on fact. Unfortunately, it's wide of reality. New statistics on TB incidence on the island of Hawaii, a "hot spot" for the disease, remind that the disease frequently written off as "obsolescent" still attacks more than 45,000 people a year in the United States.

Yet these new reports, compiled by the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association on the basis of official surveys have their brighter side. Compared to the picture as it existed a few years ago, TB has been diminishing at a fair rate. According to widespread medical opinion, this largely reflects the efficacy of drugs, the most effective tool for treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

In 1966, the latest year for which breakdowns are available, four nonwhite came down with TB for every white person in proportion to population. This unpleasant fact serves to dramatize the already well-known connection between poverty, depressed living conditions in the urban centers, that's where the highest disease risk lies, and the weakest armor against it.

Public health officials and the voluntary anti-TB movement (including your local Christmas Seal organization) are taking more seriously than ever the lesson that a really successful assault on TB must include measures for general improvement of living conditions in the urban centers. That's where the highest disease risk lies, and the weakest armor against it.

Gives Position Of Algeria

ALGIERS (UPI)—President Houari Boumediene today sent to United Nations Secretary General Thant a letter outlining Algeria's position on the hijacked Israeli airliner which has been holding since July 23. Thant has conferred with the Algerian ambassador to the U.N. in efforts to get the plane and its 14 Israeli passengers and crewmen released. Arab guerrillas forced the Rome-to-Tel Aviv airliner to Algeria.

DWI Charge
Ellen Martin, 40, of Mulberry Street, New Paltz, was arrested early today by Troopers C. C. Rehman and P. Koenig of Highland State Police on a charge of driving a vehicle while intoxicated. She was picked up on Route 299 and later arraigned before New Paltz Town Justice Rexford Schneider, who ordered her held in $100 bail for hearing.

Probe Reports Of Outside Agitators in Pa.

By WILLIAM M. COOMBE

YORK, Pa. (UPI)—Officials of the state Justice Department were in York today to investigate reports that outside agitators caused three nights of fire-bombing and sniping at police.

The city returned to near normal Tuesday night after the previous night's disturbances mostly inside a three-block area that resulted in at least 17 injuries and 11 arrests.

Public Safety Director Jacob W. Hone and the Rev. John Blackwell, a local member of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), agreed that outside agitators inspired Negro youths who shot at police, looted and firebombed several stores between Saturday night and Tuesday morning.

Rock Was Thrown

Blackwell, a liaison between the white and black communities, said a "small group of hoodlums" was responsible for the violence that began when youths threw a rock through the window of a meat market. The owner, Chester Roach, 58, engaged the youths in a gun duel from his second floor apartment. Eleven were injured, including one hospitalized in fair condition with a stomach wound.

State police were alerted Monday and stood by as most of the city's 82-man police force cordoned off an area of South Penn St.

Bomb Caused Damage

Most of the violence was in the integrated area, however, a firebomb tossed into the York Bedding Co. on the east side caused extensive damage before firemen were able to bring the blaze under control. Police exchange rifle fire with snipers inside an apartment early Tuesday. The shooting ended when police lobbed three canisters of tear gas into the building.

Hose said city officials of this south central Pennsylvania town of 55,000 had known for some time there was going to be trouble but did not know why.

Rev. Blackwell, who walked through the area in efforts to calm down residents, said many Negroes in the area are home owners who were angered by the violence. He said that some of them used shotguns to guard their homes from gangs.

Faculty, Alumni Want Columbia Dean Retained

NEW YORK (AP)—A move to retain Dean Edward W. Barrett of the Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism is being led by faculty members and alumni.

Associate Dean Richard T. Baker and several faculty members have sent a letter to Dr. Grayson Kirk, Columbia president, saying they hoped he and the university trustees "will find the means whereby" Barrett can remain as dean.

Judith Crist, chairman of the school's alumni association, which has more than 3,000 members, says the association's executive board will meet shortly to draft a similar petition. On Aug. 2, Barrett submitted his resignation, effective Aug. 15.

He said, "I simply find myself in disagreement with the basic outlook of a majority of those who make university policy. I should add that while I have real sympathy for many who seek constructive change, I have no sympathy whatever for the young S.D.S. (Students for a Democratic Society) group who seek destruction."

Barrett has said that the university administration must accept sweeping reforms if it is to avoid a recurrence of the student demonstrations that crippled the university for more than two months last spring.

An average baby uses 24 diapers a day, meaning almost 100 changes daily for the Irvines.

But with this problem, as with others, the Irvines are getting help.

Two large firms that service baby products each donated two cases of disposable diapers—2,304 over all. At Home Hospital, which has the fees for the mother and the babies, the staff and visitors donated enough to buy 1,200 diapers.

Citizens of Jasper County have started a bank account where persons may donate funds to build an addition of three bedrooms and a bath for the Irvines.

The new room is for April Yvonne, 14 months, whom the Irvines are adopting. The parents moved into April's old room and their larger bedroom is being used by the quads.

A baby food company has donated a year's supply of food and a laboratory firm has given the Irvines 12 cases of formula.

Health for All

Well, not completely forgotten—but relegated to the dim past by many people, along with mustache cups, samplers, and free lunch with a nickel glass of beer.

It would be nice if this comely attitude toward tuberculosis were founded on fact. Unfortunately, it's wide of reality. New statistics on TB incidence and deaths bring a poignant reminder that the disease frequently written off as "old-fashioned" still attacks more than 45,000 people a year in the United States.

Yet these new reports, compiled by the National Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association on the basis of official surveys, have their brighter side. Compared to the picture as it existed a few years ago, TB has been diminishing at a fair rate. According to widespread medical opinion, this largely reflects the efficacy of modern drugs and the use of for treatment and prevention of tuberculosis.

In 1966, the latest year for which breakdowns are available, four nonwhite came down with TB for every white person in proportion to population. This unpleasant fact serves to dramatize the already well-known connection between poverty, depressed living conditions, and disease. It also points to a logical area for concentrated effort in future attempts to reduce the incidence of tuberculosis.

Public health officials and the voluntary anti-TB movement (including your local Christmas Seal organization) are taking more seriously than ever the lesson that a really successful assault on TB must include measures for general improvement of living conditions in the urban centers. That's where the highest disease risk lies and the weakest armor against it.

Freeman on RFK: Tough and Gentle

WASHINGTON (UPI)—What was Bobby Kennedy like in the clutch? "He would talk real tough. But when he got down to people, he was gentle." Maybe you saw him that way, maybe not.

But this, at least is how a former cabinet colleague, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, viewed the complex young man who was shot down in Los Angeles during his quest for the presidency.

This story cannot be a definitive appraisal of Robert Francis Kennedy, who served as Attorney General and senator from New York, and who finally became presidential candidate in a break with many of his old Democratic colleagues—including Freeman.

But it is an account of how Kennedy appeared at different times to a man who worked with him—sometimes closely, sometimes at a distance.

Talking to Freeman, you come away with the impression that he knew at least three Bobby Kennedys—Bobby Kennedy having a different impact at varying distances.

There was first Bobby Kennedy in the 1960 campaign which took John F. Kennedy to the presidency.

"My first impression of him," Freeman recalls, "was that he was a very intense, determined, hard-driving man...he made real strong demands on people he worked with, and equally strong demands on himself."

"I liked him, but it took a while to get to know him. He was grim and intense. He didn't waste time in small talk and making a favorable impression. He was concerned with getting the job done."

Then, there was the period in the early 1960s when Freeman and Kennedy were cabinet colleagues.

"In the cabinet period, things were much the same but he was more relaxed and outgoing. Perhaps that's because I got to know him better," Freeman said.

"Even then, I didn't know him intimately...but in the Billy Sol Estes case (in 1962) we had close relations."

Freeman and Kennedy worked closely then, preparing the administration's response to charges aired by a Senate committee which investigated the matter.

Showing Real Concern

Kennedy, then attorney General, "showed real concern for the individuals concerned," Freeman said. "He would talk real tough, but when he got down to people he was gentle."

He didn't want to hurt people, even those whose actions were questionable.

Later, when Kennedy went to the Senate and finally made the break to run for president, the two men had far less contact.

One issue which brought some contact was Kennedy's involvement in efforts to step up government programs for feeding the hungry. This brought conflict between the senator, who wanted to get things done fast, and Freeman, who already had sharply boosted food programs but saw "practical" difficulties in going faster.

Kennedy's basic thrust, Freeman said, was "don't bother me with details, let's eliminate the problem of hungry people...He was somewhat impatient of the difficulties of getting it done. He'd pass lightly over the real practical problems of getting results."

"From a legislator's viewpoint that's understandable."

Finally, when Kennedy opened his presidential campaign, he and Freeman were on opposing sides. Freeman backed the reelection of President Johnson, and then switched to support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey when Johnson dropped out.

"But that was part of the political game," the cabinet officer says now. "I was very fond of him."

FBI Booklet Helps Airlines

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new booklet, entitled "Airlines FBI" today released a booklet and The FBI, was planned before the current rash of hijacking. But he said it was a revision of one that first came out during a spectacular series of similar incidents in 1961.

In a forward, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover said the booklet's purpose is to suggest "various measures which the airlines and their personnel can take to help this bureau perform its job."

Hoover said the booklet will be widely distributed among airline employees.

The booklet, however, offers no helpful hints on how to prevent hijacking.

The omission tends to underscore a quandary facing not only government sleuths, but the airline industry as well which concedes little is being done or can be done to prevent the crime.

Wilson and Laborite Outlook: The Doghouse Days May Be Over

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI)—There are growing signs that Prime Minister Harold Wilson is beginning to fight his way at last out of Britain's national doghouse.

The outlook for Wilson and his governing Labor party, which looked bleak indeed early this summer, now is considered brighter than at any time in the past two years.

The Conservative opposition no longer is regarded as a certain shoe-in to win the next national parliamentary elections in 1970 or 1971.

Wilson, who only three months ago was rated in public opinion polls as Britain's most unpopular prime minister since World War II, now is thought to have a fighting chance of winning again.

A number of factors, both economic and political, have contributed toward boosting the Labor government's stock just when it appeared to have crashed to rockbottom.

Britain's June trade figures were the best for months. The excess of imports over exports was only 120 million dollars, compared with $206.4 million in April and May.

The nation's gold reserves suddenly increased by $50.4 million in July after months of critical losses. Shortly before that the world's leading central bank chiefs pledged an additional $2 billion to shore up the pound sterling.

Unemployment, now at the half million mark, is the highest for any summer since World War II. But many British experts are predicting cautiously that by late 1969 the jobless total will have fallen and the economy will show a real upturn.

In the political field Wilson won an unexpected bonus when the Conservatives, who long have been playing up internal Labor party bickering and fits, split wide open themselves on the civil rights issue. More than 40 Conservative rank-and-file lawmakers voted against the government's race relations bill.

In defiance of party leader Edward Heath.

Another small bonus came when Conservative peers, who constitute a majority in the House of Lords, flouted the government by throwing out a bill to tighten up sanctions against Rhodesia which had been passed by the lower house, the House of Commons.

This gave Wilson a chance to delight his supporters by delivering a public pledge to reform the upper house—a move that would be highly popular with Laborite voters.

Atomic Bomb Horror Observed In Hiroshima

HIROSHIMA, Japan (UPI)—Japan today observed the 23rd anniversary of the dropping of the world's first atomic bomb with prayers for peace, speeches against nuclear weapons and a message from Pope Paul VI.

A crowd of 40,000 persons gathered in Hiroshima to offer a silent prayer for the 200,000 victims of the first bomb.

Pope Paul sent a message to Hiroshima saying he hoped that political and military leaders would "act with great responsibility for the people and God."

Mayor Tetsuo Yamada said "many people in the world still have not awaked to the horror of the atomic and hydrogen bombs."

The mayor placed at a memorial a list of 1101 persons who died in the past year of after-effects of the bomb. Among them was former Mayor Shinzo Hamai.

Losers Reserves

PARIS (UPI)—France has lost a third of its $6 billion gold and foreign currency reserves in the last three months, the Finance Ministry said Monday. The loss was attributed to the student-labor uprising in May and June.

Wants Jetport In Northern New Jersey

NEW YORK (AP)—Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port of New York Authority, says "the overwhelming majority of the people know they would be best served" by a new jetport in the northern part of New Jersey.

Tobin made the statement Tuesday in an interview during which he discussed the congestion at the three jetports the authority now operates—Kennedy and La Guardia in New York City and Newark (N.J.) Airport.

The Port Authority had revealed on Monday that it was willing to consider a previously rejected site in Hunterdon County, N.J., 44 miles southwest of Manhattan, for the long sought fourth major jetport to serve the metropolitan area.

Tobin again expressed opposition to the proposal to construct a jetport now at Calverton on Long Island, 70 miles east of Manhattan. "You wouldn't get a single airline to go along with it, it would take two hours to get to town," he said.

Tobin said that unless congestion is relieved at the three present major jetports, the delays of up to six hours experienced recently could eventually come to be regarded as "normal delays." He said the tieups constitute "nothing less than a disastrous situation" for New York City.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst

Closed-end Funds
Attracting Attention

Q—How safe are investment companies? Do they give more than 5 per cent interest? Are they good for retired people?—D. B., Y. G.

A—Closed-end investment companies, totaling about 25 and listed on major exchanges, trade like industrial corporations. Portfolios of some companies are broadly diversified while others—American-South African, Eurofund, Japan Fund, National Aviation and Petroleum Corp.—are identified with special investment areas. Gross income is derived principally from dividends or interest and from capital gain on portfolio changes.

It is therefore to be expected that: (1) profitability will approximate the general market; (2) company expenses must be deducted from investment income before dividends are disbursed to shareholders; (3) and the latter will receive something less in yield than if they held the same securities individually.

Closed-end companies are considered safe long-term investments, their fortunes being linked, however, to their portfolio policies and management. In general, the dividends from investment income (the official definition of "dividend") run under 5 per cent and where strong growth situations are held the yield is likely to drop accordingly. If you consider the annual capital gains distribution as part of the dividend, some yields would reach 5 per cent and more. Nat. Aviation has paid a total of $5.73 from both sources so far in 1968. With the latter's shares trading around 42, the yield is 13.6 per cent.

Retired persons wishing to be free of investment details might appreciate the broad diversification offered by Domini Fund, Lehman Corp., Madison Fund or Tri-Continental Corp., plus the managerial skills which the investment companies have demonstrated over the years.

Q—Madison Fund has paid this year 12-15 per cent, I believe. Should I switch to Madison from Delmarva Power and Zenith Radio? I'm 70 years old.—W. K.

A—This switch, though boosting your income, will cost you something in broker's fees and possible taxes. Will the net result favor this switch? Madison is trading around 32 and has disbursed $3.36 this year—or 10½ per cent—of which $2.77 represents capital gains.

Kerhonkson, Kingston Bank Merger Okayed

State Superintendent of Banks Frank Wille Tuesday approved the merger of the $7 million-dollar Kerhonkson National Bank into the $38 million-dollar Kingston Trust Co.

The two Ulster County banks operate a total of nine offices. The Kingston Trust Company has three offices in the City of Kingston and offices at the Town of Ulster, Marlboro and Phoenixia. The Kerhonkson National Bank has offices at Kerhonkson, Stone Ridge and Hurley.

Under the provisions of the merger agreement all of the present directors of Kingston Trust Company and Kerhonkson National Bank will form the board of directors of the new merged bank.

Wille noted that the consolidation will "benefit customers" of the Kerhonkson bank "in several ways." He pointed that the Kingston bank offers 5½ interest on savings certificates, compared with a 4½ maximum at the smaller bank. In addition, all Kingston Trust regular savings accounts earn 4½ interest, while the Kerhonkson bank pays 3½ on deposits left with the bank less than one year.

"In addition a broader range of services, including FHA mortgage loans, personal trust services, and various types of specialized loans for small businessmen, together with significantly higher lending limits, will become available at three additional locations in the county," Wille said.

These benefits, he noted, outweigh the "adverse competitive factors which are present."

Wants Jetport In Northern New Jersey

NEW YORK (AP) — Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port of New York Authority, says "the overwhelming majority of the people know they would be best served" by a new jetport in the northern part of New Jersey.

Hearing Adjourned

Hearing in the case of Roberto Rivera, 16, of Ellenville, who was arrested Monday night on a charge of criminal trespass, was adjourned Tuesday night by Acting Village Judge Joseph Friedman until Sept. 17. Rivera was paroled in custody of his attorney, Joseph Kooperman. The youth was accused of swimming in the pool on the property of the Ellenville High School.

it would take two hours to get to town," he said.

Tobin said that unless congestion is relieved at the three present major jetports, the delays of up to six hours experienced recently could eventually come to be regarded as "normal delays." He said the tieups constitute "nothing less than a disastrous situation" for New York City.

PRICE-SETTING OUT

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Retail price maintenance (fair trade laws) will be outlawed in South Africa by mid-1969, as the result of Board of Trade and Industries recommendations accepted by Economic Affairs Minister Jan Haak.

Successful Investing....

by ROGER E. SPEAR
Investment Advisor & Analyst

Closed-end Funds
Attracting Attention

Q—How safe are investment companies? Do they give more than 5 per cent interest? Are they good for retired people?—D. B. Y. G.

A — Closed-end investment companies, totaling about 25 and listed on major exchanges, trade like industrial corporations. Portfolios of some companies are broadly diversified while others — American-South African, Eurofund, Japan Fund, National Aviation and Petroleum Corp. — are identified with special investment areas. Gross income is derived principally from dividends or interest and from capital gain on portfolio changes.

It is therefore to be expected that: (1) profitability will approximately parallel the general market; (2) company expenses must be deducted from investment income before dividends are disbursed to shareholders; (3) the latter will receive something less in yield than if they held the same securities individually.

Closed-end companies are considered safe long-term investments, their fortunes being linked, however, to their portfolio policies and management. In general, the dividends from investment income (the official definition of "dividend") run under 5 per cent and where strong growth situations are held the yield is likely to drop accordingly. If you consider the annual capital gains distribution as part of the dividend, some yields would reach 5 per cent and more. Nat. Aviation has paid a total of $5.73 from both sources so far in 1968. With the latter's shares trading around 42, the yield is 13.6 per cent.

Retired persons wishing to be free of investment details might appreciate the broad diversification offered by Domini Fund, Lehman Corp., Madison Fund or Tri-Continental Corp., plus the managerial skills which the investment companies have demonstrated over the years.

Q—Madison Fund has paid this year 12-15 per cent, I believe. Should I switch to Madison from Delmarva Power and Zenith Radio? I'm 70 years old. —W. K.

This switch, though boosting your income, will cost you something in broker's fees and possible taxes. Will the net result favor this switch? Madison is trading around 32 and has disbursed $3.36 this year—or 10½ per cent—of which $2.77 represents capital gains.

UNCOMMITTED — Pretty Cindy Chester of Miami frolics in the warm Florida surf. Judging from the posters decorating Cindy's surfboard, the young lovely appears to be uncommitted so far on a presidential candidate. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Volunteers Named For the CP Drive

Paul Modjeska and William Klein, co-chairmen of the Ulster-Greene Cerebral Palsy Fund Drive now going on in towns outside the Community Chest area, have announced the names of volunteers who will serve as town chairmen and workers.

Volunteers for the township of Denning: chairman Harold VanAken, Grahamsville, and chairman Mrs. Herbert George, Soudun; township of Hardenbergh, chairman Bowen Owen, Turnwood; township of Lloyd, workers Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rinaudo, Mrs. Daniel Alphonso, Mrs. Jack Mesquita; township of Olive, chairman Doris Dabney Jr., workers Robert Barrenger, Victor Fox, Edward Secor; township of Plattekill, chairman Donald Flemming; township of Rochester, chairman Mrs. Charles McGuffey; township of Shandaken, workers Mrs. Jane Rossitz, Mrs. Paul Herdman, Mrs. Rudolph Brasen; and township of Shawangunk, chairman Charles E. Penney.

Greene County will be under the supervision of Mrs. George Cobb and William White, both Catskill residents.

Volunteers for the townships of Gardiner, Marlboro and Wawarsing will be announced. "We are still looking for volunteers in these areas," Klein said. "Residents from these areas may contact the cerebral palsy center at 400 Broadway, Kingston, to offer their services for the drive. This is the only qualified agency in this area for the treatment of physical handicaps in children. It is important for the citizens to support the services provided by this agency. Without it, many children might be without correction or at best might have to travel many extra miles for treatment," he stated.

"We appreciate those named who have volunteered to work for this drive and hope that many others will willingly give their time, effort, and financial assistance to the cause," Modjeska added.

The goal of $9,000 for the drive complete this year's budget for the center and helps to provide the services for the 180 children from all sections of Ulster and Greene Counties now receiving treatment. The program is offered on a year round basis as it is necessary to provide continuous treatment to obtain the best results.

State Police Revision Will Affect Ulster

By WALTER S. CLARK

Realignment of troop areas by the New York State Police will affect Ulster, Greene, Sullivan, Rockland and Orange Counties when the new Troop F is activated upon completion of the change expected Monday, Aug. 12.

The revision of troop boundaries began last year with the establishment of a new troop, Troop E, with headquarters in Canandaigua.

The purpose of the addition of Troops E and F is to provide more compact and more easily manageable troop areas.

With the activation of Troop F, with headquarters in Middletown, Ulster County, presently in Troop C will be in Troop F, this also will include Greene County—now in Troop G, Sullivan, which has been in Troop C, and Rockland and Orange, which have been in Troop K.

Concurrently with the activation of Troop F, Columbia County, which has been in Troop G, will become part of Troop K. One result of these shifts will establish all of the "Troop K" territory—except for Suffolk County, where the state police have a station at Riverhead—on the east side of the Hudson River.

As to the headquarters for Troop K, now located at Hawthorne in Westchester County, it is planned to construct a new headquarters in Dutchess County and a study of possible sites is now in progress, according to Douglas S. Dales, director of public relations, New York State Police.

A Dutchess location would give Troop K a more central headquarters. There has been some suggestion that the Hawthorne headquarters be turned over to the East Hudson Parkway Authority for its headquarters when the installation in Dutchess has been built.

The construction of the new Troop K headquarters will not be undertaken in the immediate future since it will have to await an appropriation for construction from the Legislature. A request for construction funds will undoubtedly be made in the budget to be presented next January.

A plan is under way for a formal grand opening, that is an open house for Troop F headquarters, probably in October.

Lieut. Samuel J. Crodelle, Troop K zone commander for Dutchess, and surrounding counties, said recently a modern headquarters building for the troop will cost approximately $1,300,000. The complex will include a helicopter landing area and trooper training facilities.

An unconfirmed report indicated that among locations for Troop K's new facility under consideration is a 22-acre tract in Washington Hollow, a community in central Dutchess, known to local residents as "the turkey farm" and many years ago the site of the Dutchess County Fair.

Crodelle noted that funds have been appropriated for the land acquisition. The lieutenant explained that larger troop components statewide have been split up "in order to have a little better administrative control."

The walk scheduled to continue to 6 p. m. will be southward through the level woods across Route 299 to the Smiley's south 40 acres. Returning the nature walkers will eat at the Gateway tower which will be open for their convenience.

Mobile Classroom Popular in Bay State

By JOANNE OMANG

CHESTER, Mass. (UPI)—The bus is bright yellow and "School Bus" is painted on the outside, but just about everything else is different.

Since February, about 500 elementary school students in three isolated communities of western Massachusetts have been taking field trips on this bus, and attending class at the same time. It's a "Modern Moving Classroom," a mobile audio-visual center designed to change the getting-there from a free-for-all into an educational experience.

"It was a very simple idea," says its originator, Melvin D. Ferris, Jr., 42, superintendent of schools for Chester, Becket and Middlefield, Mass.

"Educational television has been pushing the idea of 'education packages' in which all the courses are correlated and field trips are part of the plan. I just wanted to make the trip itself less of a waste of time."

The mobile classroom has white vinyl bucket seats for 30 students, each of whom is seat-belted down and equipped with earphones and a microphone. The teacher occupies a swivel chair in the front of the red-carpeted bus, and conducts the moving class over loudspeakers above the seats or through an intercom system. There are no desks, but the bus is equipped with closed-circuit television, slide and movie projectors and a screen, plus red shades to darken the interior.

The lessons usually involve the trip," said Ferris. "The trips themselves are not too long—usually an hour to an hour and a half—and are very specific. Where before a group might have toured an entire museum, for example, now the science class goes to view the reptiles, say, and comes back. That preserves the rest of the museum for other trips and avoids tiring and confusion."

Each student can look forward to about one trip per month since the bus is used once a day and 18 teachers are involved in the program.

The project is funded by a $138,000 three-year federal grant under the Education Act Title III "innovations" section. The special bus was built by the Wayne, Ind., Bus Co. and equipped for a total cost of $16,500, a sum Ferris thinks can be reduced.

"We use it for adult classes, local church and civic group trips too," he said.

Ferris thinks the project has been an unqualified success. "The children love it, and they're learning," he said. "It would be great for ghetto students, to get them out of the city, let them look at the countryside and let the countryside get a look at them." Neighboring school districts have all expressed interest in copying the idea.

Volunteers Named For the CP Drive

Paul Modjeska and William Klein, co-chairmen of the Ulster-Greene Cerebral Palsy Fund Drive now going on in towns outside the Community Chest area, have announced the names of volunteers who will serve as town chairmen and workers.

Volunteers for the township of Denning: chairman Harold VanAken, Grahamsville and chairman Mrs. Herbert George, Sundown; township of Hardenbergh, chairman Bowen Owen, Turnwood; township of Lloyd, workers Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rinaudo, Mrs. Daniel Alphonso, Mrs. Jack Mesquita; township of Olive, chairman Doris Dabney Jr., workers Robert Barrenger, Victor Fox, Edward Secor; township of Plattekill, chairman Donald Flemming; township of Rochester, chairman Mrs. Charles McGuffey; township of Shandaken, workers Mrs. Jane Rossitz, Mrs. Paul Herdman, Mrs. Rudolph Brasen; and township of Shawangunk, chairman Charles E. Penney.

Greene County will be under the supervision of Mrs. George Cobb and William White, both Catskill residents.

Volunteers for the townships of Gardiner, Marlboro and Wawarsing will be announced. "We are still looking for volunteers in these areas," Klein said. "Residents from these areas may contact the cerebral palsy center at 400 Broadway, Kingston, to offer their services for the drive. This is the only qualified agency in this area for the treatment of physical handicaps in children. It is important for the citizens to support the services provided by this agency. Without it, many children might be without correction or at best might have to travel many extra miles for treatment," he stated.

"We appreciate those named who have volunteered to work for this drive and hope that many others will willingly give their time, effort, and financial assistance to the cause," Modjeska added.

The goal of $9,000 for the drive complete's this year's budget for the center and helps to provide the services for the 180 children from all sections of Ulster and Greene Counties now receiving treatment. The program is offered on a year round basis as it is necessary to provide continuous treatment to obtain the best results.

State Police Revision Will Affect Ulster

By WALTER S. CLARK

Reassignment of troop areas by the New York State Police will affect Ulster, Greene, Sullivan, Rockland and Orange Counties when the new Troop F is activated upon completion of the change expected Monday, Aug. 12.

The revision of troop boundaries began last year with the establishment of a new troop, Troop E, with headquarters in Canandaigua.

The purpose of the addition of Troops E and F is to provide more compact and more easily manageable troop areas.

With the activation of Troop F, with headquarters in Middletown, Ulster County, presently in Troop C will be in Troop F, this also will include Greene County—now in Troop G, Sullivan, which has been in Troop C, and Rockland and Orange, which have been in Troop K.

Concurrently with the activation of Troop F, Columbia County, which has been in Troop G, will become part of Troop K. One result of these shifts will establish all of the Troop K territory—except for Suffolk County, where the state police have a station at Riverhead—on the east side of the Hudson River.

As to the headquarters for Troop K, now located at Hawthorne in Westchester County, it is planned to construct a new headquarters in Dutchess County and a study of possible sites is now in progress, according to Douglas S. Dales, director of public relations, New York State Police.

A Dutchess location would give Troop K a more central headquarters. There has been some suggestion that the Hawthorne headquarters be turned over to the East Hudson Parkway Authority for its headquarters when the installation in Dutchess has been built.

The construction of the new Troop K headquarters will not be undertaken in the immediate future since it will have to await an appropriation for construction from the Legislature. A request for construction funds will undoubtedly be made once.

Major King Visits USS Arizona On Leave From Viet Fighting

MR. AND MRS. KING IN HAWAII

Army Major and Mrs. Charles T. King of West Hurley, had a close-up look at history July 25. They were among the 1,186 people to visit the USS Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

King is stationed in Vietnam. He and Mrs. King visited the Memorial while he was on 5 days rest and recreation leave in Hawaii.

The USS Arizona Memorial is constructed over the hulk of the battleship, sunk during the first minutes of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. Over 1,000 officers and men are still entombed in the ship which rests in 35 feet of water near Ford Island.

The Memorial was erected in 1962 from federal, state and private funds to pay tribute to the 2,341 servicemen killed during the attack. It spans the hull of the Arizona transversely. No part of the 184 foot long structure or its supports touches the ship.

The Arizona was hit hardest of all the battleships moored at Battleship Row the morning of December 7. The ship was struck several times before taking the final blow, a delayed action 2,000 pound bomb. It penetrated near the number two gun turret and exploded in the forward fuel and ammunition storage areas. Arizona literally erupted like a volcano and went to the bottom of the harbor in less than nine minutes.

The ship was too extensively damaged to refloat and repair during the war. Navy divers explored the possibilities of raising the Arizona in 1947.

Work stopped, however, when two of the men were killed by a gas pocket explosion while cutting the hull with a torch.

The Navy decided to leave the ship at rest in the harbor as an integral part of the shrine. Funds to build a suitable memorial over the USS Arizona became available in 1962.

The Memorial is divided into three areas. The first is the museum area housing mementoes from the ship. The second is the assembly area large

MR. AND MRS. KING IN HAWAII

Major King Visits USS Arizona On Leave From Viet Fighting

Army Major and Mrs. Charles T. King of West Hurley, had a close-up look at history July 25. They were among the 1,186 people to visit the USS Arizona Memorial at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii.

King is stationed in Vietnam. He and Mrs. King visited the Memorial while he was on 5 days rest and recreation leave in Hawaii.

The USS Arizona Memorial is constructed over the hulk of the battleship, sunk during the first minutes of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Dec. 7, 1941. Over 1,000 officers and men are still entombed in the ship which rests in 35 feet of water near Ford Island.

The Memorial was erected in 1962 from federal, state and private funds to pay tribute to the 2,341 servicemen killed during the attack. It spans the hull of the Arizona transverse-ly. No part of the 184 foot long structure or its supports touches the ship.

The Arizona was hit hardest of all the battleships moored at Battleship Row the morning of December 7. The ship was struck several times before taking the final blow, a delayed action 2,000 pound bomb. It penetrated near the number two gun turret and exploded in the forward fuel and ammunition storage areas.

Arizona literally erupted like a volcano and went to the bottom of the harbor in less than nine minutes.

The ship was too extensively damaged to refloat and repair during the war. Navy divers explored the possibilities of raising the Arizona in 1947.

Work stopped, however, when two of the men were killed by a gas pocket explosion while cutting the hull with a torch.

The Navy decided to leave the ship at rest in the harbor as an integral part of the shrine. Funds to build a suitable memorial over the USS Arizona became available in 1962.

The Memorial is divided into three areas. The first is the museum area housing mementoes from the ship. The second is the assembly area large enough to accommodate 200 persons for ceremonies. The third is the shrine room. The marble wall of this room is engraved with the names of the

Steel Firms Face Critical Period

WASHINGTON (AP) — The steel-price controversy entered its critical period today with industry and government sources saying if there is no retreat by Thursday there probably won't be any for weeks—if at all.

This prediction was based by well informed sources on two factors: Evidence the industry is feeling government pressure and the fact the key Bethlehem Steel Corp. price hikes take effect Thursday.

Rapids Open 13th Bazaar, Party Thursday

Rapid Hose Co. No. 1 and its Ladies' Auxiliary will open the fire company's 13th annual bazaar and block party Thursday night at 7 o'clock at the firehouse on Hone Street between West Pierpont and Spring Streets.

The bazaar will remain open each night through Saturday. Henry Boice and Mrs. Dorothy Lenahan are co-chairmen of this year's event.

Proceeds from the annual bazaar enables the firemen and Ladies' Auxiliary to support these community projects:

An annual nursing scholarship of $100 to a high school graduate donated by Ladies' Auxiliary; financial support to a baseball team in the Babe Ruth League; Christmas candy to children in Rapid Hose Co. No. 1 area; hospital beds and wheel chairs available to the sick; support to Firemen's Home in Hudson.

Boice, president of the company, and Mrs. Lenahan, head of the Ladies' Auxiliary, invite all friends and neighbors of the firemen to join in an evening of fun.

Taxpayers Pass Proposal In Dutchess

Dutchess County taxpayers last night passed a five million dollar school construction program for occupational education and education of the handicapped by a margin of almost two and one-half to one.

Over 3,700 voters from the 13 school districts in the county went to the polls to vote on the proposal that would increase the tax burden of Dutchess residents in order to provide funds for the construction of a permanent site for the Dutchess County Board of Cooperative Educational Services.

2,662 registered county taxpayers voted in favor of the proposal with 1,104 voting against. Of the 13 school districts in the county, 12 voted in favor of the project. The only dissenting vote came from the Webutuck Central School system where voters turned down the proposal by a 124-59 margin.

The new BOCES facilities will be located on a 61-acre site at the junction of Salt Point Turnpike and Peach Road in the southeast corner of the Town of Hyde Park.

The new structure will include classroom and laboratory facilities for 1,240 high school students on a split session basis. The annual combined cost to the school districts has been estimated at $440,000, with an average tax rate of 43 cents per thousand dollars of true value per year.

BOCES is presently housed in temporary quarters, with an average yearly rental fee of almost $300,000. Final plans for the new structure will be drawn up by the architectural firm of Clark and Warren.

This Frog Quite Unusual

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Roberta (or maybe it is Robert) is a uncommon frog that occupies her own little apartment in the Buffalo Museum of Science.

While most frogs are green, Roberta is "as yellow as boiled corn, and has ruby-red eyes," zoologist David M. Bigelow said Saturday.

The unusual animal, found under a rock last week by a 12-year-old nature lover exploring the museum's nature center, received its unusual coloration through biological short-changing.

Bigelow explained that most frogs receive proper proportions of blue and yellow pigment, which mix to give them a green hue.

Roberta-the animal's sex is undetermined as yet-was hatched without the blue pigment because of a genetic malfunction, leaving her a translucent golden yellow.

An absence of pigmentation in her eyes allows tiny blood vessels to show through, giving them a red cast.

Thomas F. Hart Jr. of the nearby town of Tonawanda said he found Roberta under a rock. "I turned the rock over. We thought it was a rubber frog at first. Then it hopped, so I grabbed it," he said.

Bigelow, curator of education at the museum, said Roberta's unusual coloration places the animal somewhere between normal frogs and albinos on a zoological level.

He explained that the cell machinery-the genes-for making pigment were present, but that the instructions to the cells to make blue pigment were missing.

"Albinos, creatures totally lacking in pigmentation, show up now and then in nature," Bigelow said. "Our yellow frog on 10,000 represents a sort of halfway approach to albinism since it received only half the pigment it should have."

Bigelow said Roberta was about three years old. The average frog has a life expectancy of about six years.

Ellenville's Masonic Hall Facing 'Ball'

The old Masonic Hall on Canal Street in Ellenville will finally be coming down.

The latest victim of urban renewal demolition will be razed by the Stachnik Lumber and Wrecking Co. of Phillipsburg, N. J., a firm which has been involved in a number of Ellenville demolition projects in the past.

Prices for the work was set at $43,000.

There had been a problem after it was learned that the company was the only firm to openly bid on the project which is considered a delicate job because the old building rests between two other structures.

Under the Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations, at least two bids had to be received.

The HUD office in New York City waived the requirement however in that Stachnik had been a consistently low bidder in past projects, with the company's performance being "quite adequate," according to Village Mayor Eugene Glusker.

Also coming down is the Busy Bee Bar and Grill.

The sponsor for the property is David Winer, owner of Ellenville Wire TV Co., Inc.

It was pointed out at Monday's village board meeting that Winer planned to build an office building at the site.

MODEL FLIGHT — Preparing for the Kingston Aeromodelers Club meet Sunday, Carol Ecker inspects model plane. Leading Ukrainian Prelate Will Visit Ellenville Area

The highest ranking prelate in the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Josyf Cardinal Slipij, on his first tour of the United States will be in the Ellenville area Thursday.

To the 6.5 million Ukrainian Rite Catholics in the world Archbishop Slipij is revered as their primate, second only to Pope Paul. He is touring the United States and Canada en route to the International Eucharist Congress in Bogota, Columbia.

2 p.m. Arrival
During his visit to the Mid-Hudson area, Archbishop Slipij will offer divine liturgy at Hunter 11 a.m. Thursday, later traveling to Ellenville where arrival is scheduled at 2 p.m. At 6 p.m. he will officiate at Moleben at Soyuzivka, the Ukrainian National Association Resort near Kerhonkson.

The 76-year-old prelate arrived in North America June 14 for visits to the faithful in Ukrainian communities throughout the far flung provinces of Canada.

His United States tour started with arrival in Philadelphia July 20. Since that time he has received an honorary degree at Loyola University in Chicago and been feted by all faiths at a testimonial banquet in Detroit, Mich.

Last Saturday he officiated at a celebrated Mass in the Singer Bowl, Flushing before some 7,500 followers. A luncheon at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel followed the colorful rites.

During the week, the Archbishop has been visiting upstate New York communities of Elmira, Auburn and Syracuse; as well as parts of Pennsylvania and Connecticut.

After his Ulster County visit the Archbishop will return to St. Basil's Seminary in Stamford, Conn. He departs for the international conference Aug. 14.

Imprisoned by Soviets
Cardinal Slipij was imprisoned in a Soviet slave camp from 1945 to 1962. After his release he took up residence in the Vatican. The charges against the prelate were high treason and communicating with a foreign power. Although the foreign power was never made public, one of several theories was that it meant the Pope.

Several versions have been offered as to the story surrounding the Archbishop's dramatic release from Siberia. One of them leans heavily on Vatican Rites prelate and suggests meetings between Vatican emissaries and with observer delegates of the Moscow Patriarchate of the Russian Orthodox Church which overran the Ukrainian Catholic domain in 1944.

It was during the church's dark days in 1944 that Cardinal Slipij was elevated to Metropolitan of Lviv succeeding Metropolitan Sheptytsky who died in November of that year. Under the regime of the Communists who took over the Ukraine at that time many of the Ukrainian church leaders were sentenced to slave labor camps.

18 Years in Siberia
After spending a total of 18 years of imprisonment in Siberia, the Archbishop was finally released by the Soviets and reached Rome Feb. 9, 1963 where he was personally greeted by Pope John, the one who had engineered his release.

For a time the Ukrainian prelate resided at the Monastery of St. Nilus outside Rome. He later moved to apartments in Vatican City.

In December of that year he was named a Consultor of the Sacred Congregation for the Oriental Church and was later named Archbishop Major in accordance with Pope Paul's decree on the Eastern Church. He thus acquired the rights equivalent to those of a Patriarch and on Feb. 22, 1965 was one of the 27 new Cardinals named by the Holy See.

During his stay in the Vatican, the prelate has continued his scholarly works. A 12-volume series of his theological and philosophical writings will be published in the near future.

County Fair Will Open on Friday

By CHARLES BERMPHOHL

The fair is coming to Ulster County and the New Paltz event, starting on Friday and continuing through Sunday, may prove to be the greatest ever.

There will be carnival rides and pony rides, exhibits by the district attorney's office and the Home Economics Committee of Ulster County, pizzas and cotton candy, prize cabbages and young heifers.

Sponsored by the county's Agricultural Society, the Aug. 9, 10, and 11 show will take place on the sprawling county farm grounds on Libertyville Road, about three miles from the village of New Paltz.

Perhaps the most unusual single project will be the draft horse pulling contest, staged by the Ulster County Sheriff's Posse.

The contest, open to light and heavyweight draft horses, a first for the annual fair, will be Saturday at 5 p.m. with proceeds going to the Ulster County unit of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Anne Bentzen of Woodstock will lead the parade of horses on her prized stallion in an event chaired by Sheriff William B. Martin.

On Friday at 8 p.m. the "Denizens of Sound," a musical group, will be featured.

The New Paltz Agway will answer questions on farm and garden; there will be a display for the World Book, and one for the Plough Publishing Company of Rifton, the only publishing house in Ulster County.

The Hurley Saddle Shop will display horse and rider equipment, the State University College at New Paltz will feature an art show, and the New Paltz Highland Rotary Clubs will operate information booths to define and point out the varied facets of the fair.

An unusual display will be liquid paint embroidery by Mrs. Eleanor Sepesi.

There will be afghans, rugs, and quilts; tablecloths and bedspreads; clothing; decorative stitching; crocheted, knitted, and woven articles.

Fair improvements over last year include greater parking areas, improved lighting of the exhibition area and horse show east of the farm buildings toward the infirmary, a large sheep show area and an improved public address system.

9 a. m. Opening

The fair kick off starts at 9 a. m. Friday with the 4-H cattle showmanship contest.

At 10 a. m., judging will begin on open class cattle, poultry, open class fruits and vegetables, and 4-H homemaking exhibits, with 7:30 p. m. marking the 4-H Club's annual fair Dress Revue.

Saturday will feature the all day horse shows and showman-ship contests and a 4-H tractor contest.

On Sunday, fairgoers will be treated to the gigantic open class horse show that will exhibit horses and horsemen from Southeastern New York, plus men and animals from Connecticut and New Jersey. The only free admission fair in New York State will also have a ferris wheel for the youngsters. Educational exhibits will also be put on by the home economics group, the Ulster County Chapter of the New York State Diabetes Association, Ulster County Community College, and the YMCA.

T.B. Health Exhibit

The Y will also display a model of its new building. Robert E. Johnson, executive director of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, will direct an exhibit on TB and other respiratory diseases and their control, with an "outpatients" booth showing patient services and therapies offered.

Most famous blizzard in American history is that of March 11, 1888, in the northeastern states.

MODEL FLIGHT — Preparing for the Kingston Aeromodelers Club meet Sunday, Carol Ecker inspects model plane. The annual radio controlled model airplane contest will be held from 12:30 p. m. until dark on the club's flying field behind the Flatbush Reformed Church, three miles north of the Rhinecliff Bridge on Route 32. Refreshments will be available. The meet promises to be the largest of its type ever held in the Kingston area.

Leading Ukrainian Prelate Will Visit Ellenville Area

The highest ranking prelate in the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Josyf Cardinal Slipij, on his first tour of the United States will be in the Ellenville area Thursday.

To the 6.5 million Ukrainian Rite Catholics in the world, Archbishop Slipij is revered as their primate, second only to Pope Paul. He is touring the United States and Canada en route to the International Eucharistic Congress in Bogota, Columbia.

2 p.m. Arrival
During his visit to the Mid-Hudson area, Archbishop Slipij will offer divine liturgy at Hunter 11 a.m. Thursday, later traveling to Ellenville where arrival is scheduled at 2 p.m. At 6 p.m. he will officiate at Moleben at Soyuzivka, the Ukrainian National Association Resort near Kerhonkson.

The 76-year-old prelate arrived in North America June 14 for visits to the faithful in Ukrainian communities throughout the far flung provinces of Canada.

His United States tour started with arrival in Philadelphia July 20. Since that time he has received an honorary degree at Loyola University in Chicago and been feted by all faiths at a testimonial banquet in Detroit, Mich.

Last Saturday he officiated at a concelebrated Mass in the Singer Bowl, Flushing before 14,000.

Imprisoned by Soviets
Cardinal Slipij was imprisoned in a Soviet slave camp from 1945 to 1962. After his release he took up residence in the Vatican. The charges against the prelate were high treason and communicating with a foreign power. Although the foreign power was never made public, one of several theories was that it meant the Pope.

Several versions have been offered as to the story surrounding the Archbishop's dramatic release from Siberia. One of them leans heavily on Vatican interest in the Eastern Rites prelate and suggests meetings between Vatican emissaries and with observer delegates of the Moscow Patriarchate of the Russian Orthodox Church which overran the Ukrainian Catholic domain in 1944.

18 Years in Siberia
After spending a total of 18 years of imprisonment in Siberia, the Archbishop was finally released by the Soviets and reached Rome Feb. 9, 1963 where he was personally greeted by Pope John, the one who had engineered his release.

For a time the Ukrainian prelate resided at the Monastery of St. Nilus outside Rome. He later moved to apartments in Vatican City.

In December of that year he was named a Consultor of the Sacred Congregation for the Oriental Church and was later named Archbishop Major in accordance with Pope Paul's decree on the Eastern Church. He thus acquired the rights equivalent to those of a Patriarch and on Feb. 22, 1965 was one of the 27 new Cardinals named by the Holy See.

During his stay in the Vatican, the prelate has continued his scholarly works. A 12-volume series of his theological and philosophical writings will be published in the near future.

County Fair Will Open on Friday

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
The fair is coming to Ulster County and the New Paltz the Ulster County Sheriff's event, starting on Friday and continuing through Sunday, may prove to be the greatest ever.

There will be carnival rides and pony rides, exhibits by the district attorney's office and the Home Economics Committee of Ulster County, pizzas and cotton candy, prize cabbages and young heifers.

Sponsored by the county's Agricultural Society, the Aug. 9, 10, and 11 show will take place on the sprawling county farm grounds on Libertyville Road, about three miles from the village of New Paltz.

Perhaps the most unusual single project will be the draft horse pulling contest, staged by the Ulster County Sheriff's Posse.

The contest, open to light and heavyweight draft horses, a first for the annual fair, will be Saturday at 5 p.m. with proceeds going to the Ulster County unit of the American Cancer Society.

Miss Anne Bentzen of Woodstock will lead the parade of horses on her prized stallion in an event chaired by Sheriff William B. Martin.

On Friday at 8 p.m. the "Denizens of Sound," a musical group, will be featured.

The New Paltz Agway will answer questions on farm and garden; there will be a display for the World Book, and one for the Plough Publishing Company of Rifton, the only publishing house in Ulster County.

The Hurley Saddle Shop will display horse and rider equipment, the State University College at New Paltz will feature an art show, and the New Paltz-Highland Rotary Clubs will operate information booths to define and point out the varied facets of the fair.

An unusual display will be liquid paint embroidery by Mrs. Eleanor Sepesti.

There will be afghans, rugs, and quilts; tablecloths and bedspreads; clothing; decorative stitching; crocheted, knitted, and woven articles.

Fair improvements over last year include greater parking areas, improved lighting of the exhibition area and horse show ring, enlarged exhibit area just east of the farm buildings to- ward the infirmary, a larger sheep show area and an im- proved public address system.

9 a. m. Opening
The fair kick off starts at 9 a. m. Friday with the 4-H cattle showmanship contest.

At 10 a. m., judging will be- gin on open class cattle, poultry, open class fruits and vege- tables, and 4-H homemaking exhibits, with 7:30 p. m. marking the 4-H Club's annual fair Dress Revue.

Saturday will feature the all County TB and Health Associ- ation, will direct an exhibit on TB and other respiratory dis- eases and their control, with an "outpatients" booth showing patient services and therapies offered.

On Sunday, fairgoers will be treated to the gigantic open class horse show that will ex- hibit horses and horsemen from Southeastern New York, plus men and animals from Connecticut and New Jersey. The only free admission fair theastern states.

Seeks Improved Conditions In Big City Neighborhoods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare secretary Wilbur J. Cohen says integration may be a generation away in many northern city school systems and the goal in the meantime should be to improve conditions in black neighborhoods.

"I think we have to be realistic," the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare said. "In a large number of big city areas we have a lot of neighborhoods that are going to be completely black."

But, he said, "if we can have good schools and good police protection (in such areas), maybe that's better than having fear and riots. And maybe another generation will have to deal with integration."

Cohen also said in an interview that busing of students between slum and other neighborhoods is not the answer to desegregating school systems.

"I have never thought that busing was a very large-scale answer to this problem and I don't think most people do," he said. "I don't see it as more than a temporary expedient. Over-all, nationally, it is not the answer."

Asked whether his assessment means that greater emphasis should be placed on making Negro schools better, he said: "Yes, I think so."

Cohen called for expansion of the $1-billion-a-year program of federal education aid to poor youngsters.

The secretary also said that his department plans to "step up very substantially and materially" its program to assure equal educational opportunities for Negro children in Northern schools.

The Northern program, begun early this year, is an extension of HEW's civil rights compliance efforts in Southern school systems.

Cohen acknowledged that expansion of the Northern program would be required under provisions inserted by Southerners in a bill pending before Congress. The provision would require HEW to assign as many school civil rights investigators to the North as it does to the South.

He said, however, that the department planned to expand the northern program anyway.

Seeks Improved Conditions In Big City Neighborhoods

WASHINGTON (AP) — Welfare secretary Wilbur J. Cohen says integration may be a generation away in many northern city school systems and the goal in the meantime should be to improve conditions in black neighborhoods.

"I think we have to be realistic," the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare said. "In a large number of big city areas we have a lot of neighborhoods that are going to be completely black."

But, he said, "if we can have good schools and good police protection (in such areas), maybe that's better than having fear and riots. And maybe another generation will have to deal with integration."

Cohen also said in an interview that busing of students between slum and other neighborhoods is not the answer to desegregating school systems.

"I have never thought that busing was a very large-scale answer to this problem and I don't think most people do," he said. "I don't see it as more than a temporary expedient. Over-all, nationally, it is not the answer."

Asked whether his assessment means that greater emphasis should be placed on making Negro schools better, he said: "Yes, I think so."

Cohen called for expansion of the $1-billion-a-year program of federal education aid to poor youngsters.

The secretary also said that his department plans to "step up very substantially and materially" its program to assure equal educational opportunities for Negro children in Northern schools.

The Northern program, begun early this year, is an extension of HEW's civil rights compliance efforts in Southern school systems.

Cohen acknowledged that expansion of the Northern program would be required under provisions inserted by Southerners in a bill pending before Congress. The provision would require HEW to assign as many school civil rights investigators to the North as it does to the South.

He said, however, that the department planned to expand the northern program anyway.

Guidelines Set On 'Death' Pronouncement

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — "brain death" or "irreversible coma" should be a basis for pronouncing death even though in some cases the heart may continue to beat.

A set of medical guidelines for such a definition, published in today's issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, says it is needed for two reasons:

— "Improvements in resuscitation and supportive measures which have led to increased efforts to save those who are desperately injured. Individuals whose hearts continue to beat but whose brains are irreversibly damaged."

— "The use of obsolete criteria for the definition of death which can lead to controversy in obtaining organs for transplantation."

The 12-member committee is composed of the faculties of medicine, public health, divinity and arts and sciences. Its chairman is Dr. Henry K. Beecher, professor of research in anesthesiology at Harvard and the Massachusetts General Hospital.

The group set numerous guidelines for determining the characteristics of a "permanently nonfunctioning brain," including clinical tests for unresponsiveness and unresponsiveness, lack of movement and breathing, and absence of reflexes. It also suggested obtaining confirmatory data by the electroencephalogram.

The committee said that clinical and other tests should be repeated at least 24 hours after the initial tests. They said final determination of death should be made only by a physician, not by the family, and that the decision "should be made by physicians not involved in any later effort to transplant organs or tissue from the deceased individual."

The committee said it thought that if new criteria for pronouncing death in an individual sustaining irreversible coma as a result of permanent brain damage were to be adopted by

New Paltz College President To Assume Post in Sept.

Prominently recommended to the Board of Trustees by the College Council headed by Leland F. Sillin Jr., former president of Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., Dr. John J. Neumaier will assume the duties of president of State University College in New Paltz in late September.

Dr. Neumaier will come to New Paltz from Moorhead State College in Moorhead, Minn., where he held the position of president. He was first selected as a potential candidate by a faculty committee at the New Paltz college last January and also was recommended for the post by Lawrence A. Quilty, well-known Kingston insurance man.

Born in Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, Dr. Neumaier attended schools in his native country, Switzerland, Italy and England before coming to the United States during World War II.

Mother Nazi Victim

His mother, Leonore Schwartz-Neumaier, a famed opera singer in Germany before the war, was reported murdered by the Nazis in 1942. Dr. Neumaier did not learn of her death until after the war ended. Sillin had described Dr. Neumaier as a scholar with exceptional leadership abilities, who is "held in the highest regard not only by his colleagues but also by leaders in other fields."

Dr. John H. Jacobson, acting president at the college, said of Dr. Neumaier, "he has earned an enviable reputation among civic leaders and educators throughout Minnesota for his contributions to the progress of the college and for his role and experience in civic affairs."

A former Rotary Club president and member of the Minnesota Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Dr. Neumaier's first job in America was with the Lewis Bolt and Nut Company in Minnesota. He is the author of his PhD dissertation on, "The Social Philosophy of Bertrand Russell and Its Relation to Logic, Ethics and Sociology."

The April 21, 1966 issue of The Mistic, a Moorhead College student newspaper, said, Dr. Neumaier regarded his main goals in the Minnesota College as being "to provide a firm liberal arts education foundation for all students regardless of the degree, to build a strong faculty, to approve the academic standards of the college and to make the community aware of the support which is needed for a good educational institution."

Drew Pearson, noted political writer whose column is published on the editorial page of The Kingston Daily Freeman, reported that Dr. Neumaier recently led a delegation of supporters of Senator Eugene McCarthy out of a Democratic Farmer-Labor party convention in St. Paul, Minn., where alleged "steamroller" tactics were used in support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Pearson said Dr. Neumaier led the delegation out of the convention auditorium "shouting at the top of his lungs"

that the Humphrey crowd were "fascists," according to Pearson's July 7 column.

Vice President Humphrey was a principal organizer of the DF-L party considered to be activists of strong liberal persuasion.

Pearson, in the July column wrote, "Minnesota has a sensitive, highly intelligent electorate, and to it, the chief issue has been the war (Vietnam)."

The columnist wrote that trouble at the convention began within the ranks of the organization because "Hubert Humphrey has refused to deviate from his war support of the President."

"Steamroller tactics" were used, Pearson said the McCarthy supporters charged, when Humphrey backers voted down a resolution on the war, the final tally being 600 to 400.

Under the heading "Minnesota Is Bitter" included with the Pearson by-line, the columnist wrote that the DF-L "is immersed in bitterness" and he spotlighted the Neumaier action as one example of the bitterness.

New Paltz College President To Assume Post in Sept.

Prominently recommended to the Board of Trustees by the College Council headed by Leland F. Sillin Jr., former president of Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., Dr. John J. Neumaier will assume the duties of president of State University College in New Paltz in late September.

Dr. Neumaier will come to New Paltz from Moorhead State College in Moorhead, Minn., where he held the position of president. He was first selected as a potential candidate by a faculty committee at the New Paltz college last January and also was recommended for the post by Lawrence A. Quilty, well-known Kingston insurance man.

Born in Frankfort-on-Main, Germany, Dr. Neumaier attended schools in his native country, Switzerland, Italy and England before coming to the United States during World War II.

Mother Nazi Victim

His mother, Leonore Schwartz-Neumaier, a famed opera singer in Germany before the war, was reported murdered by the Nazis in 1942. Dr. Neumaier did not learn of her death until after the war ended. Sillin had described Dr. Neumaier as a scholar with exceptional leadership abilities, who is "held in the highest regard not only by his colleagues but also by leaders in other fields."

Dr. John H. Jacobson, acting president at the college, said of Dr. Neumaier, "he has earned an enviable reputation among civic leaders and educators throughout Minnesota for his contributions to the progress of the college and for his role and experience in civic affairs."

A former Rotary Club president and member of the Minnesota Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, Dr. Neumaier's first job in America was with the Lewis Bolt and Nut Company in Minnesota. He is the author of his PhD dissertation on, "The Social Philosophy of Bertrand Russell and Its Relation to Logic, Ethics and Sociology."

The April 21, 1966 issue of The Mistic, a Moorhead College student newspaper, said, Dr. Neumaier regarded his main goals in the Minnesota College as being "to provide a firm liberal arts education foundation for all students regardless of the degree, to build a strong faculty, to approve the academic standards of the college and to make the community aware of the support which is needed for a good educational institution."

Drew Pearson, noted political writer whose column is published on the editorial page of The Kingston Daily Freeman, reported that Dr. Neumaier recently led a delegation of supporters of Senator Eugene McCarthy out of a Democratic Farmer-Labor party convention in St. Paul, Minn., where alleged "steamroller" tactics were used in support of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Pearson said Dr. Neumaier led the delegation out of the convention auditorium "shouting at the top of his lungs"

that the Humphrey crowd were "fascists," according to Pearson's July 7 column.

Vice President Humphrey was a principal organizer of the DFL party considered to be activists of strong liberal persuasion.

Pearson, in the July column wrote, "Minnesota has a sensitive, highly intelligent electorate, and to it, the chief issue has been the war (Vietnam)."

The columnist wrote that trouble at the convention began within the ranks of the organization because "Hubert Humphrey has refused to deviate from his war support of the President."

"Steamroller tactics" were used, Pearson said the McCarthy supporters charged, when Humphrey backers voted down a resolution on the war, the final tally being 600 to 400.

Under the heading "Minnesota Is Bitter" included with the Pearson by-line, the columnist wrote that the DFL "is immersed in bitterness" and he spotlighted the Neumaier action as one example of the bitterness.

Non-Italian Pope Suggested

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—Pope Paul's controversial encyclical on birth control is expected to result in pressure from church liberals for the election of a non-Italian as the next pope.

The liberals are, of course, generally disappointed with the Pope's decision to stand firm in opposition to artificial means of birth control.

Some of them already have expressed the opinion that this stand may remain unchanged so long as the Pope comes from Italy, since Italian clerics tend to conservatism on such questions.

Aside from birth control, some of them feel the liberal cause in general would be better with a non-Italian Pope. At this juncture it is nearly pointless to speculate where a non-Italian Pope might come from. Pope Paul, now nearly 71, could live several more years.

An American probably would not be acceptable because many cardinals could not want to see the papacy directly identified with a great world power that is involved in so many of the world's political disputes.

This could compromise what the late Pope John XXIII called the "supranational neutrality" of the papacy.

There has not been a non-Italian Pope since Adrian VI, a Dutchman from Utrecht, reigned in 1522-23.

Many people assume that the Italians would resent the election of a non-Italian Pope, since the Pope is bishop of Rome.

Pope Paul, now nearly 71, could live several more years and the composition of the College of Cardinals could be drastically changed before he dies. But if the election were being held today it seems doubtful any of the leaders of the liberal movement in Holland, Belgium, Germany and France could succeed in getting the necessary two-thirds vote because they would be opposed by most Italian cardinals and other conservatives.

An American probably would not be acceptable because many cardinals could not want to see the papacy directly identified with a great world power that is involved in so many of the world's political disputes. RPI 'NAVY' — Kathy Crossen, a secretary at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, pours distilled water over the bow of Water Watch, the third boat to join the RPI "navy". The distilled water symbolizes the state's Pure Waters Program. The boat will be used to study and test Lake George in the Adirondack Mountains, to find how the lake remains pure despite heavy usage. If possible, the University's findings will be applied to other lakes where pollution has become a problem. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Commuter Ferries Making a Comeback

By EDITH LEDERER
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Fog curled across San Francisco Bay and embraced Alcatraz Island as the young man stood on deck, swirling a martini and idly watching two pretty girls at the rail.

He was on his way home from work, and he'd almost gotten used to this way of commuting. He and 200 to 250 regulars do it daily from San Francisco to north bay Marin County—by one of transportation's senior citizens, the ferry boat.

The ferry died in San Francisco Bay 10 years ago because of the automobile and the Golden Gate and Bay bridges.

May Bring It Back
Ironically, those are the very things that may bring it back permanently.

The ferry rider now can pick up one of the 500-passenger red and white bay sightseeing boats, also used on the six-mile Tiburon crossing, at the Ferry Building.

For the next 35 to 40 minutes, he can skim over the Bay at 12 knots an hour sampling various aspects of "gracious living"—including girl watching, drinking, bridge playing and talking. The 80-cent one-way fare can't compare with the nickel bargain on New York's Staten Island ferry—but it does beat the bus run to Tiburon by a nickel.

As far as ferry users are concerned, there's no comparison between a hard seat on a bumpy bus inching its way over the bridge through stop-and-go traffic and a smooth sociable run across the Bay with the wind blowing through your hair.

For most ferry commuters, the morning coffee and donuts—and the afternoon cocktail hour—drinks are 70 cents each—have become necessities rather than luxuries. But a group of regulars has found the pinch a little too tight.

Lloyd Stark, vice president of a paint contracting firm, explained, "If you ride regularly and buy two drinks every night, the commute bill adds up."

"Some of us walk on the boat and pass the bar as if it didn't exist. Then, as the ferry passes Alcatraz, which is about the halfway point, we kind of silently get up, walk to the bar and buy a single drink."

Social Advantages

Though the regulars are quick to push ferrying to fed-up drivers and bus riders, their pitch centers on its social advantages. But the future of large-scale ferry operations will undoubtedly hinge on whether the Bay's senior citizens can successfully adapt to the demands of modern-day mass transportation. Lester Bedient, general manager of Harbor Carriers Inc., which operates the ferries and is part of the company that runs the sight-seeing cruises, said the crucial problem is money.

"If we didn't use the boats for sightseeing, we couldn't afford to operate the Tiburon ferry. It's just two morning and two evening runs and we couldn't subsidize on that," he said.

Bedient said one solution may be government subsidies—a subject which San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto has been pursuing with federal officials in Washington.

San Francisco and Marin County have just appropriated $45,000 for a study of possible ferry service between the two areas.

When city and county officials think in terms of the ferry of the future, they envision 2,000 passenger boats with speeds of 25 knots—a prospect that horrifies most Tiburon commuters. "That would really cut into your socializing," lamented one young stockbroker. "How can you make time in less than 20 minutes? That's not enough even for the best of us..."

Gorman Urges State Support Of McCarthy

Claiming that the June 18 Democratic Primary "could leave no doubt" that the rank and file party members supported Senator Eugene McCarthy for the Presidential nomination, Dr. Gerald P. Gorman today urged State Chairman John J. Burns to have the State National Convention Delegation "represent that voice."

Dr. Gorman, chairman of the Ulster County Democratic Committee and the man who nominated Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick for the United States Senate, wired Burns today requesting the state's top Democrat to follow the outcome of the primary vote.

"In the name of unity and for the future of our party and our people . . . I urge you to follow the will of the New York State Democrats in the June 18 Primary," Dr. Gorman said.

The Kingston surgeon and candidate for Ulster County Assemblyman is also an alternate delegate to the Democratic National Convention pledged to the candidacy of Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey.

Citing Democrats as facing "a division in our party far greater than the Dixiecrat Rebellion of 1948," Dr. Gorman said, "We require unity that will insure something more than a Democratic victory in November, but a unity that will provide our nation with the leadership it demands."

Listing "the Vietnam War, crime in the streets and the cry for a new commitment against the root causes of poverty," as reasons for controversy in the party, the Ulster County Democrat urged a "redoubling of our efforts to meet the needs of our people."

RPI 'NAVY' — Kathy Crossen, a secretary at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, pours distilled water over the bow of Water Watch, the third boat to join the RPI "navy". The distilled water symbolizes the state's Pure Waters Program. The boat will be used to study and test Lake George in the Adirondack Mountains, to find how the lake remains pure despite heavy usage. If possible, the University's findings will be applied to other lakes where pollution has become a problem. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Commuter Ferries Making a Comeback

By EDITH LEDERER

Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) —

Fog curled across San Francisco Bay and embraced Alcatraz Island as the young man stood on deck, swirling a martini and idly watching two pretty girls at the rail.

He was on his way home from work, and he'd almost gotten used to this way of commuting.

He and 200 to 250 regulars do it daily from San Francisco to north bay Marin County—by one of transportation's senior citizens, the ferry boat.

The ferry died in San Francisco Bay 10 years ago because of the automobile and the Golden Gate and Bay bridges.

May Bring It Back

Ironically, those are the very things that may bring it back permanently.

The ferry rider now can pick up one of the 500-passenger red and white bay sightseeing boats, also used on the six-mile Tiburon crossing, at the Ferry Building.

For the next 35 to 40 minutes, he can skim over the Bay at 12 knots an hour sampling various aspects of "gracious living"—including girl watching, drinking, bridge playing and talking.

The 80-cent one-way fare can't compare with the nickel bargain on New York's Staten Island ferry—but it does beat the bus run to Tiburon by a nickel.

As far as ferry users are concerned, there's no comparison between a hard seat on a bumpy bus inching its way over the bridge through stop-and-go traffic and a smooth sociable run across the Bay with the wind blowing through your hair.

For most ferry commuters, the morning coffee and donuts and the afternoon cocktail hour—drinks are 70 cents each—have become necessities rather than luxuries. But a group of regulars has found the pinch a little too tight.

Lloyd Stark, vice president of a paint contracting firm, explained, "If you ride regularly and buy two drinks every night, the commute bill adds up."

"Some of us walk on the boat and pass the bar as if it didn't exist. Then, as the ferry passes Alcatraz, which is about the halfway point, we kind of silently get up, walk to the bar and buy a single drink."

Social Advantages

Though the regulars are quick to push ferrying to fed-up drivers and bus riders, their pitch centers on its social advantages.

But the future of large-scale ferry operations will undoubtedly hinge on whether the Bay's senior citizens can successfully adapt to the demands of modern-day mass transportation.

Lester Bedient, general manager of Harbor Carriers Inc., which operates the ferries and is part of the company that runs the sight-seeing cruises, said the crucial problem is money.

"If we didn't use the boats for sightseeing, we couldn't afford to operate the Tiburon ferry. It's just two morning and two evening runs and we couldn't subsidize on that," he said.

Bedient said one solution may be government subsidies—a subject which San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto has been pursuing with federal officials in Washington.

San Francisco and Marin County have just appropriated $45,000 for a study of possible ferry service between the two areas.

When city and county officials think in terms of the ferry of the future, they envision 2,000 passenger boats with speeds of 25 knots—a prospect that horrifies most Tiburon commuters.

"That would really cut into your socializing," lamented one young stockbroker. "How can you make time in less than 20 minutes? That's not enough even for the best of us..."

Troop 12 Corps At Many Events In Future Months

Kingston's Troop 12 Indians, a division of the nationally famous Kingston Indians Drum Corps, will be appearing at several special events around the county in the coming months.

Troop 12, formed in 1967, consists of approximately 60 boys ranging in age from eight to 14 years. All of the boys are members of the Troop 12 Boy Scout and Cub Scout Packs of Kingston. The older members of the Pack comprise the Kingston Indians, this area's oldest junior drum corps, who have received nationwide acclaim for their performances since 1960.

The Indians, fully decked out in uniforms that resemble the authentic dress of the Woodland Indians, who are known to have originated in this area, will be appearing at the Big Scot Tent Sale on August 7 and the annual Pow Wow of Drum Corps at Dietz Stadium on August 10. The group is also scheduled to appear in the New Baltimore Parade on September 7 and the Loyalty Day Parade in Kingston on September 28. The highlight of their 1968 season will be an appearance in the annual Spanish Day Parade in New York City on October 18.

The Kingston Troop, presently under the direction of Burt Ellis and Walter Broughton, have appeared in Memorial Day Parades in Kingston and New Paltz and the recent Fourth of July parade in Saugerties. On July 26, they were the feature group for the opening ceremonies of the 1968 Jaycee Sports Spectacular at Dietz Stadium.

Leading the 60 member Corps is Drum Major Bill Ellis, along with Color Guard Captain Jim Kelly, Drum Sergeant Carl Brown, Horn Sergeant Warren Jansen, and Horn Corporal David Naccarato.

Their 1968 repertoire includes "Ten Little Indians," "When the Saints Come Marching In," and "America." Their newest song, "Happy Days," was played for the first time at the recent Volunteer Fireman's Parade in New Paltz.

Troop 12 Corps At Many Events In Future Months

Kingston's Troop 12 Indians, a division of the nationally famous Kingston Indians Drum Corps, will be appearing at several special events around the county in the coming months.

Troop 12, formed in 1967, consists of approximately 60 boys ranging in age from eight to 14 years. All of the boys are members of the Troop 12 Boy Scout and Cub Scout Packs of Kingston. The older members of the Pack comprise the Kingston Indians, this area's oldest junior drum corps, who have received nationwide acclaim for their performances since 1960.

The Indians, fully decked out in uniforms that resemble the authentic dress of the Woodland Indians, who are known to have originated in this area, will be appearing at the Big Scot Tent Sale on August 7 and the annual Pow Wow of Drum Corps at Dietz Stadium on August 10. The group is also scheduled to appear in the New Baltimore Parade on September 7 and the Loyalty Day Parade in Kingston on September 28. The highlight of their 1968 season will be an appearance in the annual Spanish Day Parade in New York City on October 18.

The Kingston Troop, presently under the direction of Burt Ellis and Walter Broughton, have appeared in Memorial Day Parades in Kingston and New Paltz and the recent Fourth of July parade in Saugerties. On July 26, they were the feature group for the opening ceremonies of the 1968 Jaycee Sports Spectacular at Dietz Stadium.

Leading the 60 member Corps is Drum Major Bill Ellis, along with Color Guard Captain Jim Kelly, Drum Sergeant Carl Brown, Horn Sergeant Warren Jansen, and Horn Corporal David Naccarato.

Their 1968 repertoire includes "Ten Little Indians," "When the Saints Come Marching In," and "America." Their newest song, "Happy Days," was played for the first time at the recent Volunteer Fireman's Parade in New Paltz.

GOP Picnic Plans Set for Sunday Gala

The final plans have been completed for the first annual Kingston Republican Club picnic to be held Sunday afternoon at St. Liberata Field, East Kingston.

Mrs. Angeline Carputo, general chairman, announced today that committee appointments have been completed. Judith Petro will chair the games committee; James A. Rapp, publicity; Frank Fabbie, sausage stand; Mrs. Delores Buck, coffee; Mrs. Joan Sinagra will make arrangements for candidates.

All Republican candidates will be present to man various booths and serve as patrons. Mrs. Carputo said early ticket sales indicated a good attendance at the event.

Food service will begin 2:30 p.m. and continue to 6 p.m. A varied program of games is planned. The committee pledges that no political speeches will be on the agenda.

Tickets the on sale from any Republican Committeeman of the City of Kingston and will be available at the gate Sunday afternoon.

Dean Picked by Humphrey To Head Special Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Stephen K. Baily, dean of the University, has been named by Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey to head one of four special committees designed to study national issues.

Most Incredible Rules Coroner In Two Deaths

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (UPI) — A coroner said Tuesday it was a "most incredible" set of circumstances which resulted in the deaths of a bridegroom and his best man and the violent illness of the bride.

Dr. John Vinzant, Washington County Coroner, said it appeared that William C. Cullen Sr., 52, of Fayetteville, the bridegroom, and Maurice LeBoeuf, 51, the best man, died of heart attacks.

Both died less than 24 hours after Cullen and Mabel May Smith, also of Fayetteville, were married Saturday in the office of a justice of the peace. LeBoeuf died in his sleep early Sunday, Sunday afternoon, as the Cullens were starting on their honeymoon. Mrs. Cullen became violently ill.

Cullen stopped the car near Westville, Okla., 35 miles east of Fayetteville.

Mrs. Cullen got out of the car and when she returned, she found Cullen slumped over the steering wheel, dead.

It was later learned that Mrs. Cullen contracted a virus.

"It was just one of those coincidences," said Vinzant. "There will be other studies of the deaths but right now it looks like both died of acute heart attacks."

Cornell to Give Special Housing To Some Negroes

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — Several Negro coeds at Cornell University who say they have encountered hostility in the school's regular dormitories will be given special housing the university says.

Cornell said Tuesday it had bought a rooming house near the campus that would serve as a cooperative living unit for up to 12 women enrolled in the Committee on Special Education, a predominately Negro group that seeks to provide educational opportunities for disadvantaged and minority-group students.

The university said it purchased the house because of complaints from the Cornell Afro-American Society that black coeds had encountered an "intolerably hostile atmosphere in the dormitories."

Misunderstandings had occurred the society said, because the dormitories were "white in orientation and administration and placed the burden of adjustment upon Negro residents."

Under the university's plan, Negro coeds could elect to live in the new residence after they had completed one year in the program.

About 150 persons are enrolled in the committee's program.

CHINESE PROVERBS

KOHIMA, India (AP)—Who said Chairman Mao is averse to love and marriage?

Two of the Communist Chinese proverbs captured from the rebel Nagas who had just returned after training in China read thus:

"Marriage has many pains but celibacy has NO pleasures." "It is better for a woman to marry a man who loves her than a man whom she loves."

A bird's heart is larger than that of other animals of the same size.

Humphrey's presidential campaign headquarters said Tuesday that the task forces were among some 30 panels being set up to guide the vice president on domestic and international issues.

Baily was picked to head a task force on administration and implementation, a committee designed to carry out Humphrey's call for "reorganization and restructuring of the federal bureaucracy" so as to encourage local initiative.

Also named were Dr. Clara Penniman, professor of political science at Wisconsin University, to head a task force on financial relationships between federal, state, and local governments; Prof. Seymour Lipset of Harvard University, to head one on involvement and alienation, and Dr. Francis Keppel, president of the General Learning Corp. of New York, to be chairman of a group on education.

Baron Quartet To Appear in Paltz Saturday

Singer-writer Steve Baron, who has appeared on the Hollywood Palace and Merv Griffin television shows, will bring his Steve Baron Quartet to the State University College at New Paltz Saturday at 8:30 and 10:30 p. m.

The Aug. 10 concerts will be at the Parker Hall "coffee house," the Student Government Association announced today.

Baron, 25, a former NBC page in New York City, was a radio-TV major at the University of Miami, Florida, with minors in drama, philosophy and psychology.

He began his professional career as a performer in a coffee house while still in college, and after graduation and service in the U.S. Army began producing a radio series for WBAI-FM. Calling his music "folk rock," Baron combines in his music and songs elements diverse enough to "thrill the hearts of jazz fans, soul brother, and even true rockers," according to one believer.

Narcotics, Cash Reported Stolen From Drug Store

An undetermined amount of narcotics and about $380 in cash comprised the loot taken in a break-in early today at the Drug City Inc. pharmacy, off Albany Avenue Extension.

State Trooper Thomas Crowley of the Kingston substation was on routine patrol checking stores in the Ulster Shopping Plaza at 4:20 a. m. when he discovered the large plate glass window in front of the store had been smashed.

Investigation disclosed that a beer keg had been thrown through the window, smashing a large section of the glass. Crowley radioed headquarters and BCI Investigator Joseph Ventriglia went to the scene to assist in the investigation.

Troopers notified Harris Gally of Southfield Road, proprietor of Drug City, and he went to the store. He told a reporter later that about $280 in bills and $100 in silver that had been left in a money bag had been taken.

Gally also said the burglar or burglars found a key to the narcotics locker in the prescription department and opened it. He could not say definitely how much of the narcotics had been taken. Gally also said drawers in the prescription area had been ransacked.

An inventory is being taken to determine whether any other merchandise was stolen.

Youth Drowns, Nimrod Saves His Companion

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A youth who was wading in Lake Erie at a small boat harbor here drowned Tuesday when he stepped into a deep hole, while a fisherman waded in and saved the youth's 11-year-old companion.

John W. Mandiak, 18, and Michael Smerka, 11, of nearby Lackawanna, stepped into a ten-foot-deep drop-off, police said, and Mandiak sank almost immediately. Francis McCooley, 25, of Buffalo, waded into the water and saved the Smerka boy but was unable to reach Mandiak. Two skin divers recovered his body a few minutes later, police said.

Mandiak lived at 24 Pearl Ave. Smerka lives at 159 Holland Ave., and McCooley lives at 25 Oakdale Place.

Buffalo Bank Is Robbed Once Again

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A man with a strong foreign accent walked into a branch bank of the Marine Midland Trust Co. here Tuesday and robbed a woman teller of $2,068 in $1, $5, $10 and $20 bills, police said.

The teller, Mrs. Dorothy Dent, 37, said the man held his hand in his pocket as if he were armed and handed her a note which read: "This is a hold-up. Give me the money. No coins. Don't say anything. I have a gun on you."

She activated a hidden camera which took pictures of the bandit as he left the bank. He walked out of the bank and ran down Main Street after the robbery. Police, acting on a tip that he had boarded a bus, stopped several buses and searched them but were unable to find the suspect.

It was the second time the bank had been robbed in the past 13 months.

Police said the bandit was 35 to 40 years old, weighed about 150 to 155 pounds and was about 5 feet, 7 inches tall.

The bank is at the corner of Main and High Streets in downtown Buffalo.

Lambiasi Is Named to State Post by Moose

Louis P. Lambiasi, a member of Kingston Lodge, 970, Loyal Order of Moose, was elected vice-president of the Fifth District, New York State Moose Association.

The election took place at a recent meeting of the state organization.

Originally, the Alamo in Texas was a Catholic mission.

Ohio Governor Not Budging

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Gov. James Allen Rhodes continues to keep his own counsel on what ultimate role he and his powerful 58-vote Ohio delegation will play in selecting tonight the Republican presidential candidate.

The 58-year-old governor has refused to budge from his favorite son role, making it a point not to divulge his preference in the power struggle among the three major candidates, Richard M. Nixon, Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Because of this, Rhodes has been called the key to the nomination and the man of the hour. Others say he's trying to play kingmaker. But whatever he's called, all the candidates have been wooing, pursuing and courting him.

Tonight Rhodes will be nominated for the presidency by his followers in the Ohio delegation, with all the trappings of a serious candidate.

The Ohioans have flooded Miami Beach hotels with "Rhodes for President" buttons, banners, balloons and literature. They are geared for a huge demonstration on the floor tonight when Rhodes is nominated by Dr. John Millett, chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents.

"We decided months ago to come to Miami Beach uncommitted and that's just what we have done," Rhodes says in explaining why he has so far not come out for any certain candidate. Fifty-six delegates have made it clear they will not abandon Rhodes as favorite son, but the remaining two probably will go for Nixon.

Rhodes insistently denies ambitions for national office, including the vice presidency. Some observers feel that Rhodes may bargain for power in choosing the vice-presidential nominee, but is not seeking the post himself.

Rudel Will Conduct Philadelphians At Saratoga Performing Arts Center

Julius Rudel, general director and principal conductor of the New York City Opera, will conduct two concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra this week at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Thursday night at 8:30, Rudel will lead the Philadelphians in a French-Spanish program, including Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor, Immanuel Chabrier's "Espana" Rhapsody, and selections from Manuel de Falla's "El Amor Brujo" and "The Three-Cornered Hat."

Friday night at 8:30, the renowned opera conductor will preside over a concert performance of Bizet's "Carmen," with mezzo-soprano Shirley Verrett in the title role and tenor Placido Domingo as Don Jose. Soprano Anne Elgar will have the role of Micaela, and baritone Robert Hale will be Escamillo.

Other soloists will be William Ledbetter (Dancaro and Morales), Kellis Miller (Remendado), LaVerne Monette (Frasquita), Janet Winburn (Mercedes) and Don Yule (Zuniga).

Shirley Verrett, who was uproariously applauded when she appeared at the Performing Arts Center in the Rodgers and Hammerstein concert last Sunday, and Placido Domingo both will be making their debuts with the Metropolitan Opera in New York this coming season, and both will be singing in performances of "Carmen" there.

Miss Verrett has appeared many times as the ill-fated gypsy girl in opera houses throughout the world. She gave her first performance as Carmen at the Spoleto Festival in 1962.

Domingo, who is well known for his portrayal of Don Jose, received unanimous praise from the press when he sang in the title role of Alberto Ginastera's "Don Rodrigo" last season with the New York City Opera.

Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The other night we went to Stratford to see Shakespeare's Love's Labor's Lost. It is a young man's play, written when the author was maybe twenty-seven. It might have been his first play. It is, like so many young men's writing, ingenious, preposterous, incredible. Being by Shakespeare, it is also poetical, humorous, even wonderfully light-hearted.

There was no attempt at a literal performance. Indeed it would be hard to say what a literal performance might be, so involved is the plot, so unromantically unreal the characters. What we saw was a sort of hippie show, with singers crooning Shakespeare's songs into the mike, girls chewing bubble gum, listeners hiding behind an absurdly revealing greenery, a guru in a diaper, masks that did not really hide the face, and a character named Boyet who waved a fan, spoke with a Southern accent, and at one point hummed When the Midnight Choo-choo Leaves for Alabama.

The curious thing about this hodge-podge was that it provided a delightful evening. If you have been dead for 350 years and a company produces one of your plays with the words you wrote or most of them — and enough modern touches to please not only the audience but the older ones, too, who were just as happy, it is likely that you have written a good, actable, professional play.

When liberties are taken with Hamlet, some of us are uncomfortable, although the play can stand them. I have seen it said that Hamlet has been played at least once a year for more than 300 years usually many more times than once. It has been a comedy, a farce, a tragedy, played in modern dress, undress, and in costumes to all sorts of periods from ancient Denmark to Elizabethan England. No matter how it is played it is still Hamlet.

Love's Labor's Lost is a different sort of play. You can do anything with it apparently. It is a farce. Impossible vows are sworn; impossible penalties are enacted when the vows are breached. Persons appear in disguise which deceives no one; hearts are broken and mended; letters are mixed up, messages miscarry, and so on. All the while the language, sometimes intentionally stilted and romantic, sometimes serious and true, sometimes frivolous and merry, gives forth a shadow of the poet who will write Othello and Midsummer Night's Dream.

In their crooning, however, the players sadly missed one effect. The last song in the play is Shakespeare at his lyrical best.

When daisies pied and violets blue And lady smocks all silver-white

And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue Do paint the meadows with delight

When all about the wind doth blow And coughing drowns the parson's saw

And birds sit brooding in the snow And Marian's nose is red and raw

They hammered it, so that the words were almost unintelligible. No need for "modernization" provided an excuse for that.

Garden Walk Thursday

The Tongore Garden Club will hold a garden walk beginning at 1 p. m. Thursday. The four gardens to be visited are those of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Macaluso, Mrs. Frank Falkner, Mrs. Victor Bitterman and Mrs. William Golden.

A tea will be served at the home of Mrs. Golden. Co-hostess for the occasion will be Mrs. Elizabeth Lane.

To Meet Tonight

Women of the Moose, chapter 397, will meet this evening at 8 o'clock in the Moose Lodge on Prince Street. Officers' chapter night will be held.

Jean Borucinski, senior regent, is chairman of the event, assisted by Jane Throneburg, Carol Constable, Eileen Nessel and Ann Rohde.

Officers and chairmen are requested to wear gowns. After the meeting refreshments will be served. All members are urged to attend.

Jean Genet's The Blacks is the next drama selected for study at Performing Arts of Woodstock's play reading group meeting Tuesday, Aug. 13, at 8:30 p. m. in The Little Theater, Tinker Street, Woodstock. The public is invited to meetings of the play reading group which are scheduled for each second and fourth Tuesdays of every month.

Genet's The Blacks is a symbolic drama in which a "group of colored players enact before a jury of white-masked negroes, representing in caricature a missionary bishop, an island governor general, a haughty queen and her dwarf lackey, the ritualistic murder of a white of which they have been accused. When they have played out their weird and gruesome crime they turn on their judges and condemn them to death. Then, with polite adieu to the spectators, they dance with 18th century elegance a Mozart minuet, with which the play began," quoted from New York Herald Tribune.

Seating Arrangements for SI

Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I often dine out with two other couples. When shown to our table, there is always confusion as to who sits where and next to whom. Also, please advise on booth-type seating — who sits against the wall and who sits in the chairs?—Dora H.

Dear Mrs. H.: When six people are seated at a round or rectangular table, there is no problem. The men and women simply alternate—husbands and wives generally separate. If three are to sit on a banquet (against the wall) one man sits in the center with the other two wives on either side. His wife sits in the middle seat facing the wall. The same arrangement holds true for a booth.

JULIUS RUDEL

Rudel Will Conduct Philadelphians At Saratoga Performing Arts Center

Julius Rudel, general director and principal conductor of the New York City Opera, will conduct two concerts by the Philadelphia Orchestra this week at the Saratoga Performing Arts Center.

Thursday night at 8:30, Rudel will lead the Philadelphians in a French-Spanish program including Cesar Franck's Symphony in D minor, Immanuel Chabrier's "Espana" Rhapsody, and selections from Manuel de Falla's "El Amor Brujo" and "The Three-Cornered Hat."

Friday night at 8:30, the renowned opera conductor will preside over a concert performance of Bizet's "Carmen," with mezzo-soprano Shirley Verrett in the title role and tenor Placido Domingo as Don Jose. Soprano Anne Elgar will have the role of Micaela, and baritone Robert Hale will be Escamillo.

Other soloists will be William Ledbetter (Dancario and Morales), Kellis Miller (Remendado), La Vergne Monette (Frasquita), Janet Winburn (Mercedes) and Don Yule (Zuniga).

Shirley Verrett, who was uproariously applauded when she appeared at the Performing Arts Center in the Rodgers and Hammerstein concert last Sunday, and Placido Domingo both will be making their debuts with the Metropolitan Opera in New York this coming season, and both will be singing in performances of "Carmen" there.

Miss Verrett has appeared many times as the ill-fated gypsy girl in opera houses throughout the world. She gave her first performance as Carmen at the Spoleto Festival in 1962.

Domingo, who is well known for his portrayal of Don Jose, received unanimous praise from the press when he sang in the title role of Alberto Ginastera's "Don Rodrigo" last season with the New York City Opera.

Country Wife

By DOROTHY VAN DOREN

The other night we went to Stratford to see Shakespeare's Love's Labor's Lost. It is a young man's play, written when the author was maybe twenty-seven. It might have been his first play. It is, like so many young men's writing, ingenious, preposterous, incredible. Being one of your plays with the words you wrote — or most of them — and enough modern touches to please not only the captious younger generation in the audience but the older ones, too, who were just as happy, it is likely that you have written a good, actable, professional play.

When liberties are taken with Hamlet, some of us are uncomfortable, although the play can stand them. I have seen it said behind an absurdly revealing greenery, a guru in a diaper, 300 years usually many more times than once. It has been a comedy, a farce, a tragedy, played in modern dress, undress, and in costumes to all sorts of periods from ancient Denmark to Elizabethan England. No matter how it is played it is still Hamlet. Love's Labor's Lost is a different sort of play. You can do anything with it apparently. It is a farce. Impossible vows are sworn; impossible penalties are enacted when the vows are breached. Persons appear in disguise which deceives no one; hearts are broken and mended; letters are mixed up, messages miscarry, and so on. All the while the language, sometimes intentionally stilted and romantic, sometimes serious and true, sometimes frivolous and merry, gives forth a shadow of the poet who will write Othello and Midsummer Night's Dream. In their crooning, however, the players sadly missed one effect. The last song in the play is Shakespeare at his lyrical best. When daisies pied and violets blue And lady smocks all silver-white And cuckoo-buds of yellow hue Do paint the meadows with delight . . . When all aloud the wind doth blow And coughing drowns the parson's saw And birds sit brooding in the snow And Marian's nose is red and raw . . . They hammed it, so that the words were almost, unintelligible. No need for "modernization" provided an excuse for that.

THIS WAY TO BEAUTY

Younger teens often regard "beauty" as something to be applied with a brush or puff as soon as they reach that magic age when they are at long last allowed to dip into the bottles and boxes on mother's or big sister's dressing table! It is difficult to explain says Phyllis W. Barlow, Extension Home Economist, to the 13-to-15 crowd that makeup in itself doesn't make a girl beautiful, but merely enhances her features just as a lovely frame enhances a painting.

This important lesson must be taught before Miss New Teen begins to take those first faltering steps toward the adult world. She must be prepared to base her beauty on one essential factor—cleanliness. Only when her young complexion is kept soap-and-water fresh will the "extras"—rosy lipstick and filmy powder—do their job properly.

The only "facial" a normal teen needs is a soap-and-water wash, the preliminary wash, the procedure is to work up gobs of lather with the hands and gently massage this over the complexion with upward movements. This sudsy "mask" must be left on for a full minute to penetrate the pores and "tighten" the skin. An oily young skin needs at least three of these sudsy beauty treatments every day to cleanse the pores thoroughly as one precaution against acne. The complexion, it must be pointed out, is not just Miss Teen's pretty young face! Complexion extends from the scalp to the soles of her feet. Unless hair is kept shining clean with frequent shampoos, unless the daily bath is a never-skipped ritual, unless face and hands get that little extra care their prominence deserves, there is no real basis for beauty. Even the most costly cosmetics depend for success upon this clean foundation.

One good way to introduce a young teen to makeup is via such auxiliary grooming aids as flower-scented dusting powder for after-bath use; cologne in a matching fragrance; and lotion for such problem areas as elbows, knees, and heels. Enticing bath accessories—such as a pastel bath sponge, back-brush, ornate shower cap, and pretty terrycloth robe for after-bath comfort—all help make grooming fun instead of a chore.

When the cleanliness basis of her beauty routine has become mature, then a young teen is ready for her first sprinking use of "powder and paint."

BRIDE CHOOSES MAN TO ESCORT HER

Dear Mrs. Post: My son and his wife are coming home from Vietnam. They could not have a church wedding there because Saigon is not secure. They each signed papers and had a witness so they could become man and wife. She has no relatives here, but a very close girl friend who married a G.I. in Vietnam is living close by. My question is: Who would give the bride away? Would it be proper for her friend's husband to give her away? My son and his husband were in the same platoon and became good friends. My husband wants to give the bride away. I disagree. My son has a 30-day leave and would like to have a Catholic church wedding.—Mrs. Benton.

able to give the bride away, she may choose any man—either a friend or a member of her husband's family. This is especially true of a Catholic wedding, in which the bride is not "given away," but merely escorted up the aisle. In your case, either your husband or the young G.I. friend would be acceptable—it is up to the bride.

Neither Bibs nor Spaghetti Best Choices for Wedding Dinner

Dear Mrs. Post: I have a problem of always spilling something on me while I am eating no matter how careful I try to be. At my wedding, I am having a sit-down dinner in the afternoon and reception in the evening. My dress is fashioned in a delightful silk organza. Would it be appropriate if I had a bib made to match my dress to be worn only for the dinner? Our dinner will include Italian spaghetti and if I should accidentally splash the tomato sauce on my dress it would be almost impossible for it to come out. Also could my bridesmaids wear bibs to match their dresses?—Ruth.

Dear Ruth: I cannot imagine you and your bridesmaids donning bibs for your wedding dinner. Rather than that, I would suggest that you change your menu. Spaghetti is probably the most difficult food to eat without splashing, and therefore it is rarely chosen for meals where people are formally dressed. If you want an Italian dish, that's fine, but choose lasagna, ravioli, or any other which is easier to eat.

Seating Arrangements for Sit Down Dinner: Dear Mrs. Post: My husband and I often dine out with two other couples. When shown to our table, there is always confusion as to who sits where and next to whom. Also, please advise on booth-type seating—who sits against the wall and who sits in the chairs?—Dora H.

Changes Have Been Rapid in U.S. Education Methods

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once upon a time, it was the little red schoolhouse that symbolized education of America's youth. Today, it's more often the huge gray computer and the blinking television screen.

Changes in U.S. education methods have been as rapid as changes in the U.S. economy, the population growth, urbanization, habits and customs.

No longer do we have the image of the Abe Lincoln absorbing knowledge from a book with only the light from the fireplace by which to study. The Lincoln of today probably would be called the disadvantaged and also probably would be drawn into U.S. government programs like Head Start.

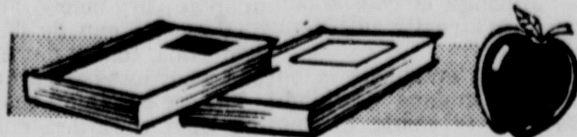

No longer do we think in terms of the schoolboy with lunchpail in hand, books held by strap, trudging several miles to that one room school where teacher taught eight grades and often as many as 50 pupils from tots to teens.

Instead of the lunchpail, there are the hot lunch programs in almost every school in the nation, supplemented now by new efforts to reach the undernourished with breakfast at school programs too.

Children are bussed to school, and the teacher of today may not worry about even one grade, let alone all eight of them, but be part of a new method called the teacher team system.

This system has the teacher who's strongest in one subject assigned to instruct in it—say one in history, one in English, and so on. A "master" teacher works with the group to outline the total course of study.

(Let one misunderstand and think the "little red schoolhouse" is passe, there still are some 6,700 one-teacher schools in the United States.)

To see what is happening in education in the U.S.A., specifically for the pupils in the primary and second schools, ages five to 17, first let us look at the explosion in school enrollment and the total U.S. population.

The statistics come from the National Education Association (NEA), an organization of more than one million teachers and other school personnel.

NEA's research division says, that for comparative purposes, enrollment of the five to 17 group in 1950 was 30.7 million out of the total U.S. population of a little over 151 million.

Now, as the U.S. population reaches the 200 million mark, it is estimated that school enrollment of this age group in September will be 51.3 million. NEA breaks these figures down to 44.7 pupils in public schools, the rest in parochial and other private schools.

More than two million teachers and other personnel such as principals and supervisors are required to handle these children. That's an increase of some 53 per cent over the staff at work 10 years ago, says NEA, but the shortage still is "acute," has been on and off since the post World War II years.

One problem in finding the instruction staff lies in salaries. The typical median income of teachers is only 63 per cent of the median for 17 professions. Teaching salaries rank well below the average earnings of physicians, dentists, lawyers, architects, engineers and pharmacists. But above clergymen!

The days are gone, however, when the public could consider a teachers teaching for the love of it, that dedication should come above the dollar sign.

Teacher strikes in varied metropolitan areas highlighted teachers new demands to be, as Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koozts puts it, "paid well and dedicated too." Mrs. Koozts is the new president of NEA, the first Negro to head the organization. NEA tables show that for the school year 1957-58, the average annual salary of an instructional staffer was $4,702. Salaries have risen each year since at the rate of 4.9 per cent to an average of $7,597 for the school year 1967-68. Even so, only 4.4 per cent of the classroom instructors earned above $10,500 last year.

Anyway you look at it, however, education in the United States is big business. Total cost of public education—elementary, secondary and higher educational institutions—was estimated at $41 billion in 1967-68.

But educators also point out that that $41 billion is "less than 54 per cent of the fiscal 1968 cost of national security programs."

What are the children (and the taxpayers getting for these billions of dollars?

More formal schooling than ever before, for one thing. For enrollment in colleges and universities is soaring.

College degrees have become the status symbol of the New Generation. But at the tot through teens level, students also are getting expanded programs. Expanded learning processes, new tools for the classroom, new opportunities for the disadvantaged and the gifted alike.

The word "enrichment" has become an educational favorite. Consider summer enrichment programs alone. No longer is summer school for the child who has failed or faltered during the regular school years. Added to the traditional makeup and remedial classes are interesting and different courses.

Educational Research Service (a cooperative of the NEA and the American Association of School Administrators) queried urban, suburban and rural school systems of various sizes and found 369 different programs among the 149 school systems answering.

Many of the programs were for the gifted; others for the mentally or physically handicapped child.

Twelve gifted junior high schoolers, for instance, worked with two teachers and volunteered doing laboratory research in such topics as the microbiology of the environment and genetics.

For a group of mentally slow pupils in a rural Midwestern school, academic subjects were combined with recreational projects such as field trips to points of interest like a dairy, a police station, a greenhouse.

Foreign language study of some type is available widely in the American school system today—Spanish and French especially. But NEA finds that more than two thirds of the largest systems offer Russian at high school level. And the study found some systems offering such as Chinese, Hebrew, Italian, Arabic, Japanese, Hawaiian, Norwegian and Portuguese.

Foreign language instruction no longer is just at the high school level but starts with conversational study right at the first grade. And part of the enrichment program at the high school and college level is in working in some foreign travel and study.

Educators say use of television as a teaching tool still has a long way to go. NEA found that just under four systems out of 10 in the larger districts use educational television in elementary schools, just over two in 10 at the high school level.

As for the computer, its use is growing but it still is an expensive tool for school systems.

It has found its way into time and money-saving in administrative chores, but so far its classroom uses are largely at the college level and as a teacher supplement.

One system no longer calling the computer experimental, however, is in the Altoona, Pa., schools, with telephone-connected branches in 17 surrounding districts. Computer courses began in 1964, with summer classes in data processing.

Now, school officials estimate that more than half of Altoona's 3,000 senior high schoolers are enrolled in courses using it. And George Zaken, Altoona's coordinator of computer application, says "as far as we know, it is more extensive than (that) of any school in the country."

From data processing and programming, the students have branched into using the complex machine for tutoring—regulating it to the student's learning pace and leaving the teacher free to move around the classroom.

Undoubtedly, the $41 billion a year is providing Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews with better education than ever before. But there still are flaws. There is the growing problem, for instance, of the dropout, the child who for one reason or another fails to complete high school, sometimes even grade school.

NEA estimates that for every 1,000 pupils who get as far as the fifth grade, only 721 graduate from high school. Alarmed, educators, the government, business and industry all are fighting the problem with propaganda and all other sorts of ways to keep children in school.

Uncle Sam has mounted a massive educational program called "Head Start". It began in 1965 with the aim of improving both the physical ability of these children and also establish an environment that would enable to enroll in school "on more nearly equal terms with his more fortunate classmates."

From data processing and programming, the students have branched into using the complex machine for tutoring—regulating it to the student's learning pace and leaving the teacher

School Lunches Run the Gamut Pizza to Peanut Butter Cake

By JEANN ELEMSE
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—If 20 million school children had their druthers, the federal school lunch program might serve only hot dogs, hamburgers, steak, fried chicken, desserts, bread and rolls.

A survey by the School Lunch Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) shows that American school children's food preferences are becoming more catholic, large in growing acceptance of such ethnic and foreign fare as pizza, lasagna, chili and enchiladas.

Otherwise, from Travelers Rest, S.C., to Phoenix, Ariz., and from Gloucester, Mass., to Broken Arrow, Okla., students tend to like the same foods—meats and sweets—and dislike the same foods—vegetables. These four communities are among 50 that tested the popularity of nine recipes selected from student favorites submitted by school systems throughout the nation.

Each recipe had to use USDA commodities, contribute to Type A lunch requirements of a protein-rich food, vegetables and milk, combine well with other menu items and be simple and economical to prepare. After elimination of obvious simple favorites such as hot dogs, hamburgers and fried chicken, the list was narrowed down to two main dishes, three vegetable combinations, three desserts and commerial yeast rolls.

When those were ranked in popularity, peanut butter cake and caramel peanut butter rolls led with more than 80 per cent of the children, teachers and school lunchroom staffs who took part in the survey.

Close behind were country fried steak, cornmeal cookies and commerial yeast rolls. Chinese meat pie, which is a ground meat and potatoes dish, ranked sixth, followed by vegetable dishes: Carrot relish, corn mock-shue and tomato spoon salad.

USDA spokesmen said school lunch recipes and ideas come from many sources, including newspapers and other publications, cookbooks, the food industry, families and friends of pupils and teachers, and experiments with USDA-donated foods.

The school lunch division constantly runs tests of appetizing and nutritious recipes to be added to the federal program that serves an estimated 20 million pupils a year.

The Chinese pie recipe came from a pupil in a New Hampshire home economics class. Carrot relish, submitted by a Tennessee school, was developed by Mrs. Mary Louise Richardson from an old family recipe.

The corn mock-shue recipe, developed and tested by Mrs. Mary Kirkman, University of Southwest Louisiana dietitian at Lafayette, was based on an original mock-shue recipe used for years by Southern Louisiana Creole families. It contains corn, tomatoes, chopped onions and green pappers.

A bread recipe came from a former Navy Food Service staff member, Bradford S. MacNulty, who claimed navy bread was better than the standard school loaf. But when both recipes were tested together, the school loaf ranked better for flavor. So the two recipes were combined to produce the flavor of the school loaf with the speedier preparation time of the navy one.

Five recipes for peanut butter cake were submitted in the school lunch program survey. The following one was developed by Mrs. Harry Bond, Scott High School, Madison, W.Va.

Beat 1/2 cup shortening with 1 1/4 cups of brown sugar packed, until mixture is creamy. Blend in 2 3/4 cup of peanut butter until mixture is smooth. Beat in 4 eggs, one at a time.

New Title but Jo Good Still Runs Things

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Jo Good is so good they've given her a new title.

She used to be called executive director of the Republican National Convention; now she's convention coordinator.

It's a tossup which handle is more impressive, but she thinks her new title is better. "More applicable," she has decided. "But there's no change in the responsibilities."

Josephine L. Good is a cool, unflappable blonde who, more than any other single person, can be credited with keeping Republican conventions smooth-running affairs. The one coming up is her third, and she doesn't think it is presenting more knotty problems than the others.

"When you're behind the scenes, though," she says, "it doesn't seem to you to be going smoothly at all."

Miss Good points out, quite neutrally, that Miami's convention hall is new and so far only one function has been held there, a graduation exercise.

"But the acoustics are getting straightened out and I'm pretty sure everything is going to be all right," she says in the calm, unflappable manner that has carried her successfully through earlier conventions.

No Permanent Seats
That's not to say there aren't problems. For example, "this is the first time a GOP convention has been held in a building without any permanent seating.

There's not a permanent seat in the hall. And such a low ceiling. The delegates' area is close to the guest seating area, where before we have always had a gallery or balcony to separate them."

No permanent seating is the trend in exhibition halls now, she says, to give plenty of room for such things as boat or automobile shows.

"The hall seats 16,900, with our arrangement," she says, "and there will be much less standing than at the previous conventions in Chicago and San Francisco."

Because there just aren't places for people to stand means that a sort of plan has been instituted of a place for everyone and everyone in his place. Even the pages to the delegates will have seats and such jobs as assistant sergeants-at-arms have been abolished.

"We still have honorary assistant sergeants-at-arms, but they've always roamed before, and now they've been assigned seats with obscured views."

"One convention is barely over until another," she reflects. "The four-year period goes fast for me." It takes one year at least after the convention to clean up the details: get the files in order, make reports, get the bid for printing the proceedings and then see that the printing comes out well. There's a lot of correspondence from professors and students and foreign visitors. Then, by the time everything is straightened out, it's two years to go to the next convention. It takes at least that long to get one launched, beginning with answering queries from cities about requirements for becoming the convention site.

"Knack for Details"
But the job isn't as bad as people might think, she says, "if you know what you're doing and have a knack for detail."

Denver-born Jo Good got caught up in convention work in 1956, three years after newly-appointed Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield asked her to serve as his confidential and administrative aide. Before that, during World War II, she served in the Coast Guard Women's Reserve with rank of chief yeoman and had become a secretary in Washington in 1946.

She says that in her work the basic problems are always the same. But one that keeps growing is the "increased activity on the part of the news media."

At the 1956 convention, where she understudied William J. Donald who had done the work for three decades, about 3,000 newspapermen were on hand. In 1960, 5,000 came. That was her first convention since she had succeeded to the post after Donald died in 1958.

More than 6,000 news media people showed up at the San Francisco convention in 1964, she says, and she expects more than that in Miami. All this means "more to take care of in hotels and convention hall, more tickets and badges."

A lover of cats, sports and music, Jo Good sat the other day in her improvised office in Miami, surrounded by thousands of details to attend to, and said, half-wistfully, half-laughing: "When I retire, you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to become a cat-sitter."

Changes Have Been Rapid in U.S. Education Methods

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Once upon a time, it was the little red schoolhouse that symbolized education of America's youth. Today, it's more often the huge gray computer and the blinking television screen.

Changes in U.S. education methods have been as rapid as changes in the U.S. economy, the population growth, urbanization, habits and customs.

No longer do we have the image of the Abe Lincoln absorbing knowledge from a book with only the light from the fireplace by which to study. The Lincoln of today probably would be called the disadvantaged and also probably would be drawn into U.S. government programs like Head Start.

No longer do we think in terms of the schoolboy with lunchpail in hand, books held by strap, trudging several miles to that one room school where teacher taught eight grades and often as many as 50 pupils from tots to teens.

Instead of the lunchpail, there are the hot lunch programs in almost every school in the nation, supplemented now by new efforts to reach the undernourished with breakfast at school programs too. Children are bussed to school, and the teacher of today may not worry about even one grade, let alone all eight of them, but be part of a new method called the teacher team system.

This system has the teacher who's strongest in one subject assigned to instruct in it—say one in history, one in English, and so on. A "master" teacher works with the group to outline the total course of study.

(Lest one misunderstand and think the "little red schoolhouse" is passe, there still are some 6,700 one-teacher schools in the United States.)

To see what is happening in education in the U.S.A., specifically for the pupils in the primary and second schools, ages five to 17, first let us look at the explosion in school enrollment and the total U.S. population.

The statistics come from the National Education Association (NEA), an organization of more than one million teachers and other school personnel.

NEA's research division says, that for comparative purposes, enrollment of the five to 17

group in 1950 was 30.7 million out of the total U.S. population of a little over 151 million.

Now, as the U.S. population reaches the 200 million mark, it is estimated that school enrollment of this age group in September will be 51.3 million. NEA breaks these figures down to 44.7 pupils in public schools, the rest in parochial and other private schools.

The days are gone, however, when the public could consider a teachers teaching for the love of it, that dedication should come above the dollar sign.

Teacher strikes in varied metropolitan areas highlighted teachers' new demands to be, as Mrs. Elizabeth D. Koonz puts it, "paid well and dedicated too."

Mrs. Koonz is the new president of NEA, the first Negro to head the organization. NEA tables show that for the school year 1957-58, the average annual salary of an instructional staff was $4,702. Salaries have risen each year since at the rate of 4.9 per cent to an average of $7,597 for the school year 1967-68. Even so, only 4.4 per cent of the classroom instructors earned above $10,500 last year.

Anyway you look at it, however, education in the United States is big business. Total cost of public education—elementary, secondary and higher educational institutions—was estimated at $41 billion in 1967-68.

But educators also point out that that $41 billion is "less than 54 per cent of the fiscal 1968 cost of national security programs."

What are the children (and the taxpayers getting for these billions of dollars?

More formal schooling than ever before, for one thing. For enrollment in colleges and universities is soaring.

College degrees have become the status symbol of the New Generation. But at the tot's getting level, students also are getting expanded programs. Expanded learning processes, new tools for the classroom, new opportunities for the disadvantaged and the gifted alike.

The word "enrichment" has become an educational favorite. Consider summer enrichment programs alone. No longer is summer school for the child who has failed or faltered during the regular school years. Added to the traditional make-up and remedial classes are interesting and different courses.

Educational Research Service (a cooperative of the NEA and the American Association of School Administrators) queried urban, suburban and rural school systems of various sizes and found 369 different programs among the 149 school systems answering.

Many of the programs were for the gifted; others for the mentally or physically handicapped child.

Twelve gifted junior high schoolers, for instance, worked with two teachers and volunteers doing laboratory research in such topics as the microbiology of the environment and genetics.

For a group of mentally slow pupils in a rural Midwestern school, academic subjects were combined with recreational projects such as field trips to points of interest like a dairy, a police station, a greenhouse.

Foreign language study of some type is available widely in the American school system today—Spanish and French especially. But NEA finds that more than two thirds of the largest systems offer Russian at high school level. And the study found some systems offering such as Chinese, Hebrew, Italian, Arabic, Japanese, Hawaiian, Norwegian and Portuguese.

Foreign language instruction no longer is just at the high school level but starts with conversational study right at the first grade. And part of the enrichment program at the high school and college level is in working in some foreign travel and study.

It has found its way into time and money-saving in administrative chores, but so far its classroom uses are largely at the college level and as a teacher supplement.

One system no longer calling the computer experimental, however, is in the Altoona, Pa., schools, with telephone-connected branches in 17 surrounding districts. Computer courses began in 1964, with summer classes in data processing.

Now, school officials estimate that more than half of Altoona's 3,000 senior high schoolers are enrolled in courses using it. And George Zaken, Altoona's coordinator of computer application, says "as far as we know, it is more extensive than (that) of any school in the country."

From data processing and programming, the students have branched into using the complex machine for tutoring—regulating it to the student's learning pace and leaving the teacher free to move around the classroom.

Undoubtedly, the $41 billion a year is providing Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews with better education than ever before. But there still are flaws. There is the growing problem, for instance, of the dropout, the child who for one reason or another fails to complete high school, sometimes even grade school.

NEA estimates that for every 1,000 pupils who get as far as the fifth grade, only 721 graduate from high school. Alarmed, educators, the government, business and industry all are fighting the problem with propaganda and all other sorts of ways to keep children in school.

Uncle Sam has mounted a massive educational program called "Head Start." It began in 1965 with the aim of improving both the physical ability of these children and also establish an environment that would enable to enroll in school "on more nearly equal terms with his more fortunate classmates."

School Lunches Run the Gamut Pizza to Peanut Butter Cake

By JEAN EISEN
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—If 20 million school children had their druthers, the federal school lunch program might serve only hot dogs, hamburgers, steak, fried chicken, desserts, bread and rolls.

A survey by the School Lunch Division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) shows that American school children's food preferences are becoming more catholic, large in growing acceptance of such ethnic and foreign fare as pizza, lasagna, chili and enchiladas.

Otherwise, from Travelers Rest, S.C. to Phoenix, Ariz., and from Gloucester, Mass., to Broken Arrow, Okla., students tend to like the same foods—meats and sweets—and dislike the same foods—vegetables. These four communities are among 50 that tested the popularity of nine recipes selected from student favorites submitted by school systems throughout the nation.

Each recipe had to use USDA commodities, contribute to Type A lunch requirements of a protein-rich food, vegetables and milk, combine well with other menu items and be simple and economical to prepare.

After elimination of obvious simple favorites such as hot dogs, hamburgers and fried chicken, the list was narrowed down to two main dishes, three vegetable combinations, three desserts and cornmeal yeast rolls.

When those were ranked in popularity, peanut butter cake and cornmeal yeast rolls led with more than 80 per cent of the children, teachers and school lunchroom staffs who took part in the survey.

Closed behind were country fried steak, cornmeal cookies and cornmeal yeast rolls. Chinese meat pie, which is a ground meat and potatoes dish, ranked sixth, followed by the vegetable dishes: Carrot relish, corn mock-shue and tomato spoon salad.

USDA spokesmen said school lunch recipes and ideas come from many sources, including newspapers and other publications, cookbooks, the food industry, families and friends of pupils and teachers, and experiments with USDA-donated foods.

The school lunch division constantly runs tests of appetizing and nutritious recipes to be added to the federal program that serves an estimated 20 million pupils a year.

The Chinese pie recipe came from a pupil in a New Hampshire home economics class. Carrot relish, submitted by a Tennessee school, was developed by Mrs. Mary Louise Richardson from an old family recipe.

The corn mock-shue recipe, developed and tested by Mrs. Mary Kirkman, University of Southwest Louisiana dietitian at Lafayette, was based on an original mock-shue recipe used for years by Southern Louisiana Creole families. It contains corn, tomatoes, chopped onions and green peppers.

A bread recipe came from a former Navy Food Service staff member, Bradford S. MacNulty, who claimed navy bread was better than the standard school loaf. But when both recipes were tested together, the school loaf ranked better for flavor. So the two recipes were combined to produce the flavor of the school loaf with the speedier preparation time of the navy one.

Five recipes for peanut butter cake were submitted in the school lunch program survey. The following one was developed by Mrs. Harry Bond, Scott High School, Madison, W.Va.

Beat 1/2 cup shortening with 1 1/4 cups of brown sugar, packed, until mixture is creamy. Blend in 2 1/2 cups of peanut butter until mixture is smooth. Beat in 4 eggs, one at a time.

and 2 teaspoons of vanilla. Sift 2 cups of sifted flour with 1 tablespoon of baking powder and 1 teaspoon of salt and add to first mixture alternately with 2 1/2 cup of milk. Divide batter between two greased 9-inch cake pans. Bake 30 minutes, or until layers test done, in a preheated 350-degree oven. Cool in pans about 10 minutes, turn out on racks and frost, when completely cooled, with vanilla or ample cream frosting.

New Title but Jo Good Still Runs Things

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Jo Good is so good they've given her a new title.

She used to be called executive director of the Republican National Convention; now she's convention coordinator.

It's a tossup which handle is more impressive, but she thinks her new title is better. "More applicable," she has decided. "But there's no change in the responsibilities."

Josephine L. Good is a cool, unflappable blonde who, more than any other single person, can be credited with keeping Republican conventions smooth-running affairs. The one coming up is her third, and she doesn't think it is presenting more knotty problems than the others.

"When you're behind the scenes, though," she says, "it doesn't seem to you to be going smoothly at all."

Miss Good points out, quite neutrally, that Miami's convention hall is new and so far only one function has been held there, a graduation exercise.

"But the acoustics are getting straightened out and I'm pretty sure everything is going to be all right," she says in the calm, untroubled manner that has carried her successfully through earlier conventions.

No Permanent Seats That's not to say there aren't problems. For example, "this is the first time a GOP convention has been held in a building without any permanent seating.

There's not a permanent seat in the hall. And such a low ceiling. The delegates' area is close to the guest seating area, where before we have always had a gallery or balcony to separate them."

No permanent seating is the trend in exhibition halls now, she says, to give plenty of room for such things as boat or automobile shows.

"The hall seats 16,900, with our arrangement," she says, "and there will be much less standing than at the previous conventions in Chicago and San Francisco."

Because there just aren't places for people to stand means that a sort of plan has been instituted of a place for everyone and everyone in his place. Even the pages to the delegates will have seats and such jobs as assistant sergeants-at-arms have been abolished.

"We still have honorary assistant sergeants-at-arms, but they've always roamed before, and now they've been assigned seats with obscured views."

"One convention is barely over until another," she reflects. "The four-year period goes fast for me."

It takes one year at least after the convention to clean up the details: get the files in order, make reports, get the bid for printing the proceedings and then see that the printing comes out well. There's a lot of correspondence from professors and students and foreign visitors. Then, by the time everything is straightened out, it's two years to go to the next convention. It takes at least that long to get one launched, beginning with answering queries from cities about requirements for becoming the convention site.

'Knack for Details'

But the job isn't as bad as people might think, she says, "if you know what you're doing and have a knack for detail."

Denver-born Jo Good got caught up in convention work in 1956, three years after newly appointed Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield asked her to serve as his confidential and administrative aide. Before that, during World War II, she served in the Coast Guard Women's Reserve with rank of chief yeoman and had become a secretary in Washington in 1945.

She says that in her work the basic problems are always the same. But one that keeps growing is the "increased activity on the part of the news media."

At the 1956 convention, where she understudied William J. Donald who had done the work for three decades, about 3,000 newsmen were on hand. In 1960, 5,000 came. That was her first convention since she had succeeded to the post after Donald died in 1958.

More than 6,000 news media people showed up at the San Francisco convention in 1964, she says, and she expects more than that in Miami. All this means "more to take care of in hotels and convention hall, more tickets and badges."

Dear Folks:
This is for those of us who are big in the middle (that's the tummy part) and buy stretch blue jeans . . . and need to alter them a little so they'll fit around our middle.

If you'll notice, there's always about an inch or so of extra band in the back part. Every person I know who alters clothes, always takes off the entire band, takes out the tucks, etc.

Fiddle de dee! It's not necessary.

I just bought two pairs and found that if I use a razor blade, I can rip one side of the band off starting near the button where that extra inch or so is hanging over. Then take the band and "rip" just across the back part (don't even bother to rip the whole band off—only half.) That doggone stretch jean will stretch perfectly so that you can reseat that back band on again. It will stretch that extra inch or two while you sew it.

This means I don't have to alter any tucks whatsoever. But I must rip out instead of cutting each stitch.

You'll still have to set that little ole button over on the end. But with all the stretch jeans we buy that just AIN'T big enough through the middle, why not try this method?

Expert Says, 'Romantic Look Is Next'

By NADEANE WALKER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Boys and girls in the swinging set may be dressing more and more alike, but fashion is unlikely to become sexless, says Joanne Drogden the new head of London's School of Fashion.

"Ladies' trouser suits are not really very masculine in cut," she says. "Women don't really want to look like men."

She sees the future of fashion as a battle between space-age molded clothing and a human yearning for romanticism, with frills and furbelows.

The tall, attractive 37-year-old brunette, favors classic Chanel styles personally, but thinks "the romantic look is surely the coming thing, and could be great if it carries over into behavior, manners and social mores."

After all, says Miss Brogden, "that's what fashion ought to do. It's not just concerned with clothes."

The job she steps into when school resumes in the fall is probably the most important in the business. The London School of Fashion, founded in 1948 and a branch of the Royal College of Art, has earned the reputation of turning out England's foremost young designers. It trains only 45 students a year—the pick of talent from art schools—and nearly all of them step straight into top jobs in the rag trade. Many have won international fame, among them Hylan Booker (an American), Maggie Shephert and Ossie Clark (women's clothes designers), Graham Smith and Peter Shepherd (milliners) and Moya Bowler (shoes).

Miss Brogden, in private life Mrs. Frederick Dubery, wife of a London artist, was named to take over from Janie Ironside, who quit because the School of Fashion was not allowed to award degrees, a privilege granted to the rest of the Royal College of Art this year.

"Of course, I think we ought to award degrees, too," the new head explains. "But I'm optimistic. I think they will let us award M.A. degrees soon—as soon as the councils have time to sort it out."

One of the things Miss Brogden is pleased about is the research unit now operating in the school—"although of course our equipment isn't really sufficient yet."

The research emphasis is on plastics and molded clothing. The garment is made in one piece, without seams or sewing, something like the way a plastic bucket is stamped out.

A 22-year-old student, Victor Herbert, "is making great progress in the subject," Miss Brogden says.

"But I don't believe everybody will be wearing molded clothing in 10 years' time," she adds. "Some people say there just won't be enough cotton and wool and natural fibers to clothe everybody as the population grows. Of course, synthetics are important, but I can't see them taking over completely."

"Side by side with this space-age thing there's a great yearning back to the romantic style—ruffles and velvets. I hate straight copies of the 18th century, but the influence can be adapted very nicely into modern clothes. We can do it with rich materials, toning down the ruffs and what just isn't practical."

"There's nothing more revolting than a ruffled cuff with a gray smear on it. I don't care how short my students wear their skirts as long as they're neat and well-groomed."

Three out of four students at the School of Fashion are girls, and the new head defends their talents as designers.

"Women once preferred to be dressed by men, but I think that's changed," she says. "If we get the impression that most designers are men, that's just because they tend to get more publicity, perhaps because they're usually more flamboyant."

She thinks that the present fashion revolution started with London's Teddy Boys after the war, when the drugstore corner kids revived the high-button jackets and other fashions of King Edward VII's days at the beginning of this century.

"It was the first indication of the reversal of the old rule that fashions seep down from the top of society. Nowadays they can spring up at any interval in the social scale."

"Carnaby Street's value was that it was doing all the things none of the big men's wear firms would dare do. It has now degenerated into a terrible, free-for-all. My students are certainly not keen on it. It's become a 'thing' and they want to be on to the next thing."

Record Field for Tennis Tourney

A record breaking entry of 75 players, headed by defending singles champion Jim Fredericks, has been announced for the annual Ulster County Tennis Championships which open today at 5:30 p. m. at the Forsyth Park court.

Bill Spangenberg, chairman of the tournament which is sponsored by the Kingston Area Tennis Association, said the 75 players would be involved in 153 events.

"This is by far the best, largest and strongest ever to compete in this tournament," said Spangenberg.

Dancer's Colt Brings $75,000

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — A grey colt by Native Dancer out of Staretta sold for high price of $75,000 Tuesday night at the opening of the 48th annual Saratoga yearling sales that brought a total of $1,210,500 for 63 horses, an average of $19,214.

The colt, consigned by owner-breeder Leonard P. Sasso, was acquired by James L. Wiley as agent for an undisclosed purchaser.

Wiley, of The Plains, Va., also sold eight head for his own account, including a bay filly by Turn-to from Gallant Majesty to William G. Helis Jr. of Jobs town, N.J., for $60,000.

Another $60,000 purchase was the chestnut son of the French sire, Sea Bird, one of whose offspring sold several weeks ago at Keeneland for a world record $405,000. The Sea Bird colt was acquired by Herbert Palestine of New York City from the consignment of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Love of Cockeysville, Md.

A bay colt by On-and-on, sire of Forward Pass, this year's Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner out of Dear April, went to Fred A. Purner Jr. of Los Angeles for $57,000.

The opening night figures compares to last year's $950,000 for 64 head, an average of $14,687.

The sales at the new H.S. Finney Pavilion continue through Friday night.

Other seeded players in the men's singles division besides Fredericks include Dick Smith, Pete Zeeb and Dick Little, all redoubtable singles and doubles competitors over the years.

Men's doubles start this weekend, followed by the women's singles and mixed doubles the following week. All final matches will be played over the weekend of Aug. 24-25.

Trophies will be awarded at the conclusion of the tournament on Sunday, Aug. 25.

Chairman Spangenberg said the heavy interest shown by women for a doubles tournament led KATA officials to place the event on the schedule for the first time.

Matches will be played daily starting at 5:30 p. m. at Forsyth Park and the public is invited to watch. There is no admission charge.

The tennis boom in the county this season reflects a steady growth in tennis interest since the Kingston Area Tennis Association put the game on an organized basis over the past few years.

Kingston Jaycees huge success in the recent New York State Jaycees Spectacular also is credited with helping the tennis boom.

Local players captured two state titles in the Spectacular, Bill Zeeb upsetting Dave Roberts in the singles and then teaming with him to win the doubles.

"Those two wins did a lot for local tennis interest," said Spangenberg.

The Kingston Daily Freeman

Sports

Kolln-Junior Champ

Werner Kolln and Ed Byman, a couple of Kingston High school golf cronies, take turns beating each other.

Byman, of course, won the recent New York State Jaycees title at Wiltwyck Country Club, with Werner somewhere in the pack.

In their most recent confrontation, the result was different. Werner put together a neat 39-37-76 score to beat buddy Ed by three shots for the coveted Maurice Davenport Memorial Trophy, symbolic of the Class A Junior title at Wiltwyck.

A front-nine 42 proved disastrous for Byman, who rallied with a 37 on the back nine.

But the Byman family didn't go home empty handed. Little Bobby, a precocious 14-year-old, carried home his second straight Class B title (boys 14 and under) with a sparkling 38-38-76 in the J. Watson Bailey Memorial competition. The score, of course, would have tied Kolln in the Class (15-17) age bracket.

The third Class A contender

Joe Bostic, another member of the powerful Kingston High school squad—had to quit in the middle round because of a pulled neck muscle.

Kolln's victory in the Davenport Memorial was his first. The Class B field drew a fairly large entry and produced some fine scores over the long Wiltwyck fairways.

Terry Gertner was runnerup with 47-49-86. Other top shooters included: Terry Allred, 52-50-102; Seth Meyer, 57-46-103; Marc Brown, 52-51-103; Erik Mazzotta, 49-56-105; Randy Spiesman, 54-53-107.

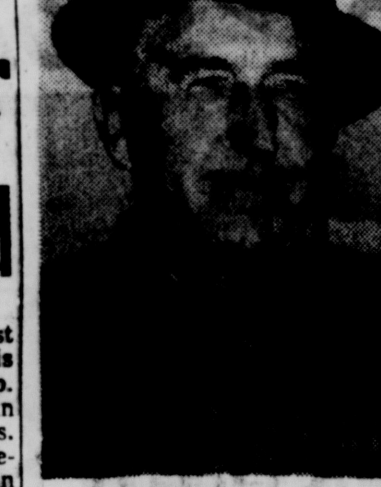

The brilliant 4-over-par 76's posted by Kolln and youthful Bobby Byman reflect the outstanding ability of the Wiltwyck Juniors. Ed Byman, of course, is generally rated the best junior golfer to come along since William (Buzzy) Costello.

The two Bymans—Bob and Ed—Bostic and Kolln make up the powerful Wiltwyck junior team which has lost only one match in three years of Mid-Hudson Valley Junior Golf Classic competition.

That happened one day when the "varsity" couldn't play because of another commitment.

Gerlak, Hutchins Share

Tourney Lead With 72s

ALEX GERLAK

JIM HUTCHINS

Two Kingston area pros—Alex Gerlak of The Twaalfskill Club and Jim Hutchins of Woodstock—shared the professional lead with 2-over-par 72 in the Northeastern New York PGA Pro-Member tournament at On-teora Golf Club.

Claude Young, the veteran Winding Brook campaigner, was the third pro at 72. For Hutchins, it was the second straight week he shared the No. 1 pro spot.

Gerlak had nine of 36-36, with Young and Hutchins posting 35-37 each on the par 35-35-70 Tannersville layout.

The combination of Dick Osborne, Ballston Spa Country Club pro, and Peter Saylor took first place in the Pro-Member with a best-ball 30-32-62. One stroke behind was the team of Bill McNab, Knights of St. John Golf Club pro, and Libby Cister. McNab-Coster carded 33-30-63.

Cain No Sugar For Richmond

Undated International League Roundup

(By United Press International) "Sugar" may be sweet for the Toledo Mud Hens, but he's not exactly the Richmond Braves' cup of tea.

Les Cain, known as "Sugar" by his teammates, continued his mastery over the Braves Tuesday night as he beat them 7-1 with relief help from Dick Radatz. The 20-year-old lefthander blanked Richmond 4-0 on six hits his first start of the season and, in his other appearance against the Braves, he gave way to Tom Timmerman in a 9-6 victory.

In other International League action, Rochester moved into second place by sweeping a doubleheader from Columbus 3-1 and 7-2. Jacksonville edged Buffalo 4-3 and Louisville thumped Syracuse 9-5.

Cain got all the support he needed from Ron Woods' eighth and ninth homers of the season, both solo shots, and Junior Lopez' 17th win against him, in posting his fourth win against two losses. Radatz relieved in the seventh inning and didn't allow a run.

Rochester got route going performance from Mike Adamson and Roger Nelson in ousting Columbus from second place. Adamson, in his first start since returning from Baltimore, picked up his fifth victory against one defeat in the first game, while Nelson upped his record to 3-0 in the nightcap. Chet Trail slammed a homer in each game for the Red Wings.

Jacksonville's Ron Locke relieved fireballer Gary Gentry in the fifth inning and allowed just one run in five innings as he raised his record to 5-1. Bob Saverine hit his third homer of the season off Gentry in the third. Steve Jones, now 10-6, took the loss for the Bisons.

Bob Myer shut out Syracuse for six innings in relief of Colonel starter Billy Farmer to record his sixth victory in thirteen decisions. Hal Reniff, 5-4, lost the game for the Colonels after replacing starter John Cumberland in the second inning. Len Boehmer of Syracuse hit his sixth homer, a three run blast, in the first inning.

Chairman Spangenberg said the heavy interest shown by women for a doubles tournament led KATA officials to place the event on the schedule for the first time.

Matches will be played daily starting at 5:30 p. m. at Forsyth Park and the public is invited to watch. There is no admission charge.

The tennis boom in the county this season reflects a steady growth in tennis interest since the Kingston Area Tennis Association put the game on an organized basis over the past few years.

Kingston Jaycees huge success in the recent New York State Jaycees Spectacular also is credited with helping the tennis boom.

Local players captured two state titles in the Spectacular, Bill Zeeb upsetting Dave Roberts in the singles and then teaming with him to win the doubles.

"Those two wins did a lot for local tennis interest," said Spangenberg.

Michael's Firm Grip on Second In Yankee Loop

Michael's Barber Shop firmed its grip on second place while dealing a severe blow to South Side Men's Club, as Mouse Wolven unfurled a neat, three-hit, 7-3 victory in the Yankee Division of the Saugerties Softball League.

Glascow A.C. leads the pace with a 9-1 record, followed by Michael's (9-2) and South Side (10-3).

Doubles by Wolven and Bill Fischer and errors helped Michael's to three runs in the second. In the next inning, Mike Dodig led off with a homer and Mickey Iannone followed with a three-run shot.

Herb Whitaker hit a two-run homer for South Side in the seventh.

As Griffith Sees It, Nino Can't Avoid Him

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—Former welterweight and middleweight champion Emile Griffith, fresh from his victory over previously unbeaten Gypsy Joe Harris, doesn't see how Nino Benvenuti can avoid fighting him again for the middleweight title.

Griffith said his 12-round unanimous decision Tuesday night over the flashy Gypsy in a record indoor gate fight here, eliminated all contenders for the Italian's crown.

A spectrum crowd of 13,875 paid $118,389 to watch the Virgin Island native overcome Harris' speed in the first four rounds and dominated the bout the rest of the way.

"If Benvenuti fights someone else, then he won't get the money he would get in a fight with me," Griffith said in his dressing room. Asked why Benvenuti would fight him again for the fourth time, the 30-year-old former champion said, "Money talks, look what it did tonight."

Griffith said he fought Harris to work his way up to fight the middleweight champ. "With anyone else, Benvenuti will only make $20,000; with me, $175,000, like our last match in New York in March," Griffith said.

The fast-moving 23-year-old Harris, who had to shed 23 pounds at the weigh-in, said after his first defeat, his weight of 161 did not make him sluggish.

Record Field for Tennis Tourney

A record breaking entry of 75 players, headed by defending singles champion Jim Fredericks, has been announced for the annual Ulster County Tennis Championships which open today at 5:30 p. m. at the Forsyth Park court.

Bill Spangenberg, chairman of the tournament which is sponsored by the Kingston Area Tennis Association, said the 75 players would be involved in 153 events.

"This is by far the best, largest and strongest ever to compete in this tournament," said Spangenberg.

A new division—the women's doubles—has been added for the first time. Other competition will be in men's singles and doubles, women's singles and mixed doubles.

Spangenberg, incidentally, will be among the first on the firing line, as he drew a first-round match with Marshall Lip-ton.

Other first day pairings are: John Bethia vs. Dick Ihly, Alun Bahgat vs. Ray Lauterbach.

Tom Guadagnola vs. G. Herbert Dekay.

Nick Fowler vs. Jim Boyd.

Other seeded players in the men's singles division besides Fredericks include Dick Smith, Pete Zeeh and Dick Little, all redoubtable singles and doubles competitors over the years.

Men's doubles start this weekend, followed by the women's singles and mixed doubles the following week. All final matches will be played over the weekend of Aug. 24-25.

Trophies will be awarded at the conclusion of the tournament on Sunday, Aug. 25.

Chairman Spangenberg said the heavy interest shown by women for a doubles tournament led KATA officials to place the event on the schedule for the first time.

Matches will be played daily starting at 5:30 p. m. at Forsyth Park and the public is invited to watch. There is no admission charge.

Kolln-Junior Champ

Werner Kolln and Ed Byman, a couple of Kingston High school golf cronies, take turns beating each other.

Byman, of course, won the recent New York State Jaycees title at Wiltwyck Country Club, with Werner somewhere in the pack.

In their most recent confrontation, the result was different. Werner put together a neat 39-37—76 score to beat buddy Ed by three shots for the coveted Maurice Davenport Memorial Trophy, symbolic of the Class A Junior title at Wiltwyck.

A front-nine 42 proved disastrous for Byman, who rallied with a 37 on the back nine.

But the Byman family didn't go home empty handed. Little Bobby, a precocious 14-year-old, carried home his second straight Class B title (boys 14 and under) with a sparkling 38-38—76 in the J. Watson Ball Memorial competition.

The score of course, would have tied Kolln in the Class (15-17) age bracket.

The third Class A contender

—Joe Bostic, another member of the powerful Kingston High school squad—had to quit in the middle round because of a pulled neck muscle.

Kolln's victory in the Davenport Memorial was his first.

The Class B field drew a fairly large entry and produced some fine scores over the long Wiltwyck fairways.

Terry Gertner was runnerup with 47-49-96. Other top shooters included: Terry Alfred, 52-50-102; Seth Meyer, 57-46-103; Marc Brown, 52-51-103; Erik Mazzotta, 49-56-105; Randy Spiesman, 54-53-107.

The brilliant 4-over-par 76's posted by Kolln and youthful Bobby Byman reflect the outstanding ability of the Wiltwyck Juniors. Ed Byman, of course, is generally rated the best junior golfer to come along since William (Buzzy) Costello.

The two Bymans—Bob and Ed—Bostic and Kolln make up the powerful Wiltwyck junior team which has lost only one match in three years of Mid-Hudson Valley Junior Golf Classic competition.

That happened one day when the "varsity" couldn't play because of another commitment.

JIM HUTCHINS

Two Kingston area pros—Alex Gerlak of The Twaalfskill Club and Jim Hutchins of Woodstock—shared the professional lead with 2-over-par 72 in the Northeastern New York PGA Pro-Member tournament at On-teora Golf Club.

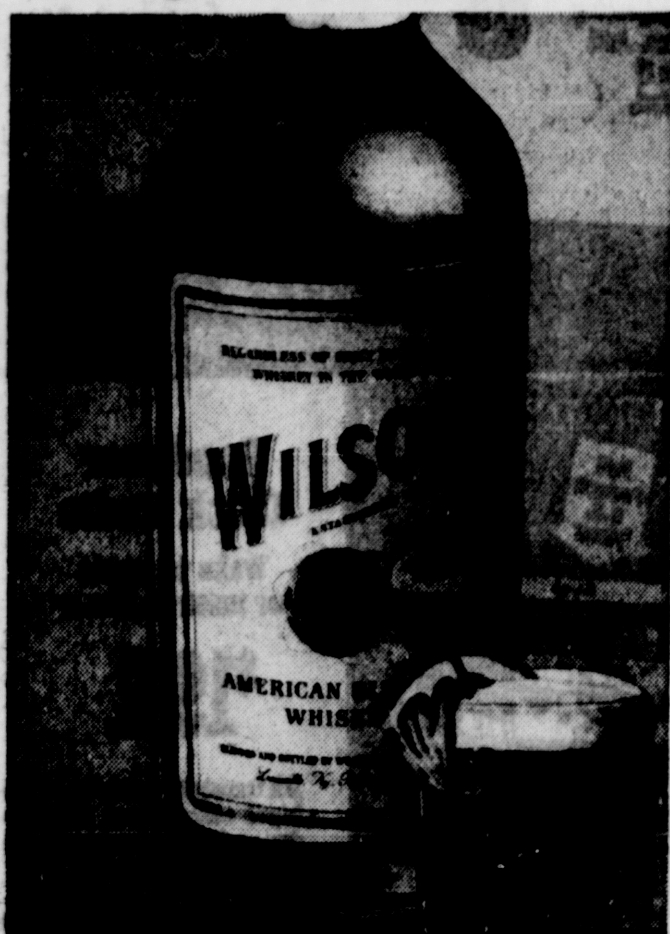

Claude Young, the veteran Winding Brook campaigner, was the third pro at 72. For Hutchins, it was the second straight week he shared the No. 1 pro spot.

Gerlak had nine of 36-36, with Young and Hutchins posting 35-37 each on the par 35-35-70 Tannersville layout.

The combination of Dick Osborne, Ballston Spa Country Club pro, and Peter Saylor took first place in the Pro-Member with a best-ball 30-32-62. One stroke behind was the team of Bill McNab, Knights of St. John Golf Club pro, and Libby Cister. McNab-Coster carded 33-30-63.

Other pro scores: Dick Osborne, Ballston, 36-39-75; Hap Duval, Schenectady, 39-37-76; Ron Jensen, Poughkeepsie, 39-39-78; Gordie Faulkner, Wolferts Roost, 37-41-78; Dick Hughes, Colonie, 39-39-78; Alex Sinclair, Mohawk, 40-39-79.

Cain No Sugar For Richmond

Undated International League Roundup

(By United Press International)
"Sugar" may be sweet for the Toledo Mud Hens, but he's not exactly the Richmond Braves' cup of tea.

Kevin Collins' Dream Was Astros Nightmare

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Rookie Kevin Collins came up out of the dirt in the eighth inning Tuesday night — and wound up floating in the clouds in the ninth.

"I hope the beds in the hotel are tied down because I might dream myself away," the youngster beamed after his first major league homer — a three-run smash in the ninth — snapped a 1-1 tie and gave the New York Mets a 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I put on a grin coming around second base, I just couldn't hold it back," he said.

The remarkable thing about Collins' first big league homer is that it came in an inning after he was almost knocked out of the game when Julio Gotay riddled him in at third base. Gotay, late in tagging up at second on Norm Miller's sacrifice fly that tied the game, in the eighth, tried to bowl over Collins at third—but the youngster held onto the ball during the collision for the out.

Mets' trainer Gus Mauch came out to massage Collins' left arm which took a beating in the collision—but the youngster stayed into the game and then decided the game with his two on, two out homer off loser Dave Giusti.

A native of Springfield, Mass., Collins couldn't get over his homer. "Considering this is my first homer, I don't know how to celebrate. I don't want to phone my father because we'd talk so long we'd run up a $100 phone bill. My dad will be in seventh heaven."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs cut St. Louis' lead to 13 games by topping Atlanta 4-3 while the Cards were losing to Cincinnati 5-0. Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 4-1 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia by an identical 4-1 margin.

Collins' homer saddled Giusti with his 12th loss against six victories while Cal Koonce got the win in relief. Cleon Jones and Ed Kranepool hit one-out singles in the ninth and after J.C. Martin popped out, Collins followed with his game-winning homer.

Jim Maloney pitched a five hitter and Leo Cardenas homered during a four-run eighth inning as the Reds stopped the Cards. It was the Cards' fourth loss in the last five games. Steve Carlton went 7-2-3 in the game for the Cards and suffered his sixth loss against 11 victories.

The Cubs scored three runs in the first inning with the aid of four Atlanta errors to hand the Braves the setback. It was the first time the Braves have committed four errors in one inning since they moved to Atlanta. Felipe Alou dropped a fly ball and then threw wildly for a double error while shortstop Marty Martinez bobbled a grounder and second baseman Felix Millan dropped what would have been a double play ball at second. Joe Niekro went the first seven innings for the Cubs to boost his record to 12-6 while Phil Regan finished up.

Don Drysdale committed two errors in the ninth inning to let in three unearned runs and enable the Pirates to beat the Dodgers.

Braves, Cuties Washed Out
The Tuesday rains dealt another severe blow to the Kingston Braves' already crowded Hudson Valley Rookie League schedule. But worst of all, it snuffed out Fred Davis' hopes for the best game of the season.

The California Cuties were slated to meet Davi's Glasco Athletic Club squad in the second game of the two-nighter but grounds were too wet to permit that game to go on. No new date has been announced.

Braves try it again with a two-nighter against the Wappingers Falls Ions Thursday night at 6:30 p. m. at Dietz Stadium.

The first game of the Red Whites—Yallum's City Softball playoffs, also rained out, has been rescheduled for today at 6:45 p. m.

Tigers Feast on Extra Outs

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was out and you're on and on and you're out.

Any fan knows that's no way to play baseball. The Baltimore Orioles know it, too.

Tony Oliva led off the sixth inning for Minnesota Tuesday night and struck out. But Oriole catcher Andy Etchebarren failed to handle the third strike and Oliva reached first. One out later, Bob Allison homered and Minnesota had a 5-0 lead.

The Orioles then fought back to trail by only 5-4 with one out in the ninth. Up stepped pinch-hitter Larry Haney, who lashed the ball to right field and ended up on second base. But he failed to touch first and was out.

Ron Perrasoski retired the next batter and the second-place Orioles were beaten 5-4 to fall 6½ games behind the American League-leading Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers edged Cleveland 2-1 in 17 innings on Dick Traub's run-scoring single and led 5-2 after eight innings of the nightcap of the two-night doubleheader when it was suspended by a 1 a.m. EDT curfew. It will be completed tonight.

In other American League action, Boston trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-2 and California beat Washington 10-3 before losing to the Senators 1-0. The New York Yankees and Oakland were not scheduled.

Powell Raps Double
Cesar Tovar scored the first two Minnesota runs and drove in the third. Frank Robinson and Bob Johnson drove in Baltimore runs in the sixth. The Orioles got another pair in the eighth on Boog Powell's RBI double and an error.

Tracewski's game-winning single was only his second hit in 33 at bats. It scored Willie Horton, who singled and moved to second when Bill Freehan was hit by a pitch.

Cleveland scored in the third inning on Tommy Harper's single, a sacrifice and Jose Cardenas' single. Detroit tied it in the eighth when Don Wert homered off starter Luis Tiant.

Shanley's Score 10-3 Victory
Bucky Farmer pitched a steady seven-hitter to pace Shanley to a 10-3 victory over Eddie's Country Fair in the Ellenville Softball League. Farmer and Dick Cotton each had two hits for Shanley's, who scored five runs in the fourth. Vic Rivera, a relief pitcher for Eddie's, slammed a double and solo homer.

Corky Van Vliet lost his 12th straight decision for Eddie's who are now 0-13 in the league standings. Shanley's won their 9th game in 13 starts.

Rain Interrupts Women's Event
A driving rainstorm halted the Ulster County women's golf champions Tuesday at Woodstock. The second round was re-scheduled for Thursday, with the same starting times and pairings.

Three groups remained to tee off when play was stopped at about 11 a.m. Some players had completed nine holes.

Tournament officials said the greens were drawing water when play was halted.

Mid-Hudson Soccer Play Opens Sunday

Heading the list of challengers is the Shamrocks of New York, runnersup to the locals last year.

The other six teams, selected from the League and Premier Divisions of the German-American Soccer Association include: Bavarian Sport Club of College Point; Dalhousie, Hoboken; Eintracht of Astoria; Poughkeepsie Blue and White; Spring Valley and West New York, N. J.

Four one-hour games will be played on successive Sundays starting at 1:30 p. m. Four teams will be eliminated this week, with the four finalists battling for the title on Aug. 18.

Cash prizes totalling $775.00 will be awarded for first, second, third, fourth, fifth and eighth places. First prize is $300, second, $150; third, $100; fourth, $50; fifth and eighth, $25 each. The prize list was swelled by generous donations from Oehler's Mountain Lodge and Utica Club Beer.

Kurt Schoch, former president of the Kingston Sport Club and a soccer pioneer in the area, is tournament chairman. He will be assisted by Fritz Weber.

Kevin Collins' Dream Was Astros Nightmare

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

Rookie Kevin Collins came up out of the dirt in the eighth inning Tuesday night — and wound up floating in the clouds in the ninth.

"I hope the beds in the hotel are tied down because I might dream myself away," the youngster beamed after his first major league homer — a three-run smash in the ninth — snapped a 1-1 tie and gave the New York Mets a 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros.

"I put on a grin coming around second base, I just couldn't hold it back," he said.

The remarkable thing about Collins' first big league homer is that it came in an inning after he was almost knocked out of the game when Julio Gotay rammed into him at third base. Gotay, late in tagging up at second on Norm Miller's sacrifice fly that tied the game, in the eighth, tried to bowl over Collins at third—but the youngster held onto the ball during the collision for the out.

Mets' trainer Gus Mauch came out to massage Collins' left arm which took a beating in the collision—but the youngster stayed into the game and then decided the game with his two on, two out homer off loser Dave Giusti.

A native of Springfield, Mass., Collins couldn't get over his homer. "Considering this is my first homer, I don't know how to celebrate. I don't want to phone my father because we'd talk so long we'd run up a $100 phone bill. My dad will be in seventh heaven."

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs cut St. Louis' lead to 13 games by topping Atlanta 4-3 while the Cards were losing to Cincinnati 5-0. Pittsburgh edged Los Angeles 4-1 and San Francisco beat Philadelphia by an identical 4-1 margin.

Collins' homer saddled Giusti with his 12th loss against six victories while Cal Koonce got the win in relief. Cleon Jones and Ed Kranepool hit one-out singles in the ninth and after J.C. Martin popped out, Collins followed with his game-winning homer.

Jim Maloney pitched a five hitter and Leo Cardenas homered during a four-run eighth inning as the Reds stopped the Cards. It was the Cards' fourth loss in the last five games. Steve Carlton won 7-3 in the game for the Cards and suffered his sixth loss against 11 victories.

Ron Perranoski retired the next batter and the second-place Orioles were beaten 5-4 to fall 6½ games behind the American League-leading Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers edged Cleveland 2-1 in 17 innings on Dick Tra-czewski's run-scoring single and led 5-2 after eight innings of the nightcap of the two-night double-header when it was suspended by a 1 a.m. EDT, curfew. It will be completed tonight.

In other American League action, Boston trounced the Chicago White Sox 8-2 and California beat Washington 10-3 before losing to the Senators 1-0. The New York Yankees and Oakland were not scheduled.

Powell Raps Double

Cesar Tovar scored the first two Minnesota runs and drove in the third. Frank Robinson and Bob Johnson drove in Baltimore runs in the sixth. The Orioles got another pair in the eighth on Boog Powell's RBI double and an error.

Tracewski's game-winning single was only his second hit in 33 at bats. It scored Willie Horton, who singled and moved to second when Bill Freehan was hit by a pitch.

Cleveland scored in the third inning on Tommy Harper's single, a sacrifice and Jose Cardenal's single. Detroit tied it in the eighth when Don Wert homered off starter Luis Tiant.

The Tigers took a 5-2 lead in the suspended game by scoring four runs in the sixth, two of them coming on Al Kaline's pinch double with the bases loaded.

Lou Klimchok's bases-loaded single brought in Cleveland's two runs. Detroit's other tally came on Norm Cash's 16th homer.

Boston wrapped up its victory over the White Sox with five runs in the fourth. Carl Yastrzemski hit his 14th homer leading off the fourth, then drove in another run in the inning when he walked with the bases loaded. He also batted in a run with a sacrifice fly in the first.

Yaz Slams 14th

Carl Yastrzemski's homer ignited a five-run fourth inning which propelled the Red Sox to their sixth win in the last seven games. Yaz drove in three runs and Jim Lonberg evened his record at 3-3, allowing eight hits and two runs in seven innings.

Joe Coleman hurled a four-hitter and Cap Peterson scored the only run on Jim McGlothlin's wild pitch in the fourth inning, as the Senators earned a split with the Angels. Chuck Hinton led off the first game with a homer and California capitalized on six Washington errors to score six unearned runs.

California took advantage of six Washington errors to score six unearned runs in the opening game. Chuck Hinton homered for the winning Angels and he, Don Mincher and Bobby Knop each had three hits.

Shanley's Score 10-3 Victory

Bucky Farmer pitched a steady seven-hitter to pace Hotel Shanley to a 10-3 victory over Eddie's Country Fair in the Ellenville Softball League. Farmer and Dick Cotton each had two hits for Shanley's, who scored five runs in the fourth. Vic Rivera, a relief pitcher for Eddie's, slammed a double and solo homer.

Montreal Franchise Fading

MONTREAL (UPI) — Montreal's hopes for a major league baseball franchise are expected to be dashed today at a meeting between distiller heir Charles Bronfman and National League President Warren Giles.

Giles is expected to announce after the meeting that the National League's choice of a franchise to fill out its 12-league team in 1969 will be between Buffalo and Milwaukee.

Bronfman said early Tuesday night that he was confident the franchise awarded to Montreal earlier this year "would be a fact rather than a pipe-dream" but another source predicted that Bronfman will back out of the deal Wednesday morning.

Giles was in New York City Tuesday night but booked an early-morning flight to Montreal.

Robert Swados, spokesman for Major League Baseball for Buffalo, Inc., said his group had not been notified of any meeting today. But he said his group "understands Montreal is in serious trouble" and that it has informed the National League it would be willing to accept a team.

A spokesman for the Milwaukee Brewers, the group promoting a new franchise for Milwaukee, said the Brewers "have no comment at this time." The Brewers have been sponsoring Chicago White Sox a site for Erie County's games in Milwaukee this year. At least two of the original directors of the Montreal franchise have already severed connections with the organization and the only available stadium is an open-air arena built for sports events connected with Expo '67. City officials said they will put a roof on the "Autostade" but work has not yet started on it.

In Buffalo, the 20-man country legislature tabled action Tuesday night on the location of a site for Erie County's proposed $50-million sports stadium. Seth A. Abbott, chairman of the legislature's economic development committee, withdrew his motion for a downtown Buffalo location after the legislators voted 10-10 to approve it.

The proposal is not expected to be considered again until next month.

Rocky's Campaign Short In Delegates and Time

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
MIAMI BEACH (NEA) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's catch-up campaign operated under inevitable but crushing handicaps from the outset.

He tried to do it all in three months. And there are just too many tasks, too many people to persuade, too many places to go, to bring it off smoothly.

His front-running opponent, Richard Nixon, was already effectively organized in late 1966, after he finished barnstorming the country for state and local Republican candidates.

It may be that 1968 will teach public figures once and for all of the terrible chances and near-futility of short campaigns.

The late Robert F. Kennedy, who had declared for the presidency a whole month-and-a-half before Rockefeller jumped in on April 30, was suffering the same handicaps in lesser degree.

It can be argued, though of course not proved, in the circumstances, that Kennedy could have gone on to win the Democratic nomination had he lived. Many politicians and observers think not.

Certainly his job of overtaking Vice-President Humphrey was huge. And there is positive testimony from Kennedy managers that his loss of the Oregon primary May 28 was ascribable in part to neglect resulting from a telescoped campaign.

The trouble with his personal appeals to delegates in 45 of the 50 states was that most of them were made to individuals who, in many instances, had been chosen through the advice, counsel and pressure of Nixon advocates and managers. So persuasion was doubly hard.

Some people in politics still refer dreamily to Adlai Stevenson's 1952 nomination with no campaign at all as proof it can be done. But he was chosen in a near-vacuum, his only competition was Estes Kefauver who was not favored by either wing of the Democratic party.

There was no vacuum this time. Nixon's marvelously efficient undertaking, vastly superior to his 1960 effort when he had all the prestige of the vice-presidency going for him, meant that any rival would have to perform steadily at peak level to beat him.

Rockefeller could not. Held back at first by Michigan Gov. George Romney's campaign, which he supported, Rocky would have been delayed badly in any event. But the New Yorker's March 21 pull-out, rooted deeply in distaste for further hard in-fighting, was disastrous.

It left his own camp divided, his loyal adherents disheartened, others of lesser faith angered to the point of defection. Many voters who liked him coupled March 21 and his April 30 entry and stamped the governor as "vacillating."

With residual anti-Rockefeller feeling still strong in the GOP conservative wing, he had enough drawbacks without the new ones. Taken together, the burdens were incredible.

He had no primary victories to show except a surprising write-in triumph in Massachusetts the very day he entered. The costly advertising and the hopelessly favorable polls he counted on to win voters who in turn would hammer on delegates to shift his way were never that impressive.

Over-all, neither was his campaign, even allowing for its shortness. Its disorganization has been critically felt in this convention city. His forces often have been painfully unprofessional, leaving the field to a rival already deeply entrenched. It was symptomatic that desks and file cabinets were being wheeled into his headquarters here only six days before convention opening. Key staff men moved in very late.

A slender legend is taking hold here that Rocky was really rolling until the July 30 Gallup Poll hit him hard. The notion cannot be supported. No study of delegate shifts discloses any major trend his way. The evidence is that he never did get

Dufault Raps Dyson on Viet

Peter Kane Dufault, Liberal Party candidate for Congress in the 28th District, criticized Democratic candidate John Dyson today for stalling on a debate and for "talking out of both sides of the mouth" on the peace issue.

Dufault referred to a recent letter from Dyson enclosing a copy of Dyson's latest address on Vietnam.

"Mr. Dyson said in the letter

Terms Barry Novel Good Reading

Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican congressional candidate, to-day broke nearly a month's silence concerning the controversial novel, "Grass Roots," by simply saying, "I've read it."

The book, written by Jane Barry, wife of Fish's 1966 campaign manager, John Barry, is said to be political fiction. However, some observers believe the novel to be an inside blueprint of the 1966 28th District congressional fight.

One of the principle characters, Jefferson Fairfax, is thought to be Fish. Fish said, "The book is good reading."

Rocky's Campaign Short In Delegates and Time

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA Washington Correspondent
MIAMI BEACH (NEA) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller's catch-up campaign operated under inevitable but crushing handicaps from the outset.

He tried to do it all in three months. And there are just too many tasks, too many people to persuade, too many places to go, to bring it off smoothly.

His front-running opponent, Richard Nixon, was already effectively organized in late 1966, after he finished barnstorming the country for state and local Republican candidates.

It may be that 1968 will teach public figures once and for all of the terrible chances and near-futility of short campaigns.

The late Robert F. Kennedy, who had declared for the presidency a whole month-and-a-half before Rockefeller jumped in on April 30, was suffering the same handicaps in lesser degree.

It can be argued, though of course not proved in the circumstances, that Kennedy could have gone on to win the Democratic nomination had he lived. Many politicians and observers think not.

Certainly his job of overtaking Vice-President Humphrey was huge. And there is positive testimony from Kennedy managers that his loss of the Oregon primary May 28 was ascribable in part to neglect resulting from a telescoped campaign.

The trouble with his personal appeals to delegates in 45 of the 50 states was that most of them were made to individuals who, in many instances, had been chosen through the advice, counsel and pressure of Nixon advocates and managers. So persuasion was doubly hard.

Some people in politics still refer dreamily to Adlai Stevenson's 1952 nomination with no campaign at all as proof it can be done. But he was chosen in a near-vacuum, his only competition was Estes Kefauver who was not favored by either wing of the Democratic party.

There was no vacuum this time. Nixon's marvelously efficient undertaking, vastly superior to his 1960 effort when he had all the prestige of the vice-presidency going for him, meant that any rival would have to perform steadily at peak level to beat him.

Rockefeller could not. Held back at first by Michigan Gov. George Romney's campaign, which he supported, Rocky would have been delayed badly in any event. But the New Yorker's March 21 pull-out, rooted deeply in distaste for further hard in-fighting, was disastrous.

It left his own camp divided, his loyal adherents disheartened, others of lesser faith angered to the point of defection. Many voters who liked him coupled March 21 and his April 30 entry and stamped the governor as "vacillating."

With residual anti-Rockefeller feeling still strong in the GOP conservative wing, he had enough drawbacks without the new ones. Taken together, the burdens were incredible.

He had no primary victories to show except a surprising write-in triumph in Massachusetts the very day he entered. The costly advertising and the hopefully favorable polls he counted on to win voters who in turn would hammer on delegates to shift his way were never that impressive.

Over-all, neither was his campaign, even allowing for its shortness. Its disorganization has been critically felt in this convention city. His forces often have been painfully unprofessional, leaving the field to a rival already deeply entrenched. It was symptomatic that desks and file cabinets were being wheeled into his headquarters here only six days before convention opening. Key staff men moved in very late.

A slender legend is taking hold here that Rocky was really rolling until the July 30 Gallup Poll hit him hard. The notion cannot be supported. No study of delegate shifts discloses any major trend his way. The evidence is that he never did get

Peter Kane Dufault, Liberal Party candidate for Congress in the 28th District, criticized Democratic candidate John Dyson today for stalling on a debate and for "talking out of both sides of the mouth" on the peace issue.

Dufault referred to a recent letter from Dyson enclosing a copy of Dyson's latest address on Vietnam.

"Mr. Dyson said in the letter he awaited my views on this matter," Dufault said. "But if he really wanted my views, why didn't he ask me to come and debate with him instead of reading that speech to his chauffeur and his secretary in an empty hall? I'd have been happy to accommodate him. But it seems he intends to stall on debates with me for the same reason Fish stalls on debates with anybody—intellectual cowardice, political timidity, or both."

"I gave him my views anyway," Dufault said, "by return mail. I praised his call for a bombing halt and a ceasefire—and said he was talking out of both sides of the mouth when, a paragraph later, he called for an 'enlarged pacification program.'"

"Pacification, as any sane, literate person knows by now, means enforced removal of peasants into concentration camps and the designation of their former homes as 'free strike' zones. This kind of 'pacification' is the next thing to genocide—if not genocide itself, and I seriously question the good faith of anyone who claims to be for peace and for such a policy as that at the same time."

Tests Continue To Find Cause Of Girl's Death

Results of the post-mortem examination made on Leona Van Zandt, the 16-year-old New York City girl who was found dead on her father's estate in Shandaken Monday afternoon, will not be released until further tests are made at the State Police Laboratory in Albany, an Ulster County Sheriff's Department official said today.

According to Senior Investigator Harold T. Bowers of the Ulster County Sheriff's Department, final results of the examination will not be determined for several days. Because the Ulster County Morgue does not have sufficient equipment to perform an extensive autopsy, the examination in Albany is described as a "routine procedure."

The Van Zandt girl was found in the rear of her father's property in Shandaken late Monday afternoon by Sheriff's department detectives and bloodhounds after she had been reported missing three hours earlier. A preliminary examination at the scene did not reveal any extensive wounds.

Guilty Pleas

Arrested by Kingston police Saturday night and charged with loitering to gamble at a residence at Franklin and Furnace Streets, six men today pleaded guilty before City Judge Hubert A. Richter and each was fined $10. They were Felipe Rios, 42, of 55 North Front Street; Ortiz Joe DeJesus, of 194 Wall Street, and Edward Stoutenburg, 29, Ortiz Jose Roque, Gilbert Agevedo and Francisco Avala Rios, whose addresses were not noted.

Faces Weapons Charge
Roger Goodrich, 31, of 196 Livingston Street, Saugerties, was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Troopers Craig Bremner and Patrick Sheehan of the Kingston State Police on a charge of unlawfully possessing a firearm. Taken before Town Justice Sherwood E. Davis, Goodrich was released in his own custody and the case was 45 caliber revolver was involved, according to authorities.

Terms Barry Novel Good Reading

Hamilton Fish Jr., Republican congressional candidate, today broke nearly a month's silence concerning the controversial novel, "Grass Roots," by simply saying, "I've read it."

The book, written by Jane Barry, wife of Fish's 1966 campaign manager, John Barry, is said to be political fiction. However, some observers believe the novel to be an inside blueprint to the behind-the-scenes dealings of the 1966 28th District's congressional fight.

One of the principle characters, Jefferson Fairfax, is thought to be Fish. Fish said, "The book is good reading. I enjoyed it, but it is far more fiction than fact. Although there are some similarities contained in various passages, I don't believe the novel is a blueprint to anything."

"I took exception," Fish concluded, "to Mrs. Barry's treatment of the other primary contender. I thought many of her passages were disparaging."

Dear Abby

Dogs For Grandchildren

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1968 by Chicago Tribune
N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My only son has been married for nearly 5 years, and so far all he and his wife have been able to raise are dogs! All my friends have lovely grandchildren to talk about, and I have nothing. It is breaking my heart. My son and daughter-in-law appear to be very happy and there is never any mention of "hoped for" children. Is this normal? They have two poodles who are treated like babies.

Since I think my daughter-in-law is the one who wears the pants in the family, should I ask her if dogs are the best she can do?

DISAPPOINTED IN FLUSHING

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: No. And don't ask your son either. They are apt to tell you it's none of your doggone business.

DEAR ABBY: Some neighbors who have children about the ages of ours were suddenly called out of town for a family funeral, and they asked us if we would chaperon a teen-age party at their home. We said we'd be glad to and asked them for instructions concerning our responsibilities. We were told,

"You don't have to do anything." I'd like to know what good chaperons are if they "keep out of sight?"

My husband and I sat upstairs in the sewing room the whole time and watched television, and when everything was quiet downstairs and all the kids were gone, we came down and went home.

Is this the way people are supposed to "chaperon" a party?

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: No. A chaperon should have an understanding with the young people as to when the party should end, and a few other specifics, such as where in the house they should be, and the rules of conduct, leaving the premises, etc. Chaperons need not be present constantly, but they should make it clear that they could pop in at any moment.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think I should let my hair grow?

SONNY

DEAR SONNY: I don't know how you can stop it.

DEAR ABBY: I usually agree with your advice, but not this time. You seemed to be very sympathetic to the 36-year-old wife and mother who had been corresponding with that young 20-year-old soldier in Viet Nam. Her husband objected when she invited him to visit them when he got out because he was jealous. You said the husband had an evil mind, was sick, immature, and half a dozen other things.

Well, I wonder how that wife would feel if her husband had started to correspond with a 20-year-old army nurse, and invited HER to come to visit them?

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Full moon spotlights AQUARIUS—individuals under this sign attract attention.

Two inebriated sailors, shouting obscene phrases, were arrested by the shore patrol and placed in the ship's brig. Realizing that his friend was too inebriated to go to work, the mechanic called the plant and reported him ill.

Shaded Bid Makes Trouble

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The Roman club as played by Belladonna and Avarrell is an artificial bid that shows a balanced 12 to 16 high card points. Belladonna, who is a law unto himself at the table, chose to shade it to 10 points on the hand shown here. The suit had the effect of shutting the Americans out.

Not that the American East didn't find a bid over the club opening. He bid two clubs to show his suit. Avarrell's two spade call was invitational but not forcing in the Roman system, and Belladonna had no problem about what to bid with his 10-point opening.

The defense started with a club lead and a club ruff. Avarrell still had to lose a diamond, two hearts and the ace of trumps, but down one was a mighty cheap save.

The United States North passed quite properly, whereupon the Italians proceeded to bid and make four hearts.

It is easy to see how the United States pair could have found their way to four hearts, in spite of the club opening bid, but it would almost require clairvoyance at the table. East had a good hand but how could he know that South had stabbed in spades and hit his partner with four card support and a nothing hand?

Furthermore, while East and West can make five hearts as the cards lie, and while the heart game would be reached without the club bid, the contract is not the sort that is sure to make. Suits don't have to break and the ace of diamonds doesn't have to show up in front of the king.

So we have to put this particular loss down to Italian luck plus Belladonna's decision to step out and make life difficult for his opponents.

Will Hutchins as Dagwood

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When the producers of CBS's new comedy series "Blondie," tapped actor Will Hutchins to play Dagwood Bumstead, they did not know they had acquired a long-time student of the venerable comic strip.

"Very few people remember why Dagwood is such a bumbler," said Will authoritatively over a noon repast that, minus bread, looked amazingly like a Dagwood sandwich surmounted by melted mozzarella cheese.

"Chic Young's comic strip was started in the late 1920s and one of the depression themes was that he was the son of a very rich man who, until he lost his money, had never done anything practical."

Right for Role

Will, whose specialty as a performer is projecting a gentle, naive quality, is a lanky six-footer who resembles not at all the cartoon character nor even Arthur Lake, the actor who with Penny Singleton made careers out of playing Dagwood and Blondie in a series of almost 30 motion pictures. But Hutchins, still remembered for his four years in television's early "Sugarfoot" series, seems to be right for the role. Patricia Harty plays the title role.

Hutchins, who can kick dust and say "Ah, shucks," very convincingly, actually isn't all that unsophisticated and has a nice easy way with a comedy line. After "Sugarfoot," there was "Hey, Landlord," which barely staggered through the 1966-67 season. His TV wife, "Miss Harty," had a similar experience that year with "Occasional Wife," and both series were better than their ratings indicated.

The actor, who looks much younger than he is—early thirties—recently went through one of those civilized, amicable divorces from Christine Burnett, Carol's real-life younger sister. "What I'd love," said Will, "is to bring back Arthur Lake and Penny Singleton to play our children's grandparents. But I doubt if anyone would go along with that idea."

'Berets' Rescue Starving Tribesmen In Bloodless Raid on Jungle Prison

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. special forces "Green Berets" rescued 118 starving Montagnard tribesmen from a Viet Cong jungle prison in a bloodless helicopter raid, American headquarters said today.

Spokesmen said the mountain men, women and children were emaciated and covered with body sores after two years of forced labor at the hands of the Viet Cong.

Communists guarding the captives, they said.

The Berets were few but their use of helicopters apparently led the Viet Cong to believe they were under a major U.S. assault.

It took two days to ferry the Montagnards from the camp 200 miles northeast of Saigon to hospitals and aid stations. "One baby had been born just before they were recovered," said Sgt. Edward Miller, 24, of Hammond, Ind., one of the Green Berets.

No Red Opposition

The Communists put up no fight for the Montagnards, who told their liberators they had been deprived of salt and clothing during their two years of carrying Communist supplies and growing rice for the Viet Cong.

Montagnards are racially different from the lowland South Vietnamese. They are a smaller, darker people inhabiting the central highland mountain country and depend on nature for their sustenance. U.S. special forces often hire them as saboteurs and scouts.

Meanwhile, Viet Cong terrorists used mines to destroy Saigon's major link with the Mekong Delta to the south.

Allied forces killed 75 Communists in a guerrilla buildup south of Da Nang in the northern war zone.

Using darkness as a cover, the Viet Cong slipped two rafts laden with explosives past South Vietnamese guards today on the Oriental River and blew up eight pontoons of the floating Ben Luc bridge, 15 miles southwest of the capital. Pickup 3rd pgh: The substitute

No Casualties

from Saigon to the delta's major population centers at My Tho and Can Tho.

There were no casualties in the detonation but six Communist mortar rounds hit a nearby government outpost one hour later, wounding four militiamen, officials said. Traffic was disrupted on the bridge while repair work began.

The sabotage came after a week in which more than 250 Communists were killed by allied soldiers increasing their patrols in the Mekong Delta against a Communist buildup for the nationwide offensive expected this fall.

Will Free Captured Seamen

U.S. Makes Reciprocal Offer to Hanoi

By LOREN JENKINS

PARIS (UPI)—The United States offered today to free several captured North Vietnamese seamen in reciprocation for Hanoi's recent release of three U.S. airmen, informed diplomatic sources said.

The proposal was part of a presentation of W. Averell Harriman at today's 16th session of the Paris talks on Vietnam, the sources said. There was no immediate indication of how many seamen were involved or what conditions for their release would be. Diplomatic sources said the United States holds perhaps as many as 20 North Vietnamese seamen.

Harriman declined to comment on the report about the offer. Going into the meeting with the North Vietnamese, he said: "On that subject you will have to contain your curiosity. If anything is to be said, I will say it when I come out."

At today's session, Harriman delivered to the North Vietnamese a brief statement reiterating President Johnson's conditions for peace stated in his March 31 speech.

Harriman told newsmen the statement would "bring out the consistency with which President Johnson has been direct in the background of these negotiations."

Harriman said he would repeat the U.S. position "that we are quite ready to end even the limited bombing which we are engaged in North Vietnam, if the other side will show some restraint."

He charged that until now Hanoi has shown no restraint. "They have responded not by restraint but by sending down the road from the North even more men than at any time during the conflict," he said.

Asked by newsmen if the United States felt the much-publicized lull in the Vietnam fighting was a sign of restraint, Harriman replied "they have given us no indication of restraint and... they have done the reverse: They have given us indications of increase threats."

Diplomatic sources said Harriman was seeking an indication of whether Hanoi is moving toward de-escalation of the war. Hanoi's No. 2 man at the talks hinted at such a move last weekend.

The weekend statement that a recent comparative lull in ground fighting in Vietnam had "political significance" came from Col. Ha Van Lau. It gave rise to speculation of some movement toward de-escalation by the Communists.

Conservation Groups Quickly Vow Fight Against FPC Ruling on Storm King Dam

By United Press International

Conservation groups have quickly vowed to fight a new ruling by a Federal Power Commission (FPC) examiner in favor of the proposed Storm King Mountain power storage dam.

An FPC examiner recommended Tuesday that Consolidated Edison Co. be granted permission to go ahead with the $183.5 million project on the majestic mountain that juts out into the Hudson River near West Point.

At the same time, Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. revealed it was studying plans that may lead to the cancellation of a $110 million atomic power project farther up the Hudson at Easton, across the Saratoga Battlefield.

FPC Examiner Weing Simpson's ruling would go into effect Sept. 15 if objections are not filed and the FPC does not begin a review of the case on its own. Two conservation groups immediately said they would file protests.

Alexander Saunders, co-chairman of the Scenic Hudson Preservation Conference, said he would appeal Simpson's ruling before the full commission and, "if that fails, we shall appeal again to the courts."

The Sierra Club, a national conservation organization that has been battling federal agencies over the building of supposedly unnecessary dams across the country, also promised to object to the full commission.

Alfred S. Forsyth of Chappaqua, attorney for the Sierra Club, expressed "dismay" over

HRVC Opposes
The proposed Niagara Mohawk atomic project in Washington County also has been objected to by the Hudson River Valley Commission (HVCC) on the grounds that the scenic value of the area would be destroyed.

The HVCC also stated its opinion that river water will be heated by the atomic plant's process to such an extent that wildlife in the area would be destroyed.

James A. O'Neill, Niagara Mohawk president, said that his firm, Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. and Con Ed are considering a conventional oil-fired plant on the site instead of an atomic facility. O'Neill said Tuesday that no final decision had been reached on the 750,000 kilowatt nuclear plant. He added the one-million kilowatt facility "isn't engineered, but it's well under study."

In his recommendation on Storm King, Simpson said recreational needs would be answered through a park planned by Con Ed at the site that will accommodate nearly 50,000 visitors annually.

The Storm King project, if ever put into effect, would pump water from the Hudson to the top of the mountain at times such as the early morning hours when Con Ed has power to spare from its generating facilities. During peak power demand periods, the water would be released back down the mountain through generators to provide for New York City's power needs. The Easton project would use Hudson water for cooling.

Simpson said a controlling factor in favoring the Con Ed proposal over other alternatives was the need for a quickly responsive and sustained power reserve.

'Berets' Rescue Starving Tribesmen In Bloodless Raid on Jungle Prison

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. special forces "Green Berets" rescued 118 starving Montagnard tribesmen from a Viet Cong jungle prison in a bloodless helicopter raid, American headquarters said today.

Spokesmen said the mountain men, women and children were emaciated and covered with body sores after two years of forced labor at the hands of the Viet Cong.

The Green Berets, tipped to the camp's location by relatives of the prisoners, swarmed in Sunday in helicopters and scoured off the platoon of Communists guarding the captives, they said.

The Berets were few but their use of helicopters apparently led the Viet Cong to believe they were under a major U.S. assault.

It took two days to ferry the Montagnards from the camp 200 miles northeast of Saigon to hospitals and aid stations. "One baby had been born just before they were recovered," said Sgt. Edward Miller, 24, of Hammond, Ind., one of the Green Berets.

No Red Opposition
The Communists put up no fight for the Montagnards, who told their liberators they had been deprived of salt and clothing during their two years' of carrying Communist supplies and growing rice for the Viet Cong.

Montagnards are racially different from the lowland South Vietnamese. They are a smaller, darker people inhabiting the central highland mountain country and depend on nature for their sustenance. U.S. special forces often hire them as saboteurs and scouts.

Meanwhile, Viet Cong terrorists used mines to destroy Saigon's major link with the Mekong Delta to the south.

Allied forces killed 75 Communists in a guerrilla buildup south of Da Nang in the northern war zone.

Using darkness as a cover, the Viet Cong slipped two rafts laden with explosives past South Vietnamese guards today on the Oriental River and blew up eight pontoons of the floating Ben Luc bridge, 15 miles southwest of the capital.

Pickup 3rd pgh: The substitute

No Casualties
The substitute pontoon bridge was built after June 30 when the Communists knocked out the permanent steel and concrete span carrying Highway 4

from Saigon to the delta's major population centers at My Tho and Can Tho.

There were no casualties in the detonation but six Communist mortar rounds hit a nearby government outpost one hour later, wounding four militiamen, officials said. Traffic was disrupted on the bridge while repair work began.

The sabotage came after a week in which more than 250 Communists were killed by allied soldiers increasing their patrols in the Mekong Delta against a Communist buildup for the nationwide offensive expected this fall.

Will Free Captured Seamen

U.S. Makes Reciprocal Offer to Hanoi

By LOREN JENKINS
PARIS (UPI)—The United States offered today to free several captured North Vietnamese seamen in reciprocation for Hanoi's recent release of three U.S. airmen, informed diplomatic sources said.

The proposal was part of a presentation of W. Averell Harriman at today's 16th session of the Paris talks on Vietnam, the sources said.

There was no immediate indication of how many seamen were involved or what conditions for their release would be. Diplomatic sources said the United States holds perhaps as many as 20 North Vietnamese seamen.

Harriman declined to comment on the report about the offer. Going into the meeting with the North Vietnamese, he said:

"On that subject you will have to contain your curiosity. If anything is to be said, I will say it when I come out."

At today's session, Harriman delivered to the North Vietnamese a brief statement reiterating President Johnson's conditions for peace stated in his March 31 speech.

Harriman told newsmen the statement would "bring out the consistency with which President Johnson has been direct- ing the background of these negotiations."

Harriman said he would repeat the U.S. position "that we are quite ready to end even the limited bombing which we are engaged in North Vietnam, if the other side will show some restraint."

He charged that until now Hanoi has shown no restraint. "They have responded not by restraint but by sending down the road from the North even more men than at any time during the conflict," he said.

Asked by newsmen if the United States felt the much-publicized lull in the Vietnam fighting was a sign of restraint, Harriman replied "they have given us no indication of restraint and... they have done the reverse: They have given us indications of increase threats."

of whether Hanoi is moving toward de-escalation of the war. Hanoi's No. 2 man at the talks hinted at such a move last weekend.

The weekend statement that a recent comparative lull in ground fighting in Vietnam had "political significance" came from Col. Ha Van Lau. It gave rise to speculation of some movement toward de-escalation by the Communists.

Conservation Groups Quickly Vow Fight Against FPC Ruling on Storm King Dam

By United Press International
Conservation groups have quickly vowed to fight a new ruling by a Federal Power Commission (FPC) examiner in favor of the proposed Storm King Mountain power storage dam.

An FPC examiner recommended Tuesday that Consolidated Edison Co. be granted permission to go ahead with the $183.5 million project on the majestic mountain that juts out into the Hudson River near West Point.

At the same time, Niagara Mohawk Power Corp. revealed it was studying plans that may lead to the cancellation of a $110 million atomic power project farther up the Hudson at Easton, across the Saratoga Battlefield.

FPC Examiner Weing Simpson's ruling would go into effect Sept. 15 if objections are not filed and the FPC does not begin a review of the case on its own. Two conservation groups immediately said they would file protests.

Alexander Saunders, co-chairman of the Scenic Hudson Preservation Conference, said he would appeal Simpson's ruling before the full commission and, "if that fails, we shall appeal again to the courts."

The Sierra Club, a national conservation organization that has been battling federal agencies over the building of supposedly unnecessary dams across the country, also promised to object to the full commission.

Alfred S. Forsyth of Chappaqua, attorney for the Sierra Club, expressed "dismay" over

HVCC Opposes
The proposed Niagara Mohawk atomic project in Washington County also has been objected to by the Hudson River Valley Commission (HVCC) on the grounds that the scenic value of the area would be destroyed. By LEONARD J. FISHER
HARVEY, Ill. (UPI)—Seven policemen and a woman were shot Tuesday night as a group of about 50 Negro teen-agers stoned cars in neighboring Dixmoor, then roamed into this suburb three miles south of Chicago.

Twelve of the youths whose number grew to 100, were arrested.

Police cordoned off a 12-block-long by three-block-wide area on Harvey's West Side, and forbade anybody to enter. Some windows were broken and bonfires set in the area.

Police from neighboring suburbs and 150 Cook County police converged on Harvey.

Authorities imposed a curfew on the area until 7 a.m., CDT today, and said at 3 a.m., the situation "is under control."

The trouble began at 9 p.m., Tuesday, Mayor James Haines said, when five officers—four from another suburb, Dolton—answered a call at a Dixmoor gas station that teen-agers were abusing passersby. The five officers dispersed the crowd of teen-agers, Haines said, and turned to leave. A shotgun blast from the crowd cut them down.

The youths moved into Harvey after stoning cars on Sibley Boulevard in Dixmoor. Before the area was cordoned off, two Harvey officers, Eugene Wojtowicz and Charles Severs, were hit by a shotgun blast in their patrol car.

The wounded officers were taken to Ingalls Memorial Hospital in Harvey where Wojtowicz, wounded in the face, and at least one other officer were admitted.

An unidentified woman was wounded in the arm when police fired six shots into her home. Her husband ran out and told police to stop firing. The woman was not believed to be seriously wounded.

Haines, driving a Volkswagen, pointed with a flashlight to the cordoned off area and said the trouble began "spontaneously."

He denied it was connected with a ruling Tuesday by the Cook County coroner that the fatal shooting of a Chicago youth by a Harvey policeman was justifiable homicide.

The youth, Steve Wilson, 15, was shot by Patrolman Bruce Goldsworthy June 30 after the officer chased Wilson, who was in a stolen car. The stolen car crashed. Wilson attempted to flee and was shot, Goldsworthy told the coroner's inquest.

Haines said, "It's a hot evening, and people who live in this kind of a condition..."

The suburb has 35,000 persons and is about 20 per cent Negro. Undersheriff Bernard Carey disputed Haines' contention that the outbreak began "spontaneously."

"It would appear to me to be the type of thing we have seen happening around the country," such as Cleveland, where they are actively seeking instances to shoot policemen," Carey said.

"It was a hot night but I don't think that the heat causes people to carry guns or causes people to actively shoot policemen," he said.
